Balloting for Candidate for President Not Likely to Take Place Until Tonight

BRYAN AND SEN. O'GORMAN WILL WRITE PLATFORM OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

CONVENTION HALL, Baltimore, June 27.—The Bryan-Wilson progressives won another victory in the democratic convention today when the delegates overturned the report of the credentials committee and seated ten Wilson delegates from South Dakota. The Wilson supporters claimed that the vote made the nomination of Woodrow Wilson a practical certainty. New York's 90 votes, which yesterday went to the Clark-Harmon combination were today cast in a block for the Wilson delegates. The announcement of New York's vote was greeted with cheers from the Wilson delegates.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The delegates to the democratic nomination fled into the convention hall singly and in groups today prepared for a long and excited session.

It was expected to be the day of the climax, the end of the long campaign waged by the presidential aspirants and as they came into the hall these delegates apparently were as much at sea as ever as to who would be the nominee. The various boomers of candidates were ready to start demonstrations and counter-demonstrations and it seemed certain that the delays would be such as to throw the actual balloting late into the evening.

All sorts of rumors were afloat as to deals and combinations during the afternoon but not one of these seemed to have a trustworthy foundation. The supporters of Woodrow Wilson, heartened by the so-called Wilson-Bryan victory last night in the abrogation of the unit rule in binding all the members of a state delegation to the views of a majority in the delegation, were claiming that the New Jersey governor would sweep the convention today and secure the nomination.

Bryan Talked Of

There was renewed talk of Bryan himself as the nominee today, some of the so-called conservatives being quoted as saying that so long as the naming of a progressive seemed inevitable it might be just as well to have Mr. Bryan lead the fight for a fourth time. Some of Mr. Bryan's friends indicated that the Nebraska senator was content with the position he now occupies in the convention, the right to name the candidate being all but conceded to him.

Supporters of Champ Clark were claiming the nomination with as much confidence as ever, as they gathered for the day's session.

"There has been and will be no defection from the Clark strength," read a statement put out from the speaker's headquarters.

"Dark horse" talk died away today and while many candidates were mentioned, there appeared to be a consensus of opinion that the fight lay among the supporters of Wilson, Clark and Bryan.

Mr. Bryan had not committed himself on the question of the presidency in any way up to the time the convention met.

Mrs. William H. Taft, wife of the president, was a visitor at the convention today, having a prominent place in the first gallery. She was entertained by Mrs. Hugh Wallace, wife of a delegate from the state of Washington.

The order of business as the convention met was further consideration of the report of the committee on credentials. The majority report was presented last night, the minority findings being deferred until today.

Lively Fight Expected

The majority had unseated ten Wilson delegates from South Dakota and given their places to Clark men and this was expected to precipitate a lively fight. The credentials committee also dealt with factional troubles in several states, including Illinois and it was predicted that two or three hours might be consumed in disposing of the credentials matter.

Then the report of the committee on permanent organization was scheduled to be taken up, the convention ready to ratify by acclamation the choice of Senator-elect James C. McInerney as permanent chairman.

Mr. James was expected to make a brief speech.

These things disposed of the delegates looked forward to the long series of nominating and seconding speeches, and finally to the balloting on the presidential nominations.

No one expected a choice on the first ballot but the lineup on the initial vote was awaited with the keenest interest.

At 12 o'clock Chairman Parker had not taken his place on the platform. A big squad of police filed in and the sergeant-at-arms stationed policemen ten feet apart in every aisle.

A double row of police was placed in front of the press stand, where the scuffle of last night occurred.

Despite these added forces the sergeant-at-arms was unable to prevent crowding in the aisles.

Much Confusion

There was much noise and confusion in the convention hall during the wait for the proceedings to begin. The band kept up a lively racket.

"Dixie" was played many times and always brought out a cheer. Then for the first time during the convention the band struck up "Tammammy." It was greeted with kisses as well as cheers.

For the first time since the convention opened on Tuesday every seat on the floor and in the galleries was filled. The big galleries at each end of the hall were masses of fluttering fans. The heat was oppressive and again today the coat, as a garment was thoroughly discredited. Half an hour before the time set for the convening hour the aisles were crowded and the leaders were still conferring on the platform.

Galleries and floor both stood as the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The opening had already been delayed 40 minutes and the leaders were still talking together on the stage. Rep. Henry of Texas had joined the group, the crowd had steadily grown and every aisle in the galleries was filled. Under the galleries stood solid banks of spectators. Many climbed into the lower girders of the steel framework supporting the galleries.

The police, worried by the size of the crowd, tightened up their lines.

Situation Dangerous

Long before the presiding officer made any effort to call the convention to order R. S. Crain, chairman of the Baltimore convention committee, reported at the platform that doors were being rushed, ushers and doorkeepers were helpless by reason of lack of organization and that the situation was dangerous. The police were unable to cope with the situation because the convention authorities would not consent to the closing of any entrances.

Mr. Crain estimated that thousands crowded into the hall who were not entitled to admission. Ticket holders who had not arrived at the hall early found their seats occupied. Local authorities urged that the whole situation be taken away from political appointees who wore the badges of assistant sergeants-at-arms but the plea was unheeded.

There appeared little hope that the session could be conducted with any semblance of decorum from the moment demonstrations were started. A Missouri delegate with a bundle of Champ Clark lithographs made a round of the floor, tacking the picture to state standards. He placarded California, Colorado, Wyoming and Arkansas. When he reached the latter point a shout of "Tear it down; take it away" broke from rows of delegates and in a flash the pictures had been stripped from the Wyoming and Arkansas standards.

The anti-Clark forces raised a yell of triumph.

Called to Order

Temporary Chairman Parker began pounding for order at 12:45 p. m. Five minutes later the delegates were listening attentively to the opening prayer of Rabbi A. Guttmacher.

The prayer ended, the convention plunged into the South Dakota contests. C. S. Morris of Pennsylvania submitted the minority report favoring

GOV. WILSON

PLEASED WITH ACTION OF THE CONVENTION ON UNIT RULE

SEA GIRT, N. J., June 27.—Governor Wilson was elated today at the action of the democratic national convention last night on the unit rule.

"I have always maintained," he said, "that where delegates are instructed by districts in a primary election they have to vote accordingly and not be bound by the unit rule. For instance, here in New Jersey we have 24 of the 25 delegates, an overwhelming majority—yet we have never dreamed of enforcing the unit rule. The action of the convention shows that it is a progressive gathering. I believe that it was taken without regard to any man's candidacy."

The governor said he was gratified by the demonstration given him in the convention last night but regarded it more as a demonstration for "progressiveness" than as a personal triumph. "While it was called a Wilson demonstration," he added, "I am inclined to think it was a case of demonstration for a principle rather than for a candidate."

Golf was on the governor's program again this afternoon. He had arranged before leaving his cottage to receive news from the convention while on the links in case a ballot should be taken on the nomination.

When the third ticket, the second Clark set of delegates, was placed in the field McCorkle said the Clark people endeavored to have it withdrawn and the vote concentrated under the second ticket. The secretary of state of South Dakota, he said, refused to allow the ticket to be withdrawn, saying that both the second and third tickets were publicly known as favoring Clark and that therefore the vote of both should be accredited to Clark.

William McCorkle of West Virginia supported the majority report. He argued that the Wilson-Bryan-Clark ticket had been publicly pledged to Champ Clark.

When the third ticket, the second Clark set of delegates, was placed in the field McCorkle said the Clark people endeavored to have it withdrawn and the vote concentrated under the second ticket. The secretary of state of South Dakota, he said, refused to allow the ticket to be withdrawn, saying that both the second and third tickets were publicly known as favoring Clark and that therefore the vote of both should be accredited to Clark.

The course of progressivism is moving along more smoothly," was suggested.

Long before Mr. Bryan arose this morning a group of delegates had gathered around his door to see him. Mr. Bryan had no statement to make on the situation and with respect to who the party's standard bearer might be the party's standard bearer might be the Nebraska senator who had been stripped from the Wyoming and Arkansas standards.

The anti-Clark forces raised a yell of triumph.

BRYAN PLEASED

WITH LAST NIGHT'S WORK OF CONVENTION

BALTIMORE, June 27.—William J. Bryan remarked before leaving to attend the deliberations of the resolutions committee this morning that "the convention yesterday slipped off the tail of Thomas F. Ryan's cat."

The Nebraska leader had previously depicted Mr. Ryan, the New York financier, as cracking a cat-o'-tails over the convention.

"The course of progressivism is moving along more smoothly," was suggested.

THE PLATFORM

TO BE WRITTEN BY BRYAN AND O'GORMAN

BALTIMORE, June 27.—Mr. Bryan and Senator O'Gorman of New York will write the platform of the democratic national convention. When the working sub-committee of the committee on resolutions met today the members found themselves without a platform draft of sufficient character to form a basis for the committee's operations and a conclusion was arrived at speedily to appoint a second sub-committee to prepare a draft for the convenience of the sub-committee and later of the full committee and Mr. Bryan and Mr. O'Gorman were designated to perform that service.

The sub-committee then adjourned with the understanding that it would reconvene at four o'clock and that the full committee would be called together at seven o'clock this evening.

The sub-committee has progressed so far as to justify the conclusion on the part of its members that it will be prepared to present a fairly complete platform at seven o'clock. After the sub-committee adjourned at midnight last night the members went to their rooms under instructions to prepare various plans for consideration #### and when they assembled this morning

a number of comparatively complete propositions were presented. These, however, were without connecting links and moreover it was necessary that each of them should undergo the supervision of other members.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. O'Gorman went to work to thresh the platform into shape. Before beginning his work Mr. Bryan told some of his friends that the platform would be an essentially progressive document.

Especially stress will be laid upon the tariff plank, which will declare for a tariff for revenue only. The democratic houses of representatives will be commended for its work in the downward revision of the tariff schedules and the party will be pledged to continue its labors in this line.

The attitude of the president will be condemned and the republican party charged with breach of faith in failing to perform its promises of four years ago. A strong plank in support of Mississippi river improvement is promised. Referendum and recall will be endorsed as progressive measures but the carrying out of these plans of government will be delegated to the party in various states. Planks strongly endorsing an income tax, the direct election of senators and primary election are confidently expected.

Gen. Floyd King, an ex-member of congress from Louisiana, was granted an special hearing today in the interest of an international system of highways. He urged the measure as in the general interest of the people of all states.

Miss Kittie Ninney will spend the next two weeks at Hampton beach with Mrs. O. P. Davis of Burrill street.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Observed Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Parker last night observed the fifth anniversary of their wedding with a supper and a reception to their friends at their beautiful home, 211 Methuen street. There was a large attendance present and the happy couple were showered with congratulations and costly gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker received in the parlor which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with streamers of white crepe paper, with a touch of daisies and roses here and there, the ensemble presenting a very neat appearance. The dining room was also richly decorated as well as the music room.

A very enjoyable entertainment program was rendered, those taking part being as follows: Miss Helen Wilson, piano; Master Edwin McChene, violin; Master Peter Cannon of the Merrimack Square theatre, vocal selections, and Mrs. Parker, vocal selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker, the latter formerly Miss Louise Van Nott of Manchester, N. H., were married five years ago yesterday at Manchester, N. H., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Bailey. They immediately removed to this city, where they lived ever since, Mr. Parker being the popular chef at Blood's restaurant in Prescott street. A charming daughter, Muriel, was born to the happy couple two years ago.

Mrs. Parker last evening wore her wedding gown and she was assisted in receiving by the Misses Ivy Hanks and Agnes Morcy. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hart of Manchester, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Goodlin.

PRESIDENT TAFT

ANNOUNCES THE PROMOTION OF SEVERAL ARMY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Taft today sent to the senate the nomination of Brig. Gen. W. W. Willerspoon, now in command of the department of the gulf, to be major general, and those of Col. Clarence Edwards, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, Col. George E. Chase, a detailed inspector general, and Col. McClelland of the first cavalry to be brigadier generals.

SEMINARY BURNED

BOY IS SUSPECTED OF HAVING SET THE FIRE

WINNIPEG, Man., June 27.—The new seminary of St. Boniface, for the education of boys for the priesthood, was burned last night. The loss is $100,000. An 18-year-old boy is being held by the police on the charge of having set fire to the seminary.

Two Typical Costumes Shown for the Bride's Trousseau

Designed by May Minton

INDOOR AND STREET COSTUMES.

In the illustration are shown two typical costumes, one for the street and one for indoor wear, that are admirably well adapted to the bride's trousseau and also to general use.

The gown on the left is made from one of the new foulards that show tiny dots arranged in a way to give almost a checked effect. It is combined with a blouse of lace and it is trimmed with little satin buttons. Many of the smartest features of the season are included. The deep trimming portion or girdle on the blouse that matches the skirt is an important one. The same model could be used for a variety of materials. It would be very charming, made from tulle with coat to match, making a three piece suit, or from lightweight serge or any reasonable suiting material, and for the upper portion of the blouse may be used chiffon, lace, net, crepe de chine or any pretty material contrasting with the lower portion. The blouse can be made with or without a lining, and the lining can be used with or without undersleeves, and the neck also can be made high. The skirt is made in two pieces, and the trimming portion arranged over it. The finish can be made at either the high or natural waist line.

The street costume shows one of the very new coats that are semi-fitted, yet give exceedingly straight lines, and a skirt that gives quite the effect of a complete overskirt and foundation, yet which in reality consists of upper and lower portions that are stitched together at the line of the facing. Such a model is adapted to every seasonable suiting. Serge is a favorite for the early season, taffeta is a pronounced feature, satin is to be used, heavy ribbed silks are exceedingly smart, wool poplins and ratine are much in vogue, and for simpler use there is the long list of cheviot, homespuns and the like, while broadcloth is one of the standbys for handsome suits. Ratine, satin, silk and contrasting wool materials are used as trimming. In the illustration taffeta is combined with satin, and the collar and cuffs are made of ratine. The coat can be trimmed to give the empire effect or made with a plain back, as liked, and the skirt can be finished at either the high or natural waist line.

SENATOR CRANE

TO REMAIN ON THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

BOSTON, June 27.—Senator W. Murray Crane will undoubtedly be re-elected as the Massachusetts member of the republican national committee. The Massachusetts delegation to the Chicago convention having failed to choose a committeeman, the election falls to the republican state committee. The committee is a decidedly Crane body.

The junior senator is expected to take an active part in the forthcoming national campaign, notwithstanding his previously expressed determination to retire from the committee. Massachusetts men returned from Chicago with stories that he was the backbone of the Taft management. The president has relied upon him to a great extent and it is expected that he will seek his counsel in the months of fighting ahead.

RETAIL DEALERS

MAY TRY TO GET OUT OF THE MEAT BUSINESS

NEW YORK, June 27.—Retail meat dealers throughout the city said yesterday that the trade was facing its greatest crisis in this country. They declared that many members of the trade would have to go out of business next autumn because there was no prospect of lower meat prices, and because retail shops in this city had lost 50 per cent. of their customers the last 10 weeks because of the great increase in the price of beef.

GIRL ENDED LIFE BY TAKING GAS

Following the Death of Her Sweetheart

NEW YORK, June 27.—Elsie Baglinsky, a pretty Italian girl, 18 years old, killed herself today by inhaling illuminating gas following in death her sweetheart, Enrico Guida, who shot and killed himself in her presence on Sunday last. The girl left a note saying that with Enrico dead "there was nothing without love."

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Beginning today and continuing through the rest of the week the presentation at the Merrimack Square theatre by the Harvard Stock company will be that wonderful four-act drama "Ishmael" or "In the Depths," a dramatization from the book by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. The play is one of exceptional merit and should give the members of the cast ample opportunity to display that superior ability which has made them real leaders in their class. Henry Grady, Miss Valerie Valaire, Charles H. Stevens and the other members of the company will all be found in congenial parts and their combined efforts should result in most satisfactory results. The every effort will be made in presenting it in as capable manner as possible.

In connection with the offering, the management will give a new and novel series of photo-plays that will add much to the general excellence of the bill. Illustrated songs by Miss Alice Bagley, the well known local vocalist, will also be enjoyed.

For the first three days of next week the presentation by the Harvard Stock company will be "The Rosary," a play that won favor with the theatre-going people of the east during the past few seasons. Another new series of picture plays and illustrated songs will also be given. Remember that this theatre is "the coolest spot in town."

RUSSELL LORING KEW
President of Class

Kelth's theatre was the scene last night of the graduation exercises of the Lowell High school and the picture presented was both beautiful and inspiring. The largest class in the history of the school was graduated and rarely, if ever, has so large an audience witnessed similar exercises in this city. Every seat in the house was taken and those who feared that the theatre would be uncomfortably hot were pleasantly surprised to find that it was cooler than their own homes, a fact due to the up-to-date method employed by the management, a combination of fans above and air below.

It was good to note the deep interest that was being taken in every feature of the program and well might the parents and friends, and the city, feel proud of the graduating class of 1912 of the Lowell High school.

The exercises last night were all very graceful and pretty and the accommodations all that could be desired. The address to the graduates by Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college, was an inspiring one. He told the young men and the young women that activity is absolutely necessary to success, and that only in action do the flowers of glory grow and become vigorous. He told them that if they would practice the virtues of the founders of this grand republic their lives would be crowned with glory. "As long as America is true to its founders," he said, "justice will triumph and right will have its victory." He asked them to remember that violence is not the legislation of America and that a true citizen is a man of law and order. "The true American citizen," he said, "is a man of absolute integrity and honor."

An Excellent Program

It would be hard indeed to improve upon the musical program and the way in which it was carried out reflected much credit upon the director, Mr. Frederick O. Blunt.

The salutatorian of the class, Miss Teresa Garland Lew, delivered a beautiful essay on "An Ideal Woman." (Mrs. Julia Ward Howe), and William Warren Noonan, valedictorian, had for his theme, "The Greater Service." The Greater Service was well rendered. Mr. Noonan is a graduate of the Inmaculate Conception school, and a member of the O. M. I. Cadets.

Carney Medal Scholars

The six members of the class of 1912 who received the Carney medals, are as follows: Teresa Garland Lew, Ada Louise Sherburne, Robea Elizabeth Ducharme, William Warren Noonan, Percival James Quill, Maxwell Gardner Sherburne.

The medals were presented by Superintendent A. E. Whitcomb who also called the names of those who, just missing the Carney medal, have attained high rank in scholarship, as follows: Gertrude Ellen Bush, Dorothy Estes, Harold French Dodge, Henry Sokolsky, Kenneth Alexander Gardner, Allen Naomi River, Margaret Adeline Thompson, Charles Everett Jones.

The name of Miss Marion Martin of the class of 1911 was also mentioned as entitled to a place upon the honor roll, her name having been accidentally omitted in the list of last year's graduates.

Perfect Attendance

In addition, the following were named as entitled to honorable mention for perfect attendance during their high school course: Florence Florence, Teresa Garland Lew, Veronica Mary Patricia Noonan, Viva Althea Palmer, Irene Welsh.

The Prizes

The first prize, of ten dollars in gold, awarded by the Lowell Historical society for the best essay on "Lowell in the Civil War," was won by Miss Gladys Storm; and the second prize, of five dollars in gold, was won by Mr. Stanley Worth. They were presented by Dr. Moses Greeley Parker. Mayor James E. O'Donnell presented the diplomas to the graduates.

Dr. James B. O'Connor

Dr. James B. O'Connor, chairman of the committee on high school, introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college.

O'Connor said in part: "It is a pleasant privilege for me to be present here this evening to congratulate you on the successful completion of your studies and to assist in the presentation to you of diplomas, which testify to your excellence in conduct and proficiency in studies. You are taking leave of a school, which is admittedly one of the best of its grade in the country. For many years the Lowell high school has been widely recognized as an institution of a high order and well merited fame; and now yours is the honor to be numbered among a graduate body of men and women, many of whom have attained to pre-eminence and power in the various walks of life. In these halls you have but laid the foundation—the task is yours of building thereon a moral and intellectual structure, which will serve you well in the field you choose to enter. The excellent training received by you in the classrooms of this school has given you a distinct advantage in the struggle of life; but you must remember that whatever the influence of school or teacher, whatever the power of precept or example, the measure of your success will be determined by your individual character, by your own personal work and worth. The future is yours to make or unmake and at this moment so full of hope and promise, I tender you all the best wishes of that committee, to whom is entrusted the grave care of the educational system of Lowell, confident that you will make the most of your opportunities and bring even greater renown to this institution in which you have spent such a pleasant and profitable period of your young lives.

In pursuance of an admirable custom whereby the graduating class receives an appropriate address, I have the pleasure and honor of presenting to you a gentleman who is a noted authority on everything pertaining to education. He is a distinguished member of a society which for centuries has included amongst its subjects the brightest of the world's minds and which through its various educational agencies has ever been the cultivator of sound and solid learning. Among the present day leaders of scholastic endeavor in our country there is perhaps none so variously distinguished as an educator, a moralist and an orator as the gentleman who has consented to speak to you this evening, the president of Boston college—Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, of the Society of Jesus.

Father Gasson's Address

Rev. Fr. Gasson was given a rousing reception and his address was both clear and eloquent. He spoke in part as follows:

"It is a great happiness and a rare privilege to come to a city that has the finest water supply in the Commonwealth, the most peaceful industrial conditions in the Commonwealth, and the most progressive school committee in the Commonwealth."

"Members of the graduating class: This vast concourse of men and women are all gathered tonight because it is your graduation. Other classes will come and go, but you will never graduate again. I would like to impress upon your minds tonight the thoughts of gratitude to this city of Lowell, which furnishes you with the opportunities for this splendid education; gratitude to these instructors who have given up their lives to make you splendid men and women; gratitude to your parents, who have made it possible for you to take advantage of these opportunities. You have closed one book in your life, and as you go out into larger life, looking forward into the future, remember that you are to become citizens of this great republic of America."

"Ladies and gentlemen, we all know that in ancient history there was a cry went out, 'I am a Roman citizen.' That cry, to this day, rings down through the ages. That man has become immortal because of his proud boast of citizenship. But if ever there was a nation, if ever there was a body of men and women, who ought to glory in their citizenship, it is those who can say, 'I am an American citizen.' When I speak of American citizenship I speak of a citizenship that is the highest and the grandest and the most sublime of any citizenship of which this world holds record. The Roman citizen was more or less a dependent upon the state. The American citizen is a monarch. Every American citizen knows that he has within his power, through his vote, to send men to the halls of legislation, and in this manner to frame the laws and to manage the execution of those laws within the country."

"My young friends, that will be your power. When your fathers are passing away, you will be the future citizens. You must take their place. You must be men and women of broad ideas and lofty ideals and strong character, the country, in your hands, will march forward on its great triumphal march of progress and prosperity; but if you fail, then the country must fall because the country rests upon it. I would like to burn into your hearts tonight, it is the thought of the sublimity of that citizenship; of those rights and those privileges which belong to us as Americans.

"Ladies and gentlemen, when we go to our ordinary duties of life, do we always bear in mind what a glorious possession we hold—what a glorious country? Let us—what a grand thought it is, to feel that each one of us has this blessing, to be sheltered under the nurturing influence of this great, this grand government? Under this citizenship, every man is a monarch. When we come into life the republic does not stand by the cradle and see for our credentials of birth. It does not ask for a long lineage. It does not ask to us and beg to be shown a check book or a list of stocks. It does not ask to be buried in a chemical laboratory; because in the view of our American government, the blood of every honest man is royal and the heart of every honest man is the heart that loves the American constitution, and the head of every honest man is the head that the American constitution crowns with the crown of citizenship."

"Other nations now are beginning to copy us, because of the blessings that we enjoy here. But remember always that it was America that laid the foundations of democratic government and it was America that raised the dignity of man up to the lofty plane of true citizenship. And we should ever cherish that country, with a love and a fervor that cannot be fully expressed in words."

"American citizenship is not only a sublime citizenship, but it is a citizenship of virtue. The founders of this republic had in their minds, when they raised the fabric of government, not a nation of criminals, but a nation of upright men. There is no man or woman, who would be frank and who has read the writings of the founders of this republic, who will not acknowledge that throughout the pages of their writings, they lay down those standards of moral conduct which, if followed, must build up the highest form of manly and womanly integrity."

"From Washington, the father of the republic, who so clearly in his last will and testament bequeathed all his followers and all the future citizens to bear in mind that no nation can advance in the ways of prosperity without a supreme being, and that the nation that banishes God from its senate chamber or from its own death, all down through the long line, will agree in this—that the true American citizen is a man of absolute integrity and honor."

"My dear young friends, our forefathers chose these colors, the red, white and blue. The white means absolute integrity of life; the red, absolute fearlessness in the performance of duty; and the blue, loftiness of ideals. If every man would read that lesson and if every time you pass that flag in the street you would ask yourself, is my life a life of absolute integrity, of fearlessness in the performance of duty, are my ideals the ideals of the true American citizen? then indeed we might measure up to the standard of citizenship as laid down by the forefathers of this republic."

"Bear in mind, too, that our citizenship is a citizenship of law and order. If there are difficulties to dispose of,

we have the law to appeal to. Violence is not the legislation of America. All through the ages that she has existed she has taught the great lesson that the true citizen is a man of law and order, and that he appeals to law and order in order to have justice. And she has taught the world this great lesson—that violence is not a lawful method, in order to reach justice. But she has put her confidence in those who have the power of the ballot; in those who are able to frame the laws of our country. And although there may be delays, yet as long as America is true to her founders, in the end justice will triumph and right shall have its victories."

"One more lesson: The American citizenship was built upon this great theory, that the individual, as such, must be allowed full scope. Where will you find as many opportunities as in this land of promise? I am not denying that there is need of certain changes, I am not saying that we have established a paradise upon earth. But it is not true that in no country in the world are there such splendid opportunities for the growing boy and girl as here. If that boy and girl will only practice the virtues inculcated in his training, the virtues of the founders of this republic. And bear this in mind: that the true citizen is the man of all the men if individual effort. It is not the filler who is the ideal American, but the man who is found in all the hustle and bustle of life, with all his energies working at the highest pressure. The prizes of life are ever before you; but you will never take them unless you are among the toilers of the world."

Fr. Gasson repeated the words of the king to his son who was leaving him, the king saying:

"My boy, you will not be with me, but always remember you are a prince and a son of a king."

Then, turning to the graduates, Fr. Gasson said: "Remember you are American citizens and graduates of the Lowell high school."

The Class Gift

The class gift, a framed series of four Remington pictures representing the history of the subjugation of the American Indian, was presented by the class president, Loring Russell Kew, and accepted by President John C. Farrington of the school board.

Chairman Farrington's Acceptance

In accepting the gift, Chairman John C. Farrington of the school board said:

"The members of the school board and those zealous and loving friends who have so cordially directed your studies for the past four years, the teachers of the Lowell High school, unite with me in tendering you sincere thanks for your beautiful and appropriate gift. A work of art is always acceptable, and in making your selection you have displayed excellent judgment, for history in whatever form presented is a source of pleasure, while pictures adorning the walls of an institution of this kind, but aside from their material worth, these pictures will have a value beyond price for the association of them. There is no man who has not some interesting associations with particular scenes, books or pictures, and who does not feel their beauty or sublimity enhanced by such connections. How we delight to build our recollections upon some basis of reality such as this. In the days to come should you ever retrace your steps to the hallowed precincts of your alma mater these pictures will immediately attract your eye and bring back to you the bright dreams of the past, while, as the scent of the roses hangs round the ruined vase, their presence will keep the class of 1912 pleasantly remembered by those from whom you are about to depart when school days have become a memory. May happiness and success attend you all in your journey through life!"

Presentation of Diplomas

Principal Cyrus W. Irish introduced Mayor James E. O'Donnell, and announced the graduating class as the largest in the history of the school, numbering 253 graduates, to whom the mayor then presented the diplomas.

Mayor O'Donnell's Address

The mayor, addressing the graduates, said:

"On such an occasion as this the city official to whom is entrusted the expenditure of the public money resigns all visions of high tax rates and the accompanying criticisms, to contemplate with honest pride and deep satisfaction the grand result of the municipal policy's greatest and best source of expense, its public school system; to offer hearty congratulations to those who have passed successfully the requirements of that system and to anticipate fondly the inestimable benefits that are to accrue to the city when the graduates of today shall have become the citizens of tomorrow. The importance of education was recognized and generally appreciated long years before the magnificent systems which we enjoy today were even dreamed of and I recall a quotation from that venerable book, the Talmud: 'The world is only saved by the breath of the school children.' Education has been called the apprenticeship of life and it has been improved and developed steadily through the ever-increasing circle of years until in this Commonwealth, and city a system of education as complete as mind and money can make it is offered without charge to the son and daughter of the humblest citizen, and to the child of the poor alien who may come within our gates. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts is looked up to in the family of nations for the excellence of its schools and of its general educational facilities, and the city of Lowell, I am proud to state, stands second to none in the Commonwealth in this respect. 'Education is the chief defense of nations,' says Burke, and such being the fact this greatest of all nations, of which we are part has an imperious duty to perform. The city of Lowell gives lavishly in support of its schools, asking no return except that the recipients of its bounty realize the fact that they are all growing up to be citizens, developers and defenders of our common country, with one government and one destiny."

The order of learning is wisely taken up with, first, that which is necessary and, second, that which is useful, while a part of that which is necessary is made obligatory, thereby precluding the possibility of that great blight of mankind, illiteracy. Education means more than mere book knowledge for by it the child is inspired with worthy motives, pure morality is inculcated and discipline is instilled. In a word, as has been truly said: 'Education leads the human soul to what is best in it, it wanders then a municipality in the exercise of jealous care over its future citizenship knows no limit in its expenditures in behalf of education.' Is it any wonder that its heart wells up with honest pride when upon an occasion of this kind the successful results of its guardianship bud forth in fragrant beauty before an enraptured public?"

To the class of 1912, one of the largest in history I am informed, as mayor I tender the congratulations and best wishes of all Lowell. The surest forerunner of your future success in the great battle of life is the fact that you have adopted as your motto the class motto, 'Perseverance.' 'By Perseverance.' There are two ways of attaining an important end, by force and by perseverance. The power of force is given only to a privileged few but perseverance can be practised by the humblest and steadily practised its power becomes irresistible. It is not given to all to be successful, at once but he who has failed but has never-theless gone on will do better in the end than many who have succeeded at the start. 'Perseverance,' says the philosopher, 'gives power to weakness and opens to poverty the world's wealth.' There are few things impossible to diligence and skill and failure is generally the result of want of application rather than of means. With your class motto before you, seek high ideals and in your endeavor to attain them, be of strong heart and persevere; ever mindful that 'The conditions of conquest are always easy, but the path is never straight, and never turn back.' May a bright and prosperous future await you all.

Salutatory Address

The salutatory, "An Ideal Woman," delivered by Miss Teresa Garland Lew, was as follows:

"Struggle and honor are her clothing, and she shall rejoice in time to come. Give her of the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her within the gates."

These words from the description of the Ideal woman in the last chapter of the book of Proverbs may well be said of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, whose long life of nearly one hundred years ended less than two years ago.

As a child, Julia Ward was fond of study and this fondness continued to the end of her life. When very young she was familiar with French, Italian and Latin; she later studied German, and when fifty years of age, began to read Greek, the reading of which language was afterwards the source of her greatest pleasure. On passing with honors from the Lowell high school, she was ninety years old. Mrs. Howe said, "Study Greek, my dear, it's better than a diamond necklace." Her daughter says she will never forget the day when her mother, after reading an account of the retreat of the Greeks who formed part of the expedition of Cyrus, came dancing into the dining room, crying, 'Thalatta! Thalatta!' the cry of the Greeks on first catching sight of the sea. In the best English literature also, she was well versed. She was so familiar with Shakespeare that she would sometimes at the theatre whisper a correction of some line misquoted by the actor. She was fond of poetry, and was well acquainted with the best novels. She read the novels of Stevenson, Crawford, Cable, Meredith and Conan Doyle, besides rereading the works of Scott, Dickens and Thackeray which she had eagerly read in her youth. Her memory was so remarkable that she wrote her 'Reminiscences' without the aid of them for special occasions. Of these the one on Abraham Lincoln, written for the Lincoln Centenary, is regarded the best. The last two stanzas of this poem compare favorably with her famous Battle Hymn of the Republic.

"A trochæus shot a sob of rest,
A martyr's pain upon his breast,
A welcome from the glorious seat
Where countless souls of heroes meet
And, thrilling through unmeasured days
A song of gratitude and praise
A cry that all the earth shall heed
To God, who gave him for our need."

In the summer of 1841, Julia Ward, having heard of the doctor who was accomplishing so much for the blind, visited the Perkins Institute in South Boston. She was very much interested in the work and while there was introduced to Dr. Samuel Howe, who afterwards became her husband. Throughout their married life he found that "the heart of her husband doth safely trust in her so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good, and not evil all the days of her life."

Mrs. Howe was deeply interested in all her husband's work. She assisted him in editing "The Commonwealth," a paper advocating the abolition of slavery. She also pleaded the causes of Greece and Armenia, two countries which her husband was struggling to assist. During the Civil war she was very deeply interested in the work for the Union soldiers and at this time she wrote her most famous poem. One day a friend asked her why she did not write a song for the soldiers. During that evening, Mrs. Howe had this in her mind, and the next morning she awoke and found that some verses had formed in her mind. Her poems often came to her in the early morning. At once she arose and wrote the words of a song that was to spread throughout the world, and work its way into the heart of the nation.

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord,
He is tramping out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on."

Notwithstanding her zeal during the war, Mrs. Howe thought that war was a return to barbarism, so she instituted a peace crusade. She appealed to the mothers of the different nations to aid her in her task. In behalf of peace she visited England and spent some time there lecturing on peace. Although she did not accomplish all that she wished, she aroused public sentiment in favor of universal peace both in England and America. She also instituted a Mothers' day in which the women should teach their children to love peace. Another crusade in the last years of her life was to obtain purer milk. To aid the cause, she appeared before the Massachusetts legislature and argued in such a manner that even the milk dealers realized the need of pure milk. Truly may it be said of Mrs. Howe, "She looked well, she was of her time, and she would outlast the world." She died on June 1, 1910, at the age of 99 years.

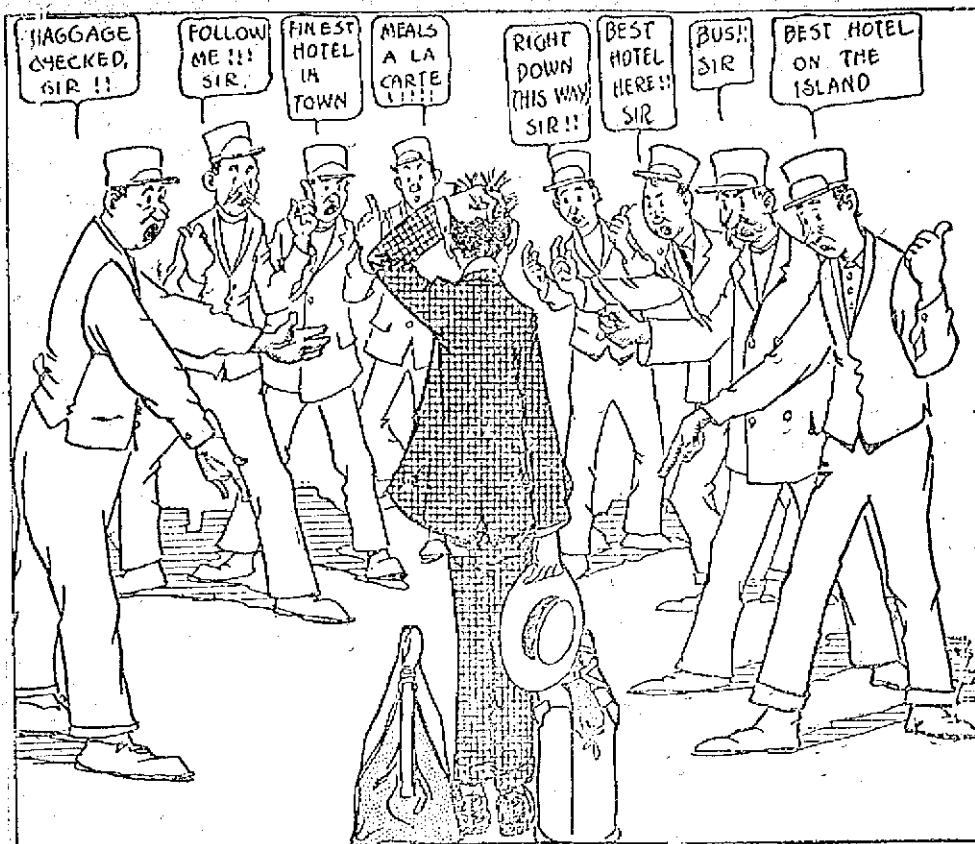

Although Mrs. Howe did not "lay her hand to the spindle" or "make fine linen," as did Solomon's ideal woman, she accomplished much good in other ways. She took a prominent part in the Woman's Suffrage movement, and though much ridiculed for many years she was president of the N. E. Woman's club, and of the Association for the Advancement of Women. She was the founder of a club of young girls in Boston, which has served as a model for similar associations in other cities.

Truly may it be said of Mrs. Howe, "She looked well, she was of her time, and she would outlast the world." She died on June 1, 1910, at the age of 99 years. Her home life for her public work. Her mornings were given over to study, which her children were never allowed to interrupt. But afternoons and evenings she would sing and play for the children, for she had a beautiful voice, and would often teach them songs. She sometimes wrote plays and acted in them to further her children's pleasure. Her own daughters in their books praise and honor her for her strength and beauty of character, and love to dwell upon the hours, which in her busiest days, she always devoted to them. Truly, "her children (with) praise up and call her blessed, her husband loved and he praised her."

About religious matters Mrs. Howe rarely talked with her children. But that side of her nature gleamed from her poems and other writings. Her daughter said, "her first waking act was prayer, aspiration; her last, thanksgiving and praise. She lived in daily communion with divine life, and a deep spiritual joy seemed to enwrap her. In the first part of her 70th year she, for a short time, was depressed with the thought of her 'three score years and ten,' but when she found as the days went by, that she was as strong and energetic that year as she had been in her 60th, all her joyous activity returned. She lived to help all, a life whose ideal aim was in her own words, 'To learn, to teach, to serve, and to enjoy.' It was this spirit of joyful service which enabled her to continue her work until she passed away '91 years young.' 'Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain, but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.' Friends of the Lowell High school, in behalf of the class of 1912, thank you for the interest you have shown in us by your presence here and extend to you all the heartiest greetings.

ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY

Question Whether City Can Re- pair Streets at Less Cost Than Contractors

The commissioner of streets and highways says he has not gone along far enough to ascertain whether or not the city can make its own concrete and do its own repairing on streets and sidewalks at less cost than to have the work done by contract. The city's concrete plant is a portable affair and was doing business in Central street today, in the vicinity of the New American house. A small portion of the granite sidewalk near the Merrimack street entrance to the city hall is being forced up by the roots of trees, and

Commissioner Brown says he will have it attended to in a few days.

For July Fourth
Mayor O'Donnell is making arrangements for band concerts and entertainments for the children on July Fourth. There will be five band concerts, one in the afternoon and four in the evening. The mayor is also considering the advisability of a patriotic address to be delivered at the city hall, in either the old councilman's chamber or the chamber used by the present government, during the forenoon of the glorious Fourth. It would be a little out of the ordinary for Lowell and the Mayor feels that it would be appropriate.

Made Permanent Janitor
Commissioner Cummings has notified the city service commission that he has appointed Michael P. O'Brien a permanent janitor at city hall. Mr. O'Brien has a high rating on the civil service list and has been temporarily employed as janitor at the hall for several months.

Signs on Buildings
If you want to erect a sign on top of a building it's up to you to see the inspector of buildings before you proceed to do so, otherwise you may have to pull down what you build. Inspector Connor has stopped quite a number of signs within the last few days and speaking of the matter today, Attorney Cummings, who has charge of that department, said that in order to avoid arguments all persons desirous of erecting signs on tops of buildings will be referred to the city insular committee of the board of trade.

WRESTLING CHAMPION

Gotch's Tip Revealed an Honest Man

Bobby Burns would say, "A man's a man for a' that," but Bobby had his wits grounded. It isn't so.

There was the case of Frank A. Gotch—the big wrestling champion—and it helps to prove the point. It gives us Exhibits A and B. This is Exhibit A:

Frank and a friend own a garage in Humboldt, Ia., a perfectly healthy garage, where one may get new tires punctured, or purchase gasoline, or negotiate a monkey wrench or a wrench.

And in the garage one between seasons day was Frank, clad in the glad benzine resistant of overalls and jumper—with an instrument of motorology gripped in his right mitt. Into the palace of gasoline and embryo lawsuits strolled a pair of out of towners.

"Mr. Gotch around?" they queried.

"Nope," Frank lied with the fine abandon.

"Well, well; we'd hoped to see him. Anyway, boy, we'll buy a few gallons of the Standard Oil juice you have."

"They bought," Frank filled the tank (fair measure) and then made change. They handed Gotch two bits by way of a tip for which the champ smiled gratefully.

"Gee, isn't it great to pull down this tip stuff?" he asked of a gaping friend.

"I tell you what," said Gotch as he surveyed the quarter and satisfied himself that the coin was good or his teeth were very bad. "I'm going over and buy a shave. This is shave money—and a tip."

Frank strolled into the basement barber shop and placed his noble jaw at the mercy of the knight of the keen blade.

It was a good job—worth 15 cents of any man's money—and with magnanimous spirit he hurried out, leaving the quarter in the barber's palm.

"Great day for us tipsters," quoth Gotch as he went home, satisfied with his success.

Now, that was Exhibit A, which isn't bad at all, but Exhibit B is where the G string sounds.

They are great hearted in their bucolic simplicity in Humboldt, U. S. A.

WILSON MEN WIN POINT BY DEFEATING UNIT RULE

Humphrey O'Sullivan Wants a Federal Department of Corporations Established

BALTIMORE, June 27.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey won a decisive victory in the democratic national convention here last night, when by a vote of 555½ to 435½ (not voting or absent, 33) his minority report to abrogate the unit rule was accepted over the majority report.

The vote followed a debate that was halted for 33 minutes by a demonstration for Wilson.

As the big clocks at either end of the hall began to point toward 11, the delegates grew restless and cries of "Vote, vote," came from all parts of the floor.

The debate continued until 10:55 p. m., when the roll was ordered called.

The whole debate had turned upon the situation in Ohio, where the congressional districts instructed their 18 delegates for Wilson, and where the democratic state convention, controlled by the Harmon forces, adopted a resolution binding the state delegation to vote as a unit according to the dictates of the majority of the delegates.

This majority was for Harmon.

The majority report from the committee on rules proposed to recognize the right of state conventions so to apply the unit rule. The minority report, urged by the Wilson people, proposed to abrogate the rule.

The vote was on the substitution of the minority, or pro-Wilson report for the majority report.

The adherents of Woodrow Wilson claimed last night that their candidate had made distinct gains during the day. They asserted, without giving details, that some of the Clark sentiment was turning toward the New Jersey governor, and Wilson men were in a more hopeful mood than at any time during the convention period.

"Dark horses" were being discussed everywhere by the leaders and delegates last night, but there appeared to be some difficulty in crystallizing sentiment as to which horse is darkest.

Senator John W. Kern of Indiana, Mr. Bryan's choice for temporary chairman of the convention and chairman of the committee drawing up the party platform, still appeared to hold the lead among the "dark horses."

The coalition of the Bryan and Wilson forces in the first fight of the convention, however, led to talk of the strength ultimately going to Wilson.

Prophesy Difficult

The one outstanding fact in the situation seemed to be the absolute impossibility of any candidate having a sufficient number of votes on the first ballot to nominate. The two-thirds rule prevailing in democratic conventions always makes predictions difficult.

Friends of Bryan virtually ceased to

boon him as a presidential candidate yesterday, though they were alert to take advantage of any psychological moments that might happen along. It was reported that many Bryan tactics and banners had arrived in town, but they were not distributed yesterday.

Mr. Bryan's followers warmly defended the course he has pursued in the convention, and declare he still is in a position to dictate the nominee. Mr. Bryan yesterday declined to accept the chairmanship of the platform committee, but his close friend, Senator Kern, was chosen in his place. Last night Mr. Bryan reported the platform as "coming along nicely."

It was said the platform would be ready for the convention by the time the nomination for president had been made. At Mr. Bryan's suggestion, it was determined not to present a platform until after the candidate had been named.

Parker Fight a Test

In Mr. Bryan's behalf it was said last night that his fight on Judge Parker for the temporary chairmanship was influenced largely by a desire to get a line on the different delegations. The Nebraska had not had an opportunity to make a poll, and it was said the chairmanship fight was his only means of learning at the outset just what was to be met and dealt with.

It was generally reported about the convention hall last night that a number of the western Clark delegations that cast their votes for Judge Parker for temporary chairman were beginning to "hear from home" on account of alleged desertion of the progressive cause. It also was common gossip that there was a good deal of feeling between the Bryan and Clark forces.

In the committee on credentials yesterday the Clark forces clearly controlled. The sitting delegates from South Dakota pledged to Wilson were unseated in favor of the Clark contestants, while six uninstructed delegates from the District of Columbia were unseated in favor of six instructed for Clark.

While yesterday's meeting of the Massachusetts delegation was in progress, the Massachusetts delegates unanimously adopted resolutions introduced by Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell, calling upon the convention committee on resolutions to provide in the platform a plank favoring the establishment of a federal department of corporations.

The resolution reads:

"Whereas, it appears that the political parties in these United States admit that a new source of danger threatens the fundamental principles of democratic government through the vast accumulation of wealth by the organization of corporations known as trusts; and, whereas,

"The political power of these corporations seems to be increasing to the extent of overshadowing the government itself, to the detriment of the rights of the people and the frequent perversion of the public will and public good; and, whereas,

"It appears to all thinking democrats that the salvation of the democratic principles of government can only be maintained through a proper, just and sane, legal and fair control of corporations; and, whereas,

"It also appears that no department of government now exists charged with the important duty of investigation, knowledge, supervision and administration of this vast economic problem of government; now, therefore, be it resolved,

"That, this, the Massachusetts delegation to the national democratic party present to the national convention of delegates a resolution that there be incorporated in the national democratic platform a plank or section committing the nominees of this convention to establish a new department of our national government, charged with the duties of investigation, knowledge, supervision and control of corporations or trusts; and that said department shall be known as the department of corporations.

"That said secretary should be a member of and have a seat and voice in the cabinet of the president of these United States;

"That said department shall be charged with all the powers pertaining to a proper administration of and execution of all laws enacted by the congress effecting corporations of whatever kind and shall work with an ever single to the progress, peace and well-being of the whole people and for the unbuilding and conservation of the fundamental principles of democratic government as laid down by the fathers of this great republic."

The proposed plank is:

"We stand pledged to the organization of a department of corporations presided over by a secretary, who shall have a seat in the president's cabinet with equal voice and equal vote of other secretaries of departments, which department and secretary shall be charged with the duty of investigation, knowledge and control of corporations with a view of administering all laws of the congress affecting corporations."

THE LATEST MODEL OF 1912.

This wonderful cooker is the greatest invention in the culinary line of 1912. It is not necessary to heat the food, as in all other cookers, but you put the food to be cooked in raw, and it is utterly impossible for the contents to scorch or burn. It holds six dishes at once and is the only cooker that bakes perfectly light bread, rolls, cakes, pies, cookies and puddings. It roasts beef, veal, mutton, pork, chicken and cooks all kinds of vegetables, whether boiled, baked, roasted, fried, stewed or steamed. Best of all, there is absolutely no evaporation or odor. The lining as well as the cooking vessels is of pure aluminum, which insures the cooker against rust.

AN AFRICAN JUMPER

Would be a Rival of
George Horine

If a Watussi should come to this country there would be much sorrow for George L. Horine, world's champion high jumper. What's a Watussi? Among other things, he is a negro of German East Africa whose athletic achievements outshine anything yet done by Horine and other champions of the civilized world.

In the National Geographic magazine is an article by Adolphus Frederick, duke of Mecklenburg, entitled "A Land of Giants and Pygmies," in which some interesting facts concerning the progress of the Watussi, inhabiting German East Africa, are given.

The worlds record for a running high jump was 5 feet 5½ inches until Horine recently set a new mark at 5 feet 7 inches. But a Watussi athlete would clear this height without the least difficulty. According to the Duke of Mecklenburg he would not consider himself in a real contest until the rod were placed nearly two feet higher. In reference to the athletes of the Watussi the Duke of Mecklenburg writes as follows: "In his experience while visiting this tall and well made people of almost ideal physique, who range in height from 5 feet 11½ inches to 7 feet 2½ inches.

"The following days were devoted to sports and athletic exercises, of which the high jumping of the young Watussi was a most remarkable feature.

"A line which could be raised or lowered at will was stretched between two slender trees standing on an incline. The athletes had to run up to this line and jump from a small termite heap a foot in height. Despite these unfavorable conditions, exhibitions were given which would place all European efforts in the shade. The best jumpers—slender, but splendid figures, with an almost ideal height of 2.20 meters (5 feet 3 inches), and young boys made the relatively no less wonderful performance of 1.50 to 1.60 meter (5 feet)."

The termite heap from which the Watussi jump is a spongy ant mound and is but a handicap to the jumping, according to Mecklenburg. The flowers given by the German explorer indicated that the Watussi have not only a shade of Horine in color, but several shades in jumping.

HELD A BANQUET

JUDGE, JURORS AND COURT OFFICERS ENJOYED THEMSELVES

The jurors, about 30, who have been doing duty for the past 12 weeks at the local court house, with several invited guests, assembled at Page's restaurant last evening and enjoyed a very appetizing supper, after which short speeches were made by several of those present. The affair proved a very happy one, and was greatly enjoyed by the men who have been so close during the term of court.

Those who attended the affair were: Judge Stevens of Stoneham, Deputy Sheriff Edward W. Clark of Lowell, Martin J. Courtney of Lowell, George B. Stiles of Lowell, William P. ## APPLGATE PITCHED FOR LOWELL

Showed to Good Advantage, Though Haver-
hill Won, 3 to 0

HAVERHILL, June 27.—The Lowell champs came to town yesterday and were defeated by the locals by the score of 3 to 0 in one of the best games seen here this season. Both teams presented new men on the mound. Lowell's pitcher in Applgate who pitched his first game of the season in a Lowell uniform, and he did good work. Haverhill's new one answers to the name of Johnson, and while the champs got eight hits from his delivery he kept them well scattered.

For three innings it was a great pitchers' battle, neither side scoring, but in the fourth Haverhill broke the string of ciphers and sent two men over the pan. Young died out. Cross went out on a grounder. Bouttes to McGowan. Campbell singled to right, Campbell worked the delay steal successfully and White walked. Pratt got a two-bagger to right and two runs came home. The last hit should have been fielded by De Groat, but he again demonstrated his weakness on ground balls with the result that the hit which ought to have been a single went for an extra base hit Johnson fanned.

In the seventh Haverhill got another. Pratt died out to Magee, who made a brilliant catch. Johnson died to De Groat. Courtney doubled to left. Carney was hit by a pitched ball. Matthews walked, and there were three on. Young hit a slow one to Loneragan and Courtney scored the play to first being impossible. Cross died to Clemens. The score:

DIAMOND NOTES

Lowell will play a double-header with Lynn at Spalding park tomorrow, first game at two o'clock.

Herbert White, of the city of Lowell, who played with the local New England team at the opening of the season, played with Haverhill yesterday and put up a good game.

Keating of Lawrence won another game yesterday.

Tyler won his game for Boston Nationals yesterday.

Joe Wood got the better of Walter Johnson in a pitchers' duel yesterday. The game was a beauty and only seven hits were made by both teams. Boston getting four and Washington the rest.

The Red Sox look good on the top of the American league ladder.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Independents of North Billerica would like to hear from some strong team for a game Saturday, June 27th, to be played at North Billerica. Address communications to Manager, Box 265, North Billerica.

The Dodgers defeated the Crimson A. C. Saturday by the score of 13 to 11 in an 11-inning contest. The Dodgers will go to West Chelmsford and play the strong Reds Saturday, June 29th.

The Beachmonts would like to play the C. M. A. C. J. P. S., or Shedd Park team for Saturday, June 29th.

The Bleachery A. A. would like to play some team Saturday, Y. M. C. A. preferred. They have arranged games with Tyngsboro, Grantville and Waketon. Send all challenges to the Lowell Bleachery, or through this paper.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team will line up against their old rivals, the Y. M. C. E. team, at Washington park, Saturday afternoon. Battery for the Y. M. C. A. will be Riley and Gannon.

Owing to a cancellation the Bellevue are without a game for Saturday and would like to hear from some fast 17-18 year old teams. The Crimson A. C. preferred.

St. Anne's church will play the High street church Saturday at Mountain Rock.

It is expected that the Manhattan and South Ends will soon clash. The supporters of both are anxious to get them together.

The Giant and Two Midget Members

One of the most amusing spectacles were taken in, but still they stuck to aboard the Finland, which left New York June 14 with the American Olympic team bound for Sweden, was the constant companionship of the giant Ralph Rose of California and the two to be closer friends than ever. THE HANDS ARE THE GREATEST NECESSITY IN THE
BOXING GAME AT PRESENT

After all, the hands are the thing. Without them the ideal fighting face or the perfect fighting build is as naught. And with them the head, the power and all the other requisites of the successful ring artist can have but secondary consideration.

Battling Nelson, who has stopped more battery charges than any fighter of a decade, had to go into temporary retirement not very long ago because his maulers gave out. He banged Sammy Trost so often on the head at Springfield, O., recently that the bones of his crippled punishers could not stand the strain after ten rounds, and he had to stall out the rest of the fight. Just imagine the damage having to quit on account of his hands! Talk about the irony of fate! Most of us pictured the batterer sprawled out over five feet and a half of canvas, knocked "dead" by a punch. That seemed the plausible exit of Nelson from the game. We figured he couldn't stand the walloppings forever, even though he "ain't hardly human."

Hugo Kelly, the Italian middleweight of Chicago, fought Eddie McGourly at South Bend, Ind., recently and took a beating. The battle was the first go for Hugo in months. He had been nursing a pair of bad hands. Those same hands possibly kept Kelly from a title. He gave Papke more trouble than any fighter outside of Ketchel. The Italian was a clever fellow, with a cutting left hand, who administered more punishment than he received. But he had to take periodical layoffs on account of tender hands, which were always getting hurt.

Until he injured his hitters Frank Erne was champion of them all in the lightweight division. He was the possessor of a terrific punch, and many of the bones in both hands were splintered at one time or another, causing him much agony. While he was generally willing to put all his steam into a blow, despite the pain he knew it would bring in his later career he didn't take as many chances. Consequently a great deal of his effectiveness was lost.

Another fighter whose period of money making within the ropes was lessened by his hands failing him was Bob Fitzsimmons. Bob, of course, was old enough to quit when knocked out by Bill Lang three years ago, but he could have parleyed with the gloves for at least a year longer but for his fighting apparatus. It is remarkable, however, that Fitz's hands lasted as long as they did, for he was a terrific hitter.

If Bob Moha fails to top the middleweight belt he may attribute his failure in large measure to weak hands. For the build of him and the strength, Bob has unusually frail hands.

SOME OF THE "DON'TS" THAT MAY GUIDE PROSPECTIVE
BASEBALL PLAYERS

Don't try to pitch without first getting control.
Don't imitate—be natural.
Don't try to beat the batter.
Don't lose your nerve.
Don't forget that there are eight others in the game.
Don't think because you are young the other players are palling against you.
Don't fail to cover first base.
Don't blame individual players if they lose a game.
Don't try to strike out all the batters.

Rube Marquard, Giants' Star Twirler,
Sensation of Pitching World

Besides being the sensation of the pitching world this season, Rube Marquard, the Giants' star twirler, is also doing some great work with the willow and is one of the leading boxmen in the batting line.

PRIZEFIGHTERS OF THE FUTURE TO DO THEIR TRAINING
IN AEROPLANES

"Prizefighters of the future will do most of their training in aeroplanes."

This remarkable and revolutionary statement was made recently by Kid McCoy, the pugilist, who formerly held the middleweight and welterweight championships.

"Indulgence in aviation is a splendid way of training," announced McCoy after he had navigated a five mile course through the air in a borrowed aeroplane.

"It quickens every sense. The flier must be on the alert all the time. He must be strong too. Every one can see the immense possibilities of getting pure, fresh air when one is about a mile up in the sky. No germs, no dust, no vitiated atmosphere, no nothing."

"Some fighters may never get any nearer heaven than the 10,000 foot altitude mark, but even that has its compensations. They would probably be lonesome anyhow."

McCoy has written to Champion Jack Johnson explaining the usefulness of the aeroplane, but the Ethiopian bruiser has not yet got beyond the automobile stage.

FOUND GUILTY OF LARCENY MAN WAS SENT TO JAIL

Sentence in an Assault Case Suspended—Other Cases in Police Court Today

Frank Mundry was arraigned before Judge John J. Pickman in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with two counts of larceny. In the first count he was charged with the larceny of $2 from Herbert A. Simmons of the J. B. Currier Co., under-takers in Prescott street, and in the second count with the larceny of $3 from Michael McMullen, a clerk in a saloon in Gorham street. The man admitted his guilt and with tears in his eyes begged for mercy and said that if he had not been for drink he would never have done what he did. His plea for clemency was a good one and the court suspended sentence but after Probation Officer Slattery had telephoned to Lawrence and learned that the man had been convicted several times in that city for larceny, Mundry was sentenced to three months in jail.

Mundry belongs in Lawrence and has a wife and two children there. He came to this city several days ago and wandered his way to the J. B. Currier Co.'s establishment in Prescott street and told Mr. Simmons that there was going to be a christening at his home and he wanted several hacks. He said he had a check which he was going to cash but wanted $2 in order to do some shopping before the check was presented to the bank. Mr. Simmons advanced him the money. From there he went to the undertaking parlors of Michael D. McDonough Sons and said that his infant had died and he wanted Mr. McDonough to care for his child and tried to purchase a casket. He told the same story there and said that he did not not have anything but a check in his pocket and asked the loan of a dollar. Mr. McDonough gave the man the money and inquired where the child was. Mundry said that it was at 32 William street and Mr. McDonough accompanied the man to William street. When number 32 on William street was passed Mr. McDonough asked the man if he knew where the body was and after the defendant had conversed with one of his fellow-countymen he admitted that he was trying to mulct the money from Mr. McDonough and returned the dollar.

Mundry then went into a saloon in Gorham street and after having a few drinks with a friend, told a tale of woe to the bartender, Michael McMullen. Mr. McMullen knew Mundry's companion and after he heard the sympathetic story of the loss of the child dug into his pocket and produced $3 which Mundry placed in his jeans. In the meantime the police had learned that there was a man around the city who was obtaining money under false pretences and Capt. Brown, Inspector Walsh and Dwyer started on the trail and about 7:30 o'clock located Mundry in the saloon in Gorham street and placed him under arrest. Mundry admitted that he received the money from Messrs. Simmons and McMullen and also that he had received a dollar from Mr. McDonough but returned it afterwards. He said that he came from Lawrence and had been drinking and would not have committed the act if he had been sober. The court was inclined to be lenient with the defendant and suspended sentence in order to learn something of the man's record. Probation Officer Slattery telephoned to Lawrence and learned that the defendant had been arrested in that city five times for larceny and convicted, and was at one time found guilty of being drunk. Mundry put up a pitiful plea and, taking his coat off, showed his sun-burned and blistered arms in order to demonstrate that he had been working on a farm of late and had been very industrious since he was released from jail. He was sentenced to three months in jail.

Assault and Battery
Thomas Papin was charged with assault and battery on Wilfred Aubrey and admitted that he was guilty but after the court had considered the case sentence was suspended for three weeks.

Stole a Pint of Milk
John E. Whitaker was charged with the larceny of a pint of milk valued at four cents and a bottle valued at five cents, the property of Charles D. Carv, who conducts a store in Appleton street. According to the testimony the defendant was passing through Appleton street about six o'clock this morning and percolated a bottle of milk. Prince Turcotte, who resides in a tenement over the store, saw the man take the bottle and followed him and subsequently Whitaker was placed under arrest. He was sentenced to one month in jail.

Offended an Officer
Last night when Wagon Officer Patrick Frawley was sitting on the veranda of his house, Andrew Spellacy came along and used very abusive language and intimated that he was Officer Frawley did not have his uniform on he would not make an arrest. Mr. Frawley arose from his chair and going into the street grabbed Spellacy and took him to the nearest patrol box and had him booked for drunkenness. The defendant will spend the next four months in the bastille in Thorndike street.

Drunk Offenders
Joseph Taylor, charged with being drunk, was sentenced to ten days in jail. There was one first offender who was fined $2 and five simple drunks were released.

DEPOT NEWS

VACATION TRAVEL NOW ON IN FULL SWING

The vacation season is now on in full swing and every day during the last week there has been a large exodus of Lowell people leaving for other parts. The greater portion of those leaving Lowell at the present time are going east, Old Orchard beach, Maine, being the destination of the great majority. The departure of so many at the same time has kept the employees of the local depot on the jump and this morning the baggage room was packed with trunks and suit cases and the majority were tagged for different parts of Maine. Owing to the increased business at the station during the summer months, the men are obliged to work through the season. Thirty immigrants arrived at the local depot this morning at 9:45 o'clock, the train being 55 minutes late. All left for other places, many going to Lawrence.

Upon inquiry at the station it was learned that the new time schedule is working fairly and that it seems to be giving general satisfaction. Last night at the depot, there was one of the largest crowds that ever assembled in that vicinity in the evening. One man was heard to remark: "Well has Teddy visited us again?" We were told that the cause of the big attendance was due to the fact that many couples were to start on their wedding trips on the 3:15 train. Owing to the law governing vehicles, a sign is to be placed on the Thorndike street side of the main driveway at the Middlesex street station, notifying all drivers that teams must enter from the other side.

The Saturday after the Fourth is "Dividend Quarter Day" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

GOVERNOR HADLEY REFUSED NOMINATION

When Taft Men Made the Proposition

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., June 27.—Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri today confirmed the statements of Col. Roosevelt and Comptroller Prendergast of New York that Taft leaders had offered at Chicago to seat the Roosevelt delegates from Washington and Texas if Roosevelt would consent to the nomination of Gov. Hadley or some other third man. Gov. Hadley passed through here today on his way to fill a Chautauqua engagement.

"This proposition was made to me and I understood that it also was made to Col. Roosevelt," said Gov. Hadley. "I refused to consider it unless it first had the approval of Mr. Roosevelt, as I was for him for the nomination and no one else. I was told afterward that Col. Roosevelt had refused his consent."

HENRY FERNALD

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Electrician Henry C. Fernald, of the fire department, had a narrow escape from being badly hurt, while responding to an alarm from box 16 shortly before one o'clock this morning, but fortunately he and the horse which he was driving escaped injury.

Since the automobile patrol went out of commission Mr. Fernald has been carrying 15 blankets of the protective company for use in case of emergency and his wagon was heavily laden.

In passing along Central street in the vicinity of Union street the truck was ahead of him and he turned to the left and his horse struck a barrel which was placed at the end of an excavation for a sewer pipe leading to one of the houses in the vicinity.

When the horse struck the barrel it went down on its knees. Following Electrician Fernald's carriage was a vehicle driven by Paul Keyes and when Mr. Fernald's horse dropped the horse driven by Mr. Keyes got one of its feet over the rear axle of the electrician's wagon.

Mr. Fernald jumped from his wagon and assisted his horse to its feet and later helped extricate Mr. Keyes' horse. The alarm from box 16 was sent in at 12:35 o'clock and was for a fire in a mattress in a house at 70 Chapel street. The fire was extinguished before any material damage was done.

Lowell leader, No. 618, L. O. O. M. held a very largely attended meeting last night in their hall, Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street, with Dictator James N. McKenna presiding. The initiatory degree was conferred on a class of 43 candidates and 27 applications were received. Deputy Supreme Organizer A. W. Hayden was present and gave a very interesting report of the order and how it is flourishing in New England. After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. The lodge voted to keep open house next meeting night, July 3.

LOCAL POLICE

ARE LOOKING FOR AN ALLEGED FAKE MUSIC DEALER

It is reported that a fake music dealer is operating in this city and has already swindled several dollars from people who subscribe for music sheets. The party it is said charges $1.50 for a subscription for popular music, promising his customers they will get the music six months before it is cut on the market. The subscription stands for one year and the subscriber, according to the agent, will receive about $10 worth of sheet music. The Nashua police are on the lookout for a party who a few months ago successfully worked the same game in the New Hampshire city. Several local people gave their $1.50 a couple of months ago and are still waiting for their music.

ADVERTISING AGENCIES MEET
PITTSBURGH, June 27.—A committee appointed at Dallas, Texas, by the Associated Advertising Clubs of America met here yesterday and organized the National Association of Advertising Agencies of America. An executive committee was elected and a membership committee of nine appointed to elect members throughout the country to attend the first annual meeting, which will be held in this city September 10.

MARTIN H. MAGUIRE AND MISS McNULTY

Were Married Last Night
---Many Weddings

Mr. Martin H. Maguire, the well known tenor soloist, who formerly resided in this city, but who is at present engaged in the jewelry business in North Attleboro, and Miss Anna McNulty, a popular young lady of the Sacred Heart parish, were united in marriage at the parochial residence of the Sacred Heart church yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. L., who is a close friend of the groom, both having attended the parish school in North Attleboro. The bride was accompanied by her sister, Miss Marie McNulty, as bridesmaid and the best man was Mr. Frank Maguire.

The bridesmaid looked beautiful in a pale blue gown and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

After the ceremony the bride and groom repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mathias McNulty, West London street, where a reception was held and a sumptuous wedding supper served.

A pleasing feature of the affair was the return home of Edward McNulty, brother of the bride, who for the past several months has been located at Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He arrived in Lowell Tuesday and plans to stay here for the summer. His return completed the Glendale quartet of which Mr. Maguire and Mr. McNulty are members and they rendered several selections. Others to contribute to the musical program were Mrs. Maguire, mother of the groom, Mr. Thomas Hanly, John Devlin, Frank Maguire, Miss Maguire, Frank McGinnis, John Ryan, Fred Maherty and Walter Flaherty and Little Cyril Tully. The latter gave several selections that were greatly enjoyed.

Rev. George Fitzgibbon, of St. Mary's church, North Attleboro, at which Mr. Maguire is leading soloist, was present and Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. L., pastor and Rev. Bernard McElreath, M. I., assistant pastor of the Sacred Heart parish, called during the evening and after extending their congratulations, Fr. Smith, in recognition of the many favors of the groom in taking part in church affairs in the past, presented him and his bride with beautiful gold medals of the Sacred Heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Maguire were the recipients of a very beautiful present. They left the home of the bride for the depot about 9 o'clock in a large touring car, and were accompanied by the guests of the evening, who rode in hacks. Upon arrival at the depot, despite the fact that many other couples were there to take the train the bride and groom were the first to be seen.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuade left for a honeymoon trip, which will include New York and Atlantic City, and will be at home at 22 Newhall street, after Aug. 1st.

McDONALD-QUINLAN
Miss Mabel J. McDonald of Westford and Mr. Morris L. Quinlan of Everett were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the parochial residence of St. John's church, North Chelmsford. Rev. Fr. Schofield performed the ceremony. Miss Alice McDonald was bridesmaid and Mr. Daniel A. Quinlan was best man. The bride was most attractively gowned in white silk, trimmed with shadow lace, and carried white bride's roses. Her sister was gowned in pink silk and carried pink roses.

After the marriage ceremony, the couple returned to the bride's home, where from 50 to 75 relatives and intimate friends had already assembled. The house was profusely decorated with laurel in blossom, roses and wild flowers.

The reception that followed was marked with good wishes and congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan were assisted in receiving by the best man and bridesmaid and by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angus McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Quinlan of Tyngsboro. Following the reception, a luncheon was served, and the company sought the lawn, and a most enjoyable time was enjoyed until the young people left early in the evening for Lowell by automobile, where they started upon their wedding journey. They will be at home later at 15 Oakland avenue, Everett.

MORAN-SULLIVAN
Lowell people attended the wedding of Miss Grace A. Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Catherine F. Sullivan, of 116 Belmont street, and George B. Moran of 157 Lowell street, Somerville, which took place yesterday at St. Catherine's church, Somerville.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Frithingham Grammar and High schools in Charlestown and the Massachusetts Normal Art school, for several years has been a teacher of drawing at the Norcross and Gaston schools, South Boston, and Warren Evening school, Charlestown. She is an active member of the Spring Hill Catholic club of Somerville.

The groom is sub-master of the Elliot school, Boston. He graduated from Holy Cross college in 1906 and was manager of the varsity track team of 1905-06.

Nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. James J. O'Brien, pastor of St. Catherine's church. The altar was decorated with potted plants, ferns and roses. The bride was gowned in white crepe de chene, over white netting, trimmed with white lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet. Her sister, Miss Alice M. Sullivan, who was bridesmaid, wore turquoise blue crepe de chene, decked with trimmings, a picture hat and carried an arm bouquet of roses. Joseph H. O'Toole, of New York, who was the groom's classmate at Holy Cross, was best man.

The ushers were Walter B. Sullivan of Somerville, brother of the bride; John A. Moran, of Winthrop, brother of the groom; Dr. J. Edward Dempsey of Worcester, Martin F. Connelly and Edward J. Connelly of Boston, John A. McGinnis of Everett, a wedding march was rendered by Paul V. Donovan of Rockland, and the Misses Mary A. and Grace K. Roche of North Easton, cousins of the bride, and Miss Katherine V. Hennessy of Lowell, cousin of the groom, were the soloists.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, which was decorated with potted plants, ferns and roses. Among the guests were John H. McGrath, principal of the Elliot school, and James O. Condy, editor of the Charlestown Enterprise. Mr. and Mrs. Moran will spend the summer in travel and in the fall will return to Somerville to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Moran are very well known in Lowell and visits here quite frequently. In the splendid array of gifts, several handsome presents were sent by Lowell people.

Cummings, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Nellie Brown, and the bridesmaid was attended by Mr. Morris Staveley, a brother. Miss Brown was gowned in white batiste, with white satin trimmings, and carried white roses. The bridesmaid wore white marquisette, with pink trimmings and carried pink roses. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the families and immediate friends, and a luncheon was served during the reception. After August 1 Mr. and Mrs. Staveley will be at home to friends at 18 Middlesex park.

GINGRAS-LAJEUNESSE
A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Louis church when Mr. Henri Gingras, superintendent of the Simplex Co. of Montreal, Que., and Miss Aurice Lajeunesse were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. R. A. Fournier. The young couple were attended by Messrs. Joseph Lajeunesse and Arthur Jodoin, who were the father and cousin of the bride, respectively. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of cream satin, trimmed with Irish lace and pearls, and wore a veil caught up with white roses, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. At the offertory Miss Clarence Sinaud rendered Gounod's "Ave Maria." At the close of the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, in Ennals street, where a dainty wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives, among the guests being relatives from Montreal, Marlboro and Lynn. This evening a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jodoin, 825 Lakeview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Gingras, who were the recipients of many gifts, will leave tomorrow for Montreal, Que., where they will make their home.

THE LOWELL "COPS" WON BY A SCORE OF 13 TO 12

Metropolitan Park Police Team Made Strong Finish in Yesterday's Game

The Lowell police baseball team played the Metropolitan Park police team at Spaulding park yesterday, and the locals won by the score of 13 to 12. Strange to relate, when the two teams met here in the early part of the season Lowell won by the same score. Lowell got the jump and had the lead all the way, though several times it looked as if the visitors were going to pull out on top.

The game was one of the best in police series and many brilliant plays were pulled off. "Big Jack" Sullivan started to work for Lowell, and for five innings he held the visitors hitless. They could not seem to solve the riddle of the big lad, but when they did get him, they did some damage. While the visitors got two runs in the second, they came as the result of errors, but in the sixth session the cops won on the beach got eight hits and, these with an error by Lynch, gave them eight runs. In the seventh inning McCarthy went in for Lowell and held the visitors to two hits and as many runs.

In the first inning Lowell got to Truesdale, who by the way on his last visit here fanned 17 Lowell men, and pined up an even half dozen runs. Kelly singled and stole second and third and came home on an error by Sheehan who dropped the throw to get him. Lynch singled and stole and he scored when Kenney hit one that Riley dropped. "Beet Trust" Drevett fanned the breeze. Manager Donovan doubled to left and Kenney trotted home. Sullivan advanced the boss to third on a sacrifice. Clark singled and Donovan scored and Clark came home when Connors singled to Riley. The latter made a poor throw and "Jerry's brother" came all the way. Mike Winn ended the agony by fanning.

In the fifth Lowell got seven that came something like this: Kenney singled, Drevett singled and Kenney went to third. Donovan hit to Mason, who made a mess of things, and Kenney tallied and Drevett took third. Donovan stole second and Sullivan singled, scoring Drevett. Donovan came home on a sacrifice hit. Clark hit to Sheehan, who dropped to look the ball over and all were safe. Connors was there with the sacrifice fly and Sully crossed the pan amid the cheers of the fans, who were filled to death to see the custodian of the square stretch his pins. Winn went out, Murphy to Mason. Kelly got a scratch hit, Lynch singled and Kelly went to third. Dan then published second. Kenney for his second time in the inning singled and Clark and Kelly counted. That was all for Drevett closed the inning on a grounder to Murphy. That was all the tallying Lowell did.

Well the other fellows got two in the second like this: Jack fanned, Mason, the first man, but the manager dropped the third off and to get Jake's goat all the more he threw high to first and the runner went to second. He took third when Lynch lost Jack's throw to get him napping. Riley was hit by one of Sully's "outs" and after limping down to first he stole second. Schudel hit one that Lynch lost and Mason and Riley trotted home on two gift runs. Dineen got on through the courtesy of Second Baseman Drevett and stole second but there was no more scoring in the inning as Sheehan and McCarthy were easy outs.

Though a few spectacular plays were pulled in the meantime there was no more fun until the sixth when the visitors accumulated the double quartet of runs. McCarthy started off with a single, the first hit for his team. Truesdale got a triple to right and Mac came home. Hits were then made by Murphy, Schudel, Dineen and Sheehan and when McCarthy came up for the second time in the inning and got on on an error and Pictler Truesdale got his second three-bagger intermingled with a fine home run by Mason, eight runs were scored. That was enough for the big fellow on the mound for Lowell and McCarthy went in to work. In the seventh the Metropolitan team got one on an error by Kelly and a hit by Schudel, and in the eighth they got one more on hit by Sheehan and an error by Drevett. In the ninth both teams went out in order and the Lowell fans were a happy bunch. The fine playing of Biggie behind the bat for the visitors and the fast work of Murphy and Mason, who executed two double plays, were features of the game.

The score by innings:
Metropolitan ... 0 0 0 0 1 1 0-12

Two base hits—Donovan. Three base hits—Truesdale 2. Home run—Mason. Sacrifice hits—Connors. Double plays—Murphy and Mason 2. Stolen bases—Kelly 2, Lynch 2, Drevett, Sullivan, Connors, Schudel, Dineen, Truesdale 2, Riley, Sheehan. Bases on balls—Sullivan, Truesdale 2. Struck out—By Sullivan 1 in 6 innings; Truesdale 1, McCarthy 1. Hits—Off Sullivan 3 in 6 innings, off McCarthy 2 in 2 innings. Wild pitch—Sullivan, Truesdale. Hit by pitched ball—Riley. Passed balls—Blige. First base on error—Metropolitan 1, Lowell 1. Left on bases—Lowell 4, Metropolitan 7. Umpires—Shea and Harding. Time—24. 10m. Attendance—200.

Outside of the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore---Bryan Making a Speech

DELEGATES ENTERING CONVENTION HALL

AN UNDERWOOD BOOMER

W. J. BRYAN ADDRESSING CONVENTION

BALTIMORE, June 27.—There was considerable delay in filling the Fifth regiment armory for the first meeting of the democratic national convention. Long lines of delegates and spectators formed at each of the entrances and proceeded forward slowly owing to the care with which the ticket takers scrutinized the slips presented by those desiring to enter. William Jennings Bryan received an enthusiastic reception when he rose to address the convention in opposition to the election of Judge Parker as temporary chairman.

His speech was well received, delegates and visitors listening with close attention. M. F. Kilgore of Alabama, an Underwood boomer, attracted much attention because of the stuffed rooster that he wore on his hat.

STEAMER STRUCK A DREDGE AND ENGINEER WAS KILLED

600 Passengers Transferred in Small Boats to Another Steamer

CAHAIS, Me., June 27.—Low tide averted a serious accident today when the steamer Grand Manan, carrying 600 excursionists, struck a dredge in the St. Croix river and was damaged. The second engineer of the dredge, James Carey of East Boston, Mass., who was asleep in the captain's room, was crushed to death. No one else on either the dredge or the steamer was injured. After running against and sinking the dredge the Grand Manan, began leaking and the passengers were transferred to another steamer in small boats. There was little danger of sinking, however, as the river was at low tide. A misunderstanding of signals is believed to have been responsible for the accident. The Grand Manan was running to St. Stephens with a party of members of the Thistle Athletic association and their friends, after a moonlight sail when the dredge was struck and sunk.

A JAIL SENTENCE FOR NELLIE BLY

Given 20 Days and Fined
$3000 for Contempt

NEW YORK, June 27.—"Nellie Bly" in private life Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman, formerly a noted traveller and a newspaper woman, and now owner of the bankrupt Ironclad Manufacturing company of Brooklyn, was sentenced by United States Judge Mayer in Brooklyn yesterday to a term of 20 days in jail and fined $3000. A stay was granted to July 1.

Mrs. Seaman was found guilty of contempt of court in connection with a creditors' inquiry begun after a federal judge in Brooklyn declared the company bankrupt. Attorneys for creditors sought to bring out that the American Steel Barrel company, another concern operated by Mrs. Seaman and said to be valued at $2,000,000, was a subsidiary of the Ironclad. Mrs. Seaman refused to produce certain books. Several months ago Mrs. Seaman was fined $500 for contempt.

SAN FRANCISCO WOMEN

Are Playing Prominent Part in Politics

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Some striking sentiments as to the part played by women in the national life have been expressed by state presidents before the General Federation of Women's clubs in session here.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York, speaking of the club women of New York, said:

"In the Empire state women are becoming more alive to their responsibilities day by day. They not only are cleaning up the alleys and backyards but the municipal government and the laws of the state."

"They are interested in all things that affect women and children," she said.

As representative of West Virginia, Mrs. John E. Ruhl of Clarkstown said:

"It Dr. Wiley was of more influence than any other organization in executing the pure food laws then this federation has improved the national digestion and the national morals."

"Our men club have climbed so high on the ladder of fame unless women had straddled the ladder," said Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith of Richmond, Ky., in a tribute to the women of that state.

CERTIFIED "AD"
IS BOUND TO COME ACCORDING TO ALFRED MCCANN

SAGAMORE BEACH, June 27.—"We have certified milk and certified checks. The day of the certified 'ad' is at hand," said Alfred McCann in discussing publicity and public welfare, the principal topic for consideration at today's session of the Sagamore sociological conference. Mr. McCann scored dishonest advertisements and said:

"Advertising to attain its noblest possibilities must begin with a conscience. Happily, advertising men are beginning to realize the abuses to which their profession has been subjected and are beginning to reform from the inside but the reform will be successful only to the extent which the manufacturer lends his co-operation."

Other speakers were George French of Boston, Levy Richard of Boston and William Freeman of New York.

A discussion of matters growing out of the Lawrence textile strike was scheduled for this afternoon.

MRS. WM. H. TAFT
WITH FRIEND TO ATTEND THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Mrs. William H. Taft went to Baltimore today, expecting to see the democratic convention choose the man who is to oppose her husband for the presidency of the United States. Mrs. Taft had as a guest Mrs. Hugh Wallace, wife of a delegate. Seats had been reserved for them.

DOCTOR'S BOYISH FACE REVEALS SKIN RENEWER

I heard the other day the story of the physician with so admirable a skin that all his women patients asked the secret. He told one, who generously told others, that, knowing the remarkable absorbent property of ordinary mercurized wax, he conducted this substance would make an excellent complexion renewer and preserver. Knowing the wax could not harm the skin, he began using it after shaving. He soon observed that the old, weathered, colorless cuticle was being gradually absorbed and replaced by young, healthy skin. This was the simple secret of the silver-haired doctor with the boyish face.

The secret became public property. Now women everywhere use mercurized wax, applying it nightly like cream, washing it off mornings—continuing until the complexion is entirely renovated. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any drugist's, will banish the worst complexion.

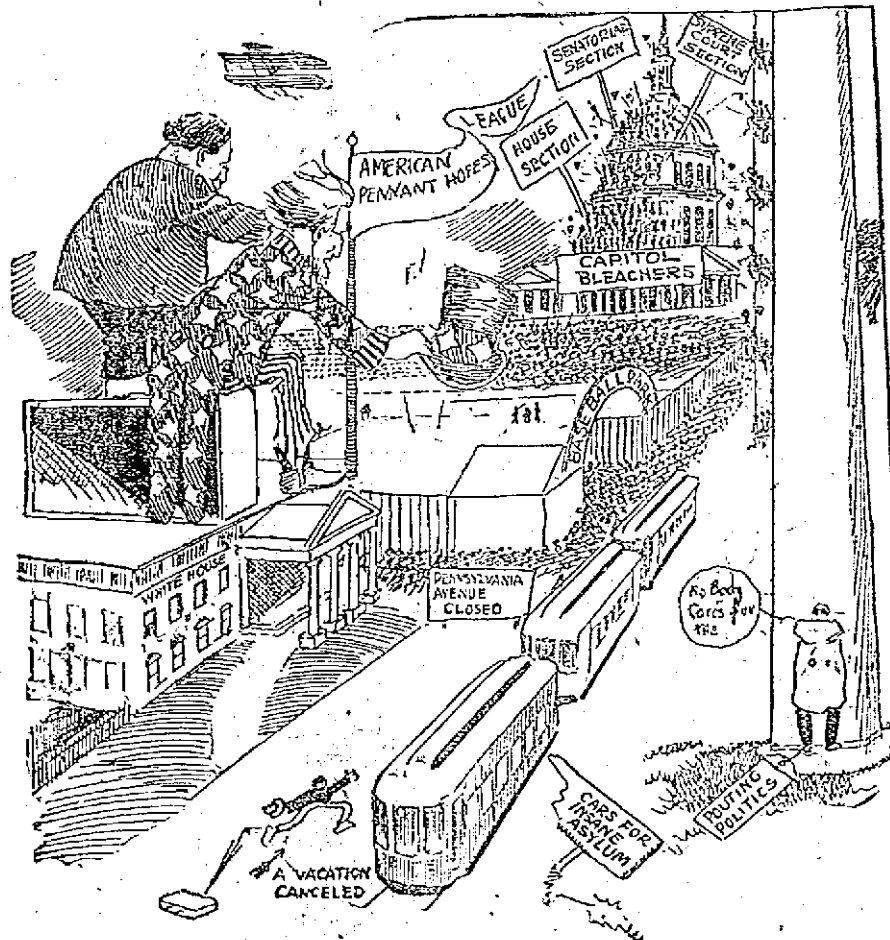

Another valuable rejuvenator used by this doctor was a wrinkle-remover and preventive in the form of a face bath, made by dissolving an ounce of salicylic in a half-pint witch hazel. This also has become famous.—Aurelia in Fashion Review.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION

Valedictory Address

The valedictory address, written and delivered by William Warren Noonan, on the topic, "The Greater Service of the Greater Man," was as follows:

Ralph Waldo Emerson says, "The genius of our life is not in the individuals, and will not have any individual great except through the general." A great man does not wake up some fine morning and say, "I am full of life, I will go to sea and find an Antarctic continent; I will ransack botany and find a new food for man." No, but he finds himself in the river of the thoughts and events, forced onward by the force and necessities of his contemporaries.

None of us realize to what great a degree the world is indebted to the men who, often with no recognition of their service, have observed the needs of their times and have labored to invent something to meet those needs.

Who stops to think when he uses tea, ink and paper, who has brought these things within the reach of every home? Who remembers the work of the inventor of printing when he sees his well-stocked library?

With what freedom do we use and throw away pins and needles without thought of the inventor of the machines for making them. Yet not all of the names of those who have supplied our daily needs are unknown to us.

Elas flows saw millions of poor sewing women, toiling from day to day with "band and gusset and seam and gusset and band," and he set himself to make some machine to relieve them from this drudgery. To be sure he was denounced as the enemy of these women and was met with curses instead of blessings during the first years that followed the introduction of his wonderful invention. As we realize the value of his work in these days when a sewing machine is in almost every home, can we wonder that he was robbed of his patent and died a poor man, but he achieved greatness?

Ell Whitney saw the negroes toiling in the cotton fields of the south, patiently picking the fibres of the cotton from the seed, and he invented the cotton gin, which has had more influence on the wealth and industry of this country than any other machine constructed in America. Although he was robbed of his invention before he was able to secure a patent, nevertheless must not be classed among those who through service have become great?

In former years, grain was cut with the sickle and scythe. Imagine a man working in the vast wheat fields of the west with these implements and can you trust a day's work with the work accomplished by the reaper and you will see the marvelous results of the invention of Cyrus Hall McCormick. His agricultural machines have made western farms profitable and enabled the railroad to fill the west so rapidly. It is said that, owing to this invention, the line of civilization has moved westward thirty miles each year. His service, however, has met with the appreciation it deserves and his greatness is everywhere acknowledged.

Robert Fulton saw the need of better means of transportation, and he conceived the idea of the steamboat. Although many before him had failed in this undertaking, and he himself was ridiculed and laughed at, he succeeded, and thus laid the foundation of all the great steamship lines now in existence. Had this invention been made before the American Revolution on the Atlantic which Burke said prevented American representation in the English parliament would have been impossible.

Peter Cooper realized the old form of travel by the stage coach was slow and cumbersome and by taking advantage of Stephenson's invention, constructed from his own designs the first locomotive steam engine in this country. Men had doubted whether the United States would extend farther west than the Alleghenies, but the steam engine had solved their doubts.

Charles Goodyear spent the greater part of his life in experiments with rubber, trying to find some means by which it could be hardened and so made more useful. At last he succeeded in vulcanizing rubber. He not only spent all his money in developing his inventions, but he died insolvent and left his family heavily in debt.

Yet we win see the benefits of his work in the common use of hard rubber, must rise up and call him great. Electricity, once a cause of great fear and dread to men, has at last been conquered and made useful. Prof. Samuel Morse first conceived the idea of the telegraph. After many experiments he made the first successful recording machine, and after many fruitless efforts persuaded congress to construct the first telegraph lines in this country. When, however, the first message, "What hath God wrought," was flashed over the line from Washington to Baltimore, his great service to the world was acknowledged.

Professor Alexander Bell, the inventor of the telephone, Cyrus Field, who laid the first Atlantic cable, and Count Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, must be named among those who have done great service for their fellow-men, so great that it is impossible to say who has done the most for the world and the world has not failed to call them great.

Not can we omit from our list those who have devoted themselves to the relief of human suffering.

Doctor Morton, by the producing of artificial sleep, by the breathing of the vapor of ether, put an end to all suffering under the surgeon's knife.

When we think how many people have been relieved from agony by this wonderful discovery we wonder what greater deed can man do for his fellow-men than to save them from pain. The yellow fever, the scourge of the tropical countries, has been almost exterminated by the self-sacrificing of one man. To prove his theory that the mosquito carried the germ of this disease, Doctor Lazzar allowed himself to be bitten by a mosquito, was stricken with the fever and died. Since then the destruction of the mosquito has banished the dread disease.

Doctor Morton relieved men from pain. Doctor Lazzar gave up his life that other men might live. What greater gift can a man give to his fellow-men than his life?

These men and hundreds of others, who have been a help and blessing to mankind, have achieved greatness through service.

Let us, then, pay just tribute of greatness to them.

They have done their duty, not that they might benefit from it themselves, but that the world might be more prosperous and happy.

Members of the class of 1912, the time has come when the happy hours spent together in the Lowell high school must be only a pleasing recollection.

Whatever success we may attain in the years that are to come we shall owe in part to the training we have received in this our Alma Mater.

Therefore, let us try to pay the debt of gratitude which is due our principal and our teachers, who have worked zealously that we might become sharers of their knowledge, by striving to do valiant service for our fellow-men.

In this way only can we be a credit to our school and become loyal citizens of our city, our state, our country, and of the world.

The class officers are: President, Loring Russell Kew; vice presidents, Gertrude Weinbeck and Dana Edward Clark; secretary, Gladys Mary Cummings; treasurer, George Arthur Phelps.

Class Ode, Air, "Auld Lang Syne," Words by Bertha Elzabe Chapman.

The time has come when we must go from the school we hold so dear; Both pain and happiness we know, Now the parting day is here.

For well we know that days to come, What'er of joys they bring, Will ne'er be like those that have gone On light and happy wing.

Our lives have been surrounded here With watchful, loving care; With kind and faithful teachers near, Our burdens few to share.

Such friendships, too, as now abound, The love of cross-mates dear, In after life will not be found, To help us loads to bear.

No wonder, then, our hearts are sad To leave these friends so dear, Whose loving hearts and friendly ways Have made us happy here.

But happiness on sadness dwains, On this great day of ours, For, though the roses have their thorns,

The thorns, in turn, have flowers.

We always have been taught to feel That, if the rice we'd run And finish with an earnest zeal, The reward was sure to come.

So, now that this small victory won, If we have done our best, We'll face our lives with courage strong And leave with God the rest.

Finale: Holy Cross Commandery.
Sheehan's Pawtucket Orchestra.
Emil J. Borges, director.

MOODY SCHOOL
NOTABLE FEATURES AT THE CLOSING YESTERDAY

The graduation exercises at the Moody school yesterday afternoon were by far the best ever held at the school. The musical program was particularly good and the singing of Master Fletcher won great applause. Marlon Ryan in her piano solos showed good talent and execution. The trio by Alfred Fletcher, Alfred Daly, and Alfred Whitaker, was very creditable and highly enjoyed. They are three promising young vocalists, but Master Fletcher has the most wonderful voice of all. His voice is a light soprano of very high register. The other numbers, the recitations and compositions, were very good and the class odds by Vincent McCartlin was quite creditable for a boy of his years. School Committee Rogers made an appropriate address urging those who should not have a chance to go to the high school to continue their education in the evening schools.

Principal Green is planning to get a Victrola for the school but as yet he has not quite decided just what means he will adopt. The school needs something of the kind as the piano in the hall is not audible in all the rooms.

EXCITING TIME
EXPERIENCED BY TWO "FISHERMEN" FROM LOWELL

Two Lowell young men, Paul Bourque and Pamphile "Suse" Morin had quite an experience at Keyes pond, Ayer, last night, and they were almost forced to walk home. However, they reached Lowell and swore the next time they go fishing they will live an automobile instead of a horse.

The two young men left early yesterday afternoon with what they believed to be a horse hitched to their carriage. Their destination was Sandy pond, but when they reached Keyes pond, the animal absolutely refused to go any further, so the fishermen thought they would try their luck in that pond. After brinking the horse to a halt, which was done without the least trouble, they untied the animal and led it to a tree and set out for the pond.

As luck favored them they caught "steak" pond and two large perch. At 2 o'clock loaded as they were, with fish of course, they marched triumphantly to their horse which by the way had not slept a wink during all this time. While one was placing the big catch in the carriage the other one devoured to "hitch the goat" as he said, but the "goat" was not to be hitched, or at least not for some time. "Suse" was teasing the horse the best he could with pet names but without avail. Finally Paul, who knew all about horses made up his mind he would "hitch the goat" or know the reason why, and he did after a half hour's work. He succeeded in harnessing the horse by tying bits of hay around the bit. But as there was no hay around the place he walked fully a half mile to the next farm house. The fishermen reached home at 5 o'clock this morning without losing one of the two perch they hooked. What they did on the road could not be learned but it is presumed they stopped at every farm house for a little hay.

WAR DANCE, KICKAPOOS, TONIGHT.
ENJOYED OUTING
PUPILS OF POLISH SCHOOL AT MOUNTAIN ROCK TODAY

The pupils of the Polish parochial school of High street are today enjoying themselves at Mountain Rock. The boys and girls, numbering about 200, left at 9 o'clock this morning on two special electric cars, the starting point being opposite the school in High street. They were accompanied by Rev. Fr. Ogonowski, pastor, Rev. Fr. Aleknotch and the nuns who are in charge of the school.

At Mountain Rock the children had a splendid time, enjoying all kinds of games and sports, as well as a dip, and at noon a dainty dinner was served in the open air. They will return early in the evening.

OFFICERS CHOSEN
BY GRADUATING CLASS OF ST. PATRICK'S ACADEMY

The members of this year's graduating class of St. Patrick's boys' academy held a meeting last evening and elected officers, the results being as follows: President, Henry J. Connolly; vice-president, John P. Randall; secretary, Eugene J. Dean; treasurer, John J. Flannery; historian, John M. Armstrong. After the election the officers were installed and a business session held. Later in the evening a musical program was enjoyed and at a seasonable hour the meeting was adjourned until July 10.

FUNERALS
HORAN—The funeral of Bridget M. Horan took place this morning from her home, 29 Richmond street, and was largely attended. A funeral mass was sung at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock sung at St. Peter's church. The boarders were James McCormack, John Horan, Martin Roddy and Robert Armstrong. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery. Rev. Fr. Mullin reading the committal prayers. Undertaker Peter Davey had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The Electrical Fourth May Prove to be a Great Success This Year

The Electrical Fourth! The latest thing in Fourth! Not size, boom, ah! of the rocket, but press the button, flash and illumination of the incandescent light.

That's the program as arranged by the progressives. Little Willie and Mary will leave the scene of celebration with eyes filled with the beauties of light instead of with gunpowder. Papa and mamma will take little Willie and Mary home in an unutilized condition. The ground will be strewn with papers and peanut shells, perhaps, but not with eyes and limbs. Which will be well.

The electrical Fourth of July as planned by the authorities of New York and other cities will be a thing of beauty as well as of safety. Vari-colored lights, arranged in artistic designs, will flash out to Young America their messages of patriotism and devotion to one's country. Houses, arches, bridges and other edifices, as well as trees, will be outlined in red, white and blue, affording topics for comment to crowds of admiring spectators.

New York, with its "Great White Way" that is the amazement and delight of out-of-town visitors, knows well how to arrange incandescent lights in lines and masses that appeal to the senses of form and color. With the current "winking" motion is well simulated, and what can be better, for example, than a huge American flag made of particular lights, with the stripes waving and the stars blinking in an effect utterly gorgeous?

Electrical Fireworks

Then there are, of course, the fireworks effects. It is not beyond the ingenuity of electrical engineers and the sign designers to imitate the flight of the skyrocket, the revolving of the pinwheel, the eruption of the flowerpot, the shooting of balls by the Roman candle.

Nothing will be wanting but the noises of the explosions and the cries and groans of those injured by their own or others' carelessness or recklessness. For the innocent noise, the music of bands, the words of patriotic oratory, the cheers of spectators, may be substituted to good effect. For the hideous noises that have made too many Fourth's the occasions of nightmares instead of happy enjoyment no substitute is offered and none is wanted. Better on the 5th a whole boy or girl satisfied with innocent amusement than one dead or wounded and threatened with deadly lockjaw.

Not long ago prominent New Yorkers got together and tested the coming electrical Fourth. They chose Riverside drive between West One Hundred and Sixteenth and West One Hundred and Twentieth streets for their test. They festooned 5,000 electrical lights from tree to tree and turned on the current. Many of the lights were inclosed in varicolored Japanese lanterns and the effect was truly gorgeous. Standing at the lower end of the vista of lights and looking north, it appeared to an observer as though he were standing in a lane of gigantic Christmas trees. "Isn't it beautiful?" exclaimed one man as he stood under the illuminated branches. "With a hand to play here and perhaps a platform upon which the people could dance, this would be far better than the old and dangerous displays of fireworks."

For Private Illuminations

To show what could be done in the matter of private illumination if the owner of a house decided to give expression to his patriotic feelings, the committee in charge of the display selected a house on Riverside drive and strung half a dozen chains of lights

from roof to ground. The effect was very beautiful, although no attempt was made to outline the windows, doors, etc. There is room, of course, for the exercise of an unlimited quantity of taste and ingenuity.

The cost? Not greater than that of a medium sized fireworks display. In the case mentioned, when a half dozen strings of lights dropped from roof to ground, it was estimated that it took $10 for lanterns, lights and wiring and about 50 cents for current. In the New York demonstration the company supplying the lights and the current

said that it could illuminate a city block on the night of the Fourth for about $15. The company offered to the city free current for the electrical celebration. The committee in charge of the city's Independence Day jubilee expects to have $100,000 to spend on a "safe and sane Fourth," and the electrical company estimated that all the parks and public buildings in the city could be illuminated at a cost of $75,000. This, it was said, is not higher than the expense attending a good fireworks display.

Movement is Now National

"The movement toward a national celebration of Independence Day has become national," said Herman Ridder, chairman of the committee in charge of New York's observance recently.

"The example set by New York has spread throughout the country. In 1909 there were only twenty cities in the United States that undertook the supervision of the Fourth of July celebrations with a view of reducing the number of accidents that in the past have resulted from the observance of that day. The following year there were ninety-one, and last year there were 151. And in comparison with this increase the accidents of the day decreased from 5,207 in 1905 to 1,693 in 1911.

"If the committee can have the support of the people of this city the celebration last year, which was declared by everyone to be the finest New York has ever witnessed, will be surpassed. The 'safe and sane Fourth' is an excellent opportunity for the people of New York to show their loyalty to their city."

Even the folks who "believe in a real, old fashioned Fourth," with guns and fireworks and bonfires, must find food for reflection in the warnings issued annually by the physicians and surgeons and heads of fire departments. Until the idea of observing the day without making our children "pass through the fire"—the practice condemned so severely in the Old Testament in connection with heathen rites—gained general acceptance Independence Day was something of a horror to the firemen and the police.

Hearken now to the tale of decreased property loss. As a result of the adoption of the "safe Fourth" in New York two years ago the day's loss by fire has decreased more than 50 per cent., and the accidents which formerly marred the day's fun have been almost completely eliminated. Sacrifices in Mother Columbia's worship have become rational with the passing of the years.

Time to Say "Stop!"

Certainly it was time to call a halt. Reliable statistics inform us that in 1903 there were 466 dead and 3,983 wounded, a total of 4,449 left lying on the battlefield of Independence Day. In 1905 the total had risen to 5,176, although the fatalities had dropped to 182. In 1906 the fatalities were the same in number, but the injured were sufficient to bring the grand total to 5,466.

In 1908 the high water mark of injury and death was recorded. The total was 5,622, of whom 163 persons, mostly children, were killed. In 1909 the total was only a little lower, being 5,307, but there are 52 more graves to the discredit of that year's "old fashioned Fourth." That year the figures attracted widespread attention, and the crusade for a safer Independence Day, already having many followers, received a great stimulus. Next year the melancholy roll call of dead and wounded was only half as long. Last year saw a further decrease, the number of dead being only 57, the lowest number of which there is authentic record, and the injured were only 1,545, a total of 1,603.

It is that "only" that the "safe and sane" people are after. They argue that there is no need for the sacrifice of even a single life or eye or limb in the sacred name of patriotism. Sure, of course, from the battlefield thereon one fights for his country.

Put the Blame on John Adams

The blame for putting America on the wrong track in the matter of Independence Day celebrations is laid by these investigators at the door of old John Adams, second president of the United States, signer of the Declaration of Independence and a good, all round patriot. He told his wife in a letter that has been widely quoted that July 4 "will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other." To all of which the present day reformers breathe a hearty and earnest "Amen," save to the words "distinguished by capital letters. Guns and bonfires have been tried as means of celebration and have been found guilty. And if the reformers have their way, as seems likely, there will be no recall of this decision.

These intelligent busybodies, who save undertakers' fees and doctors' bills for parents, tell us that one need not live in a large city to have a "safe and sane" Fourth. They even go so far as to put the seal of approval on fireworks if the displays are safe, guarded properly. There is no need of foregoing entirely the delights of gunpowder if care be taken to see that they are properly confined. But these safe and saner lay stress on such things as patriotic music, always effective in stirring up love for the fatherland, speeches, games, parades, tableaux, concerts, athletic contests and pageantry.

VALUE OF FOOTWORK

As Demonstrated by the Leading Boxers

Of what value is footwork in boxing? This question is continually cropping up and provides an interesting topic. In these days of rough hitting and cyclonic slugging, which a large percentage of professional boxers employ, swiftness of foot in both attack and defense is lost sight of, yet it is one of the biggest factors in making ring champions. A boxer who is so light on his feet that he can be constantly on the move is not easy to hit. Daring in with dazzling speed, it is possible to land clean cut blows with such unexpected skill that an opponent has no time to block or counter as his assailant after landing scurs away. The employment of these tactics means the scoring of points upon which a referee's decision must be based unless there's a knockout.

Of the present day boxers two expert footworkers stand out in bold relief. They are Paeky McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, and Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welterweight. Both men are phantoms when they begin fighting, for they can fade away from a rival's wallop so quickly that boxing fans are amazed. Yet when McFarland and Gibbons decide to land punches they shoot to the mark with lightning-like rapidity. Their footwork is not cultivated, they say, but it is a gift. They are so agile and quick that they can not help moving about the padded floor like dancing masters at the head of a ballet corps. As a result, McFarland and Gibbons are believed to be the cleverest boxers in the world.

Fast Men Hard to Hit

"If you keep your feet moving all the time," said McFarland recently, "it stands to reason that the other fellow will find it hard to reach you with a solid blow. Some fighters cannot hit with effect unless they get themselves firmly on both feet and then swing either hand from the hip. Many of these fellows do a lot of harm if they land, but when they do it is wholly because their opponents do not know how to offset the punches."

"I have learned from experience that by making a man miss I can accomplish much. As soon as a fighter learns that he cannot land his best blows he naturally becomes discouraged. Then you've got the battle half won, and you can clinch the victory by landing quickly delivered blows yourself. But you cannot make a man miss or land rapid hits for points unless you know how to use your feet. Because of this gift I can say that I've never lost a fight, had my nose broken or been out about the ring. In fact, I'm not a bit disgraced."

Sluggers Disfigured

"The fellows you see with flat noses, cauliflower ears and scars on their faces in 9 cases out of 10 know nothing of footwork. They are just plain sluggers, who stand up and take all that comes their way for the chance of landing a knockout wallop. In their cases physical strength is of more value than skill, but they cannot be termed clever. Of course I don't overlook other things that make a successful boxer. One must know how to hit, when to hit and just how far to let the blow travel. A good judge of distance generally wins more bouts than he loses. Then, again, it's necessary to know how to block with the hands and forearms if you are driven to a corner on the defensive. In addition to that, a good boxer must keep his wits about him always, so that he will know just when to take advantage of openings. But footwork is the real big factor."

While McFarland uses his feet and knows how to feint, he is not a slinger. He can hit with keen, cutting results, but he seldom scores a knockout. Gibbons, on the other hand, combines skill with remarkable hitting power. He is a natural fighter. It's easy for him to feint a man into a crouch, while he can make a rival miss in tactless fashion, but when he darts in to land a smash he puts beef behind it and generally produces pain. In fact, for his weight and inches Gibbons is a wonderful puncher. When he beat Willie Lewis, a pretty fair boxer, the latter was thunderstruck.

"Why, this chap is a wizard!" said Lewis after the bout. "Time and again I thought I had him cornered, but when I let fly he vanished in thin air, only to come back suddenly with punches that I could not avoid. His footwork was simply marvellous. I used to think I knew something about footwork myself, but Gibbons is in a class by himself."

Young Griffin, Corbett, McCoy, Palmer, Dixon and McCarthy were great footworkers. Jack Johnson is another.

WHAT A WOMAN OBSERVED

Have you ever noticed that a man who talks about his love affairs only remembers his conquests? Have you ever noticed that the man who grumbles at the food at home is the man who cannot tell mutton from lamb when he is out?

Have you ever noticed that, though the quickest way to a man's heart is by feeding him, the quickest way to his cheekbook is by flattering him? Have you ever noticed that a hen-pecked husband never crows about it? Have you ever noticed what a lot of women worry themselves gray over their endeavors to look young?

Have you ever noticed how ever miserably a woman is married she can always pity a spinster who is happy?

Have you ever noticed that the man who complains of his wife's dress bills always tells her that she doesn't dress as well as her neighbor?

Have you ever noticed how loudly you have to shout to make people ne-lice a sermon and how low you have to whisper to prevent them hearing a scandal?

ENGLAND'S GREAT HOPE

Is McMillan the Crack Sprinter

England is placing her hopes in the 100 meter race at the Olympic games on McMillan. The latter is one of the greatest sprinters ever produced on the other side of the Atlantic. During the last two years he has won many races at distances from 100 yards up to 440 yards. At the recent trials at Stamford Bridge, London, he won the 100 and 220 meters in easy fashion. McMillan hails from Oxford university.

CRAWFORD'S 14TH YEAR

This is Sam Crawford's 14th year in major league baseball. The Tigers' right fielder is as active as a cat and says he is good for several campaigns yet. If he could run as fast as Cobb, Crawford, no doubt, would lead all batsmen in the averages. Cobb receives credit for many infield hits because of his great sprinting, while Crawford's hitting is clean and hard. He never batted so heavily when he played with Cincinnati, but as soon as Hugh Jennings got hold of him there was a vast improvement. Jennings convinced Crawford that he was the hardest hitter in the business, and Sam lost no time in proving it.

Money deposited today at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begins to draw interest July 6th.

CRISIS IN MEXICAN TROUBLE IS REPORTED AT HAND TODAY

5000 Rebels Well Entrenched
Expected to Attack the Federal Forces

CHIHUAHUA, June 27.—The crisis in the Mexican revolution is at hand today. Five thousand rebels well entrenched and fortified at Bachiubá, 46 miles south of here, were expected today to engage the federal columns of equal strength commanded by General Huerta. At stake is the city of Chihuahua, for months under rebel control and a vital point in northern Mexico.

There is tremendous tension here among foreigners, many of whom have raised their nation's flag over residences and business houses. It is generally realized that a rebel defeat or retreat would mean a disorganized, uncontrolled flight to the city of Chihuahua, with looting and rioting as a climax.

GEN. HUERTA PREPARED
AT FEDERAL ARMY HEADQUARTERS, ORTIZ, Mexico, June 27.—General Huerta expects to have his artillery in position just ahead of Cuernavaca, seven miles south of Bachiubá by noon today, when he plans to open the attack on the rebel stronghold.

General Huerta expects to be in the city of Chihuahua in five days, as it is anticipated the rebels will blow up all bridges if they retreat from Bachiubá.

BAY STATE DELEGATES BUSY AT BALTIMORE

Great Display of Badges and Banners—Foss Boom Re- ported Gaining Strength

(Special news letter to The Sun)
BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—The democratic convention is in full blast after several days and nights before, but outlived for show, excitement and general hilarity any "highlights before fourth" in history.

The city of Baltimore, try as it will, is unable to cope with the unprecedented army of jolly visitors within its gates and hence, "everything goes," is the order with everybody happy. With rates of $20 and $15 per day, every hotel is crowded, all lodging-houses are playing capacity, while private houses have been thrown open to the visitors and many have been obliged to seek refuge in the house-boats that tie the river banks. The street railroad lines are numerous but confusing while there is no direct line of communication between the principal hotels which are located far apart. But all are good-natured and are accepting the inconveniences with a joke or a smile.

As the press associations represented by an army of correspondents and photographers are furnishing detailed reports of all happenings of importance within and without the convention hall, this correspondence confined to the affairs of the Massachusetts delegation of 36 regular delegates and 100 or more alternates and spectators, all of whom are designated by a blue and gold badge. Badges of an infinite variety of colors and designs, buttons, emblems, pennants, hat bands, neckties and 1000 varieties of souvenirs are to be noted everywhere and the city itself is enveloped in bunting and at night is ablaze with special electrical displays. Baltimore, it may be said, has an impressive great white way and its principal business streets are well lighted, but the side streets are nearly all as dark as the myriads of men and women of the colored persuasion who fairly swarm among them.

Difference in Delegations

There's a noticeable difference in the delegations representing the different states. Until Humphrey O'Sullivan got busy one would hardly know that the old Bay State had an official representation on the scene. Mr. O'Sullivan and his personal party of six came in ahead and established themselves at Christ's church rectory in St. Paul street, a fashionable residential street.

Before Sunday evening they had become known at all the hotels by uncovering the original Clark mascot, a real Ozark hound pup that they picked up on the road while motoring in the country during the afternoon. The pup ran out to meet the auto and upon the chauffeur stopping the car he immediately went under it and refused all coaxing to emerge from his perilous position. He was claimed by Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, the "chief" of the democracy of Massachusetts, by reason of his position as chairman of the democratic state committee, and the pup was immediately christened "Little Chief," and after keeping the rectory awake all night by his howling, was formally presented to the Clark headquarters as its mascot.

Mr. O'Sullivan intended to meet the Massachusetts delegation with a band upon its arrival in Baltimore Sunday night, but as the members came along in groups the reception was given up and in its place a parade and demonstration will be held by the Massachusetts delegation tomorrow night with Mr. O'Sullivan as marshal and a brass band to lead the way.

Mayor Fitz in Action

The Massachusetts delegates, minus a few who did not come down in Mayor Fitzgerald's Boston party, had just detained at the depot Sunday evening when the busy mayor of the city of the trinity of Bs called the crowd to order as they were gathering their baggage together, and while one James Aylward of the Boston party was doing a mad Marathon through the crowd in search of a colored porter who had lost his baggage and liked away somewhere unknown to the owner, His Honor said: "The Massachusetts delegation is to have a member on the committee on resolutions, and as that is a most important committee it has been suggested that Hon. David L. Walsh be elected without delay. All in favor of the suggestion say 'Aye' contrary 'Nay.' It was a unanimous vote.

"Let's go to the hotel," cried several who were within hearing of the busy chief executive.

Meanwhile the Honorable David L. Walsh was complacently commingling a couple of suit cases and a walking stick preparatory to boarding a taxi when a friend slapped him on the back, exclaiming: "Congratulations old man."

"What for, my safe arrival?" inquired Dr. Walsh.

"You've been elected a member of the committee on resolutions by Mayor Fitz."

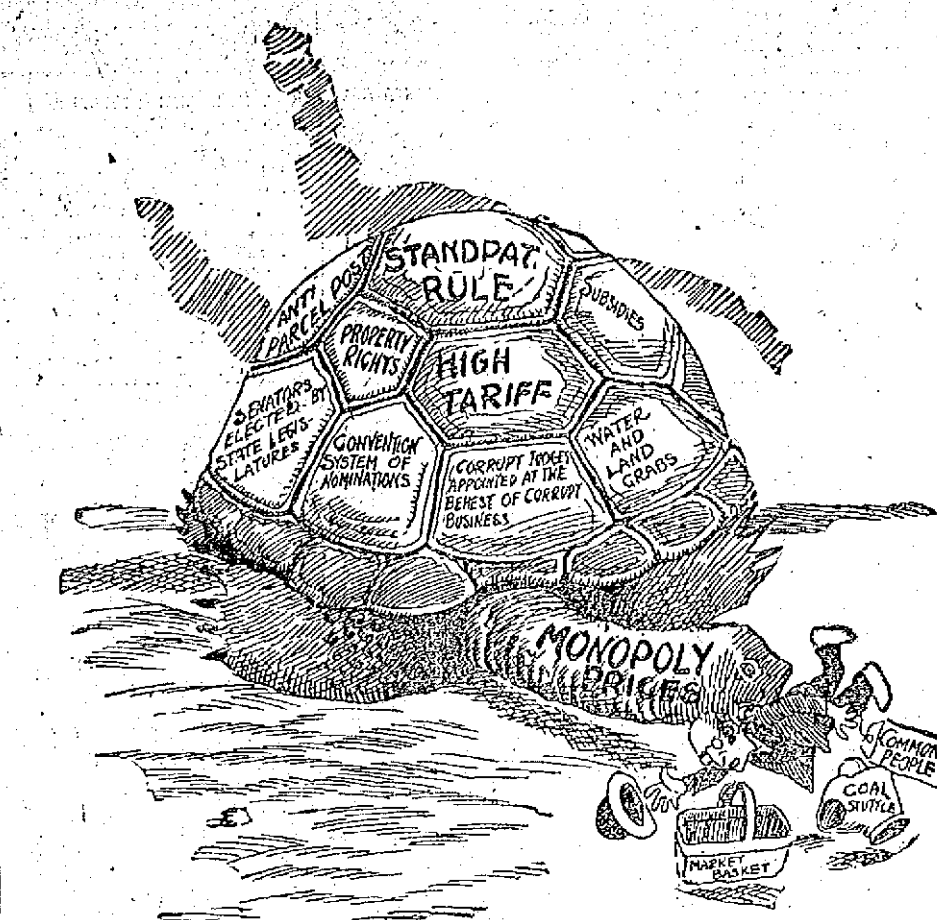

"That's very nice of him. When was the meeting?"

"Just now."

"I must have been looking out the window," responded Dr. Walsh.

The Massachusetts delegation had no regular headquarters.

Not so the California delegation. They came across the continent in large numbers and with many ladies in the party, bringing with them "fashions" of California's great products, wines and fruit, for the Californians combine business with politics, and they advertised the growing industries of their state in a manner most acceptable to their guests. They brought a band with them. The Iowa delegation came to town with a band of 30 boys clad in natty white uniforms and accompanied by a priest. The banners read: "St. Mary's Industrial School." And perhaps those kids couldn't hand out the harmony! The Georgia men, who called themselves the "Underwood Marching Club," were much in evidence. In fact, there were street parades by the score and "Maryland," "Dixie" and "Everybody's Doing It" have been done to death by the bands. A new feature in the musical line appeared on the last night in the shape of a quartet of good singers from Nebraska, all gaily adorned with Bryan emblems, who harmonized in a song of catchy air and words, the title being: "I'd Like to Vote for Bryan," and concluding with the words most vociferously chanted: "That's Just What I'll Do."

HE KNOWS WHAT IS UNDER THAT SHELL NOW

The Massachusetts delegation has been somewhat lax in regard to concerted enthusiasm but intend to make up for it in their demonstration tomorrow night.

Among the recent arrivals from Lowell are Commissioner Andrew E. Barrett, Anthony A. Conway, Hon. Fishes H. Pearson and Adjutant General Gardner W. Pearson.

Up to yesterday little was heard of Gov. Foss' candidacy, but since then the hotels have been flooded with literature booming him, a great banner has been swung across the street in front of the Kernan hotel where the Massachusetts delegates are quartered while the delegates are all wearing "Foss" hat bands and campaign buttons inscribed: "Foss For Us—A Match For All."

On to Washington

Monday afternoon the entire Massachusetts crowd chartered a special electric car and went to Washington armed with cow bells, rattles and other noise provoking instruments to root for the Red Sox. Each member carried an American flag which Julius Auerbach, the well known Boston lawyer, hopped a surprise on the beach by producing a huge Irish flag. All had box seats behind the Red Sox bench and perhaps they didn't root. They rattled two Washington pitchers and won the game, 5 to 1. A Washington police officer remarked: "I never heard so much noise from so small a crowd." After the game the Massachusetts crowd headed by the American and Irish flags escorted the Red Sox from the field. While waiting for the car, the crowd entertained the natives with a program of songs including "Sweet Adeline."

Down to Business

The Massachusetts delegates held daily meetings in the lecture hall of the Baltimore dental college with Mayor Fitzgerald as chairman. On Tuesday just prior to the opening of the convention it was proposed to send a resolution to the New York delegation asking that that organization withdraw the name of Judge Alton B. Parker, as candidate for temporary chairman and to substitute therefor the name of Judge O'Connell, or some other man acceptable to W. J. Bryan. Mr. O'Sullivan vigorously opposed the resolution but opposed it alone for the other 35 delegates voted for it. The resolution went but was never heard from again.

Mr. O'Sullivan then began a boom for Parker in the delegation with the result that when the ballot was taken in the convention Parker received 15 votes, Bryan 13, and O'Connell 3.

The vote of the Massachusetts delegation for temporary chairman was as follows:

For Parker: Messrs. O'Sullivan, Sullivan, Hayes, Olney, Thatcher, O'Connor, Higgins, Desmond, Kennedy, McMarrow, Clune, O'Brien, O'Shea, Dwyer, Dr. Sullivan, 15.

For O'Connell: Messrs. Mahoney, Dr. Coughlin and O'Connell, 3.

For Bryan: Messrs. Fitzgerald, Walsh, Strecher, Donahue, McFarland, Seagraves, Hanrahan, Tirrell, Malley, Drappers, Martel, Moran, McSweeney, Thayer, Maynard, McNamara, Barry, Kelly, 13.

On Thursday evening Humphrey O'Sullivan will be a guest at a dinner given by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Nevers to Judge Parker.

FIRE ON THE ROOF
AND GASOLINE BELOW, BUT NOTHING DOING

At 2:45 o'clock this afternoon an alarm from box 25 summoned a portion of the fire department in Tremont street, where a lively blaze was in progress on the roof of the Tremont street garage.

When the firemen arrived on the scene the flames were blazing through the roof and inasmuch as there is gasoline stored on the premises, the job was a risky one for a few minutes. However, the quick work of the members of the department stopped the blaze from spreading and the fire was soon under control. The damage, which is confined to the roof of the building, is slight.

MR. BRYAN'S DEFEAT

The opening chapter of the democratic convention at Baltimore offered another proof, if any were needed, that Mr. Bryan cannot play the political game. His first act was to oppose the selection of Judge Parker for temporary chairman and after making a bitter speech in opposition to Parker he presented the name of Senator Kern. After being eloquently nominated Mr. Kern got up and declined to stand for the place, stating that he was a warm friend of Judge Parker. He also returned Mr. Bryan's compliment and proposed that Mr. Bryan be a candidate for the position. Mr. Bryan thereupon intimated that he would stand as a candidate against Parker even though in so doing he should be humiliated by defeat. He felt that he should do this for the party for which he had labored for 16 years and which had honored him on several occasions.

There were strong speeches also in support of Judge Parker, and when the vote was taken it showed that Mr. Bryan was defeated by a margin of about 70 votes. That was a close vote to be sure, but the defeat was quite as severe to Mr. Bryan and the victory for Parker quite as decisive as if the majority had been three times what it was.

Mr. Bryan felt the blow very keenly, in fact while speaking against Parker he displayed considerable nervousness, something very unusual for him, but he felt no doubt that he had made a mistake and that he had to carry out his attack upon Parker as he had previously promised.

In this needless attack Mr. Bryan was supported by the Wilson men and thus not only Bryan himself but Wilson also incurred the enmity and opposition of the strongest elements in the convention and seriously handicapped whatever chances they might have of securing a nomination. Both leaders claim to be the most progressive in the party and they are prone to reflect upon some of the others as "reactionaries." Thus Mr. Bryan has assailed Harrison of Ohio for years and in the same way he has attacked Judge Parker and indirectly also Speaker Clark. There is a bitter feeling between Clark and Wilson, and this conflict at the opening of the convention served to unite the New York men and the friends of Mr. Underwood with the Clark forces. In this way something in the nature of a "deal" appeared to have taken place between the New York delegation, the Clark forces and the friends of Underwood from the south. All the various contests assumed a new aspect as a result. Mr. Bryan especially seemed to be the man to whom the steam roller had first been applied and not only he but his friends felt the experience very keenly.

What the convention will do remains to be seen; but judging from the keynote sounded by Judge Parker the platform will be one that should satisfy every wing of the democratic party. The judge dealt in scathing terms with the antics of Col. Roosevelt and advocated a plank in the democratic platform limiting the term of presidents so that in future no candidate could come out and seek a third term. On the tariff and other important questions Judge Parker was thoroughly progressive and not reactionary as Mr. Bryan had intimated before the convention.

While some confusion was caused by the opposition to Judge Parker and the defeat of Mr. Bryan, still there was nothing to indicate any lack of harmony that might jeopardize the proper work of the convention. There seemed to be a disposition on the part of the delegates to put up a strong ticket and to frame a platform that would be acceptable to every democrat in the land. That is what the people want and that alone will carry the party to victory at the polls.

JUDGE ENRIGHT

The appointment of Thomas J. Enright as judge of the municipal court to succeed Judge Hadley will give very general satisfaction throughout the city. Mr. Enright had very strong endorsement from the Lowell bar and from other prominent citizens in this and other cities. A member of the local bar since 1884, well trained under prominent lawyers and experienced as a legal practitioner, Mr. Enright will undoubtedly bring to the duties of his new office an equipment that will enable him to discharge its functions with satisfaction to the entire community. The position of judge of the local court is a very trying one, and anybody who has been familiar with the long and weary hours and days given to the office by Judge Hadley may realize what Mr. Enright will be called upon to do. The position is one that requires a great deal of patience and a great deal of sympathy. One would suppose that the judge of a police court would in time become so disgusted with the perversity of human nature that he would have no sympathy for any offender. This undoubtedly is the case with some judges, but it was not so with Judge Hadley who retained to the last his sympathy for the offenders who came before him and his desire to help in their reform. We presume Judge Enright will show the necessary patience and sympathy that is required on the bench of the municipal court. He has always been noted for his genial manner and his humane sympathy, and these qualities will greatly assist him in dealing with offenders of all classes, some of whom are beyond hope and so perverted that sympathy is wasted upon them.

We congratulate Judge Enright upon his appointment and wish him every success in the discharge of his duties.

ROOSEVELT'S PARTY OF DISSIDENTS

The defeat of Mr. Bryan at the democratic convention in his opposition to Judge Parker was seized by the Roosevelt men and magnified with the hope that Bryan would be induced to join forces with Col. Roosevelt. It is quite probable that Roosevelt will appeal to the defeated elements in the democratic convention, hoping to draw them into his new party of dissidents. He hopes that the democratic party will make a mess of things, but we do not believe it will satisfy Roosevelt's wishes in this respect. The democrats believe in a majority and they are opposed to having candidates and independent parties. For that reason they will not favor any of Roosevelt's schemes nor gratify his ambition by joining him in an effort to become a dictator throughout the land.

TAKE CARE OF THE HORSES

Now that the hot weather is with us, drivers will be expected to take the usual precautions to protect the animals from exposure to the hot sun, to supply them with drink at reasonable intervals and to avoid over-driving them, especially uphill and when drawing a heavy load. Some drivers have no consideration for the horses they handle and do not seem to understand that the horses suffer from abuse and from hot weather the same as human beings. We expect that Agent Richardson of the Humane society will see that the horses will be protected during the hot spell.

SEEN AND HEARD

Senator Bacon of Georgia plotted a constituent around the capitol for a while and then, having some work to do on the floor, conducted his visit to the senate gallery. After an hour or so the visitor approached a gallery doorkeeper and said:

"My name is Swate. I am a friend of Senator Bacon. He brought me here and I want to go out and look around a bit. I thought that I would tell you, so I can get back in."

"That's all right," said the doorkeeper, "but I may not be here when you return. In order to prevent any mistake I will give you the password, so you can get your seat again."

"What's the word?" Mr. Swate asked.

"Sycophancy."

"What?"

"Sycophancy."

"I guess I'll stay in," said Swate.

JOHN LITTLEJOHN

John Littlejohn was stanch and strong, upright and downright, scoring wrong; he gave good advice, and paid his way, he thought for himself, and he said his say.

Whenever a rascal strove to pass, dressed of silver, gold and brass, he took his hammer, and said, with a frown,

"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

John Littlejohn was firm and true, you could not cheat him in "two and two."

When foolish arguments, might and main, darkened and twisted the clear and plain,

He saw through the mazes of their speech, the simple truth beyond their reach;

And crushing their logic, said, with a frown,

"Your coin is spurious, nail it down."

John Littlejohn maintained the right, through storm and shine, in the world's despite.

When fools or quacks desired his vote, dished him with arguments, learned by rote,

Or by twisting, threats, or promises, tried to gain his support to the wrongful side,

"Nay, nay," said John, with an angry frown,

"Your coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told that kings had a right divine, and that the people were herds of swine,

That nobles alone were fit to rule, that the poor were unimproved by school,

That classless toil was the proper fate of all, and that the gods had made the state,

John shook his head, and said, with a frown,

"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told that events might justify a false and crooked policy,

That a decent love of future good might excuse a departure from rectitude,

That a lie, if white, was a small offense, to be forgiven by men of sense,

"Nay, nay," said John, with a sigh and frown,

—Charles Mackay.

A minister was assigned to a small parish in England not long ago, and upon his arrival found his field of labor all that could be desired, with the exception of old Bill Johnson. Old Bill was very much addicted to looking upon wine when it was red, and the new minister, at once announced his intention of bringing him to see the error of his ways.

"Well, of course, we know you mean right, parson," one of the elders said, slowly, stroking his white beard, "but it would be a mighty bad thing for the place if old Bill was to quit drinking."

"Well, what do you mean, brother?" the puzzled minister asked.

"Well, parson, it's like this," the elder explained. "There ain't no more convincing talker nowhere than old Bill. Every time he gets drunk and sobers down he gets somebody to sign the pledge with him, and the other fellow pretty nearly always keeps it."

According to the statements of bankers and others there isn't much conscience money in circulation but it has been demonstrated to Mayor

The Comfort and Economy of Tourist Sleeping Cars in Traveling to the Pacific Coast

I would like to explain to you, what a tourist sleeping car is, what convenience and comfort they have and how you can save money by joining one of our through parties, which go to the coast every week in one of these cars, escorted by a special conductor employed by the "Burlington Route" to look after your comfort. For many years the Burlington Route through tourist cars, excursions to California have been widely known for the excellence of the service provided, and the character of the employees in charge. The whole idea of these parties is to provide a way for people of moderate means, to make the California trip comfortably and in thoroughly good hands, and at the same time at an expense that is not prohibitive. Please call at the office or write a postal will do. Alex Stokes, New England Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R., 254 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

O'Donnell that there is still a little conscience money left. A man called at his office a few days ago and gave him a $10 bill, stating that he owed it to him because of damage he had done to his property. The mayor asked him to explain and he told him the damage was. He refused absolutely to take back the money and the strangeness of it all was that the mayor, investigating the man's story, found that no record of such destruction had been made although a slight deterioration in the condition of the property had been noticed. This had been repaired and nothing whatever thought about it. The man who paid the conscience money is not employed at city hall.

WHAT ZEB DID

I was feeling kind of happy till Zeb Spicer came along. A givin' his opinion out so eloquent and strong.

I sort of liked to listen to the bird up in the tree.

And watch the flowers blossom in the sunshine fair and free.

I liked to bitch the boys up, and go joggin' on my way.

My Sunday clothes seemed good enough for any holiday.

But Zeb he came along and showed that he was much distressed because he couldn't see how I was down and out and pressed.

And then I got to thinkin' with some help from Zeb, of course;

Why should I listen to the birds? The tunes from such a source

Don't cost a cent. Why shouldn't I go up and hear

Grand opera; no matter if the seats is rather dear?

I yearn for hothouse roses and I want a real car.

My Sunday clothes protect me; but they're out of style too far;

I'm broodin' 'bout injustices; the world seems goin' wrong—

And yet I was right happy till Zeb Spicer came along.

FREE ADVICE

TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. ## WILD WEST SHOW

HIGH SCHOOL HORSES ONE OF THE LEADING FEATURES

Ray Thompson's twenty high school horses are one of the leading features of the Young Buffalo Wild West and Col. Cummins' Far East which will exhibit in Lowell on Friday, June 28. These horses won international fame during their years as a feature attraction with Buffalo Bill, and are creating a veritable furor at every performance. "Joe Bailey," known as the "wonder horse," is unquestionably the most skillfully trained equine in the world. "Prince," better known as "the relinch wonder," performs many difficult and amazing feats, under the direction of Miss Thompson, without the aid of bridle or halter. One of the sensational feats performed by Miss Thompson with "Prince" is known as the "flirting with death act." Miss Thompson reclines flat upon the back of the reinless horse, her feet caught in the stirrups. The horse then rears up and walks about the arena with the rider's head in a direct line with the ground. It is a thrilling act and is received by the awe-struck audience with great enthusiasm. "Prince" is so skillfully trained that the rider is absolutely sure of the animal. "King Edward" is another star performer in the celebrated troupe of horses. King Edward dances the grizzly bear and the turkey trot, with all the grace and abandon of a stage beauty. Other horses in this troupe hold world records for high jumping and other out of the ordinary performances. It is the highest salaried animal act in the world.

It may be interesting to many to learn that the most primitive people in the world dwell in the interior of Australia, and that few white men have penetrated its wilds. The first of these aborigines ever seen in America are with the Young Buffalo Wild West and Col. Cummins' Far East.

The wild Australians are expert spear and bowmen, throwers, buck-jumpers and ball-whip manipulators. Marian and Elly Waite are the stars of the tribe. The Waite's hunt spears measuring five feet in length, at a target 200 feet distant, striking the bull's-eye with the accuracy of a skilled marksman shooting a rifle. The boomerang in the hands of the Waite's is a wonderful and terrible weapon. It is similar to a triangle in shape. One of their most interesting experiments with this weapon is the breaking of clay-pigeons thrown from a trap. The boomerangs leave the hands of the Waite's with terrific force, break the clay pigeons and after completing a perfect circle, fall in the hands of the Waite's.

83—Tell him I am going to the mountains, and that he will see much less of me.

THE REAL THING.

Cholly—You're a perfect picture or four the sister.

Musie—Sure, but me beauty is natural, and her's is artificial.

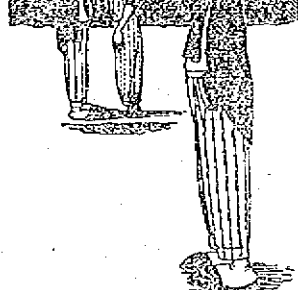

OR SOMETHING.

"Oh! papa! Couldn't you take Fred into your business? He's so ambitious and we are to be married soon, too."

"Er—what could he do?"

"Why, couldn't you make him president of the business or something?"

WELL!

She—George and I are going to get married.

He—So I hear. He's going to marry an actress. Who are you going to marry?

TIME TO GO.

He—Your father and I were old school chums, and it was the dearest wish of his heart that you should marry me when you grew up.

She—Poor papa! He never did get anything he wanted even when he was alive.

NONE WHATEVER.

Cholly—Her father has no objection to her marrying, I suppose?

George—Not if she marries some one else beside me.

Wilson in the Lead for President

BRYAN AND SEN. O'GORMAN WILL WRITE PLATFORM OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

CONVENTION HALL, Baltimore, June 27.—The Bryan-Wilson progressives won another victory in the democratic convention today when the delegates overturned the report of the credentials committee and seated ten Wilson delegates from South Dakota. The Wilson supporters claimed that the vote made the nomination of Woodrow Wilson a practical certainty. New York's 90 votes, which yesterday went to the Clark-Harmon combination were today cast in a block for the Wilson delegates. The announcement of New York's vote was greeted with cheers from the Wilson delegates.

CHICAGO, June 27.—The delegates to the democratic nomination filed into the convention hall singly and in groups today prepared for a long and excited session.

It was expected to be the day of the climax, the end of the long campaign waged by the presidential aspirants and as they came into the hall these delegates appeared to be as much at sea as ever as to who would be the nominee. The various boomers of candidates were ready to start demonstrations and counter-demonstrations and it seemed certain that the delays would be such as to throw the actual balloting late into the evening.

All sorts of rumors were afloat as to deals and combinations during the afternoon but not one of these seemed to have a trustworthy foundation. The supporters of Woodrow Wilson, heartened by the so-called Wilson-Bryan victory last night in the abrogation of the unit rule in binding all the members of a state delegation to the views of a majority in the delegation were claiming that the New Jersey governor would sweep the convention today and secure the nomination.

Bryan Talked Of

There was renewed talk of Bryan himself as the nominee today, some of the so-called conservatives being quoted as saying that so long as the naming of a progressive seemed inevitable it might be just as well to have Mr. Bryan lead the fight for a fourth time. Some of Mr. Bryan's friends indicated that the Nebraska apparently was content with the position he now occupies in the convention, the right to name the candidate being all but conceded to him.

Supporters of Champ Clark were claiming the nomination with as much outward confidence as ever, as they gathered for the day's session.

"There has been and will be no Jefferson from the Clark strength," read a statement put out from the speaker's headquarters.

"Dark horse" talk died away today and while many candidates were mentioned, there appeared to be a consensus of opinion that the fight lay among the supporters of Wilson, Clark and Bryan.

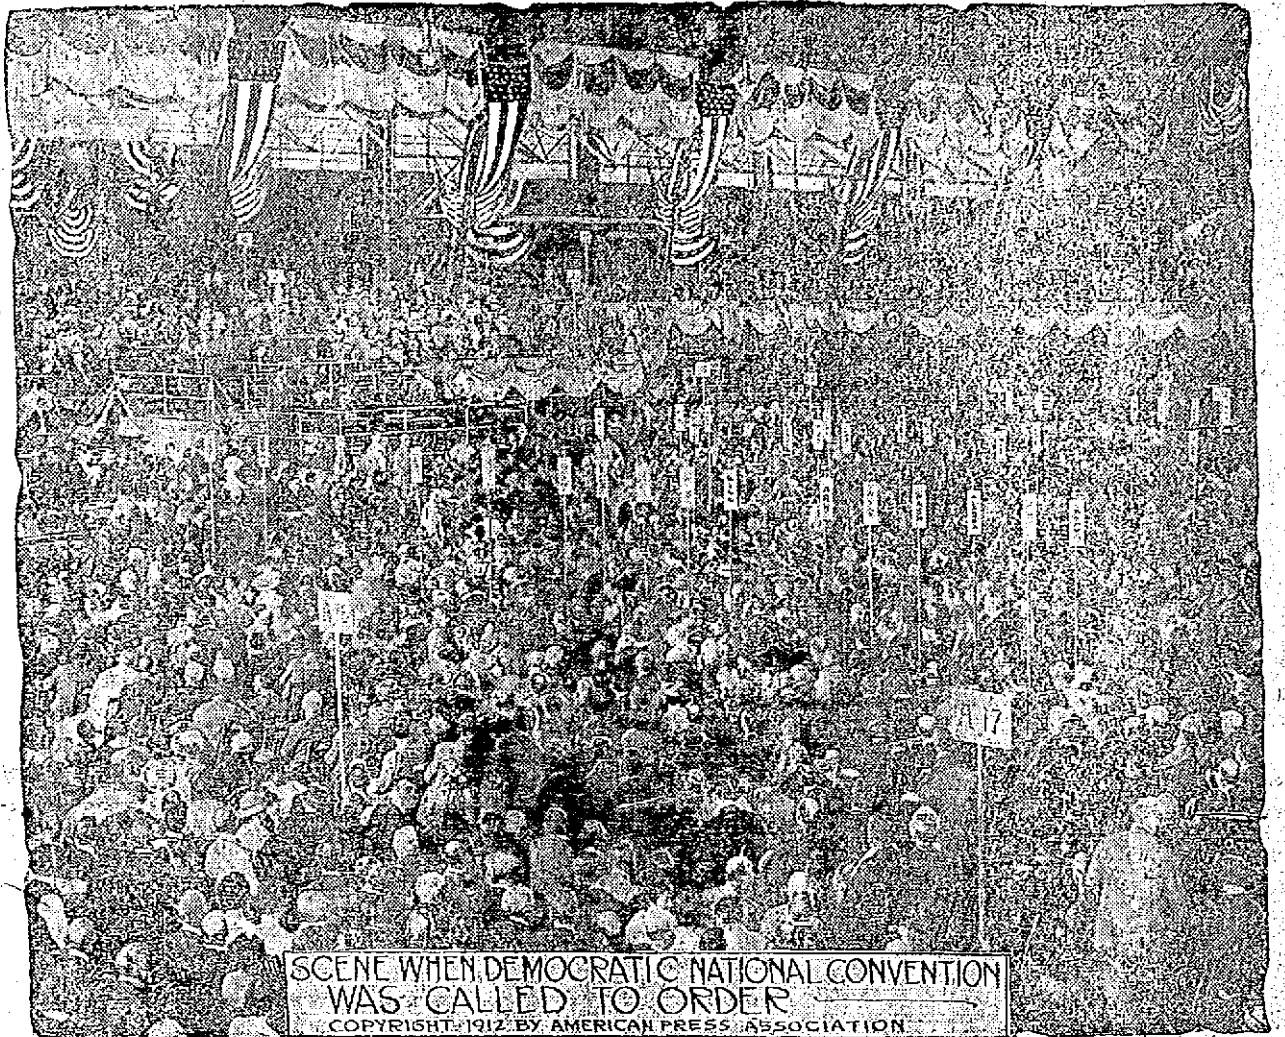

Mr. Bryan had not committed himself on the question of the presidency in any way up to the time the convention met.

Mrs. William H. Taft, wife of the president, was a visitor at the convention today, having a prominent place in the first gallery. She was entertained by Mrs. Hugh Wallace, wife of a delegate from the state of Washington.

The order of business as the convention met was further consideration of the report of the committee on credentials. The majority report was presented last night, the minority findings being delayed until today.

Lively Fight Expected

The majority had unseated ten Wilson delegates in South Dakota and given their places to Clark men and this was expected to precipitate a lively fight. The credentials committee also dealt with factional troubles in several states, including Illinois and it was predicted that two or three hours might be consumed in disposing of the credentials matter.

Then the report of the committee on permanent organization was scheduled to be taken up with the convention ready to rally by acclamation the choice of Senator-elect James O. Kenucky as permanent chairman.

Mr. James was expected to make a brief speech.

These things disposed of the delegates looked forward to the long series of nominating and seconding speeches, and finally to the balloting on the presidential nominations.

No one expected a choice on the first ballot but the lineup on the initial vote was awaited with the keenest interest.

At 12 o'clock Chairman Parker had not taken his place on the platform. A big squad of police filed in and the sergeant-at-arms stationed policemen ten feet apart in every aisle.

A double row of police was placed in front of the press stand, where the scuffle of last night occurred.

Much Confusion

There was much noise and confusion in the convention hall during the band tent up a lively racket. "Dixie" was played many times and always brought out a cheer. Then for the first time during the convention the band struck up "Tammany." It was greeted with hisses as well as cheers.

For the first time since the convention opened on Tuesday evening a seat on the floor and in the galleries was filled. The big galleries at each end of the hall were masses of fluttering fans. The heat was oppressive and Continued to page nine Haverhill, the Shoe City aggregation, which is battling with Fall River for the bottom rung on the ladder which will lead to the pennant in the New England league, appeared at Spaulding park this afternoon. The visitors felt confident of victory owing to the fact that they shut out Lowell yesterday but upon their own stamping grounds the Spindle City boys put up a good article in the line of baseball.

Herbert White, formerly with Lowell and also a Lowell boy, covered right field for the visitors in a manner which was very creditable. Although he has always played good ball, he has greatly improved of late and he keeps going on at the rate he has been since the opening of the season he will be a candidate for one of the major leagues in the near future.

Cooney, who was traded to Haverhill by Lowell for McGinnis, was not in the lineup, owing to an injury which he received a short time ago in sliding to a base.

Bernier, late of Fall River and formerly of Detroit, a pitcher who is considered a wonder, appeared in uniform this afternoon and was sent to the plate in the sixth inning. Halstein, of the University of Vermont, a clever first baseman, was also out during the practice and he will play in one of the games tomorrow.

O'clock Umpire Lannigan called the game, the batting order of the teams being as follows:

Lowell
Clemens cf
Miller 2b
De Groff rf
McGinnis lf

First Inning

The home team got into the running in the first inning and sent three men across the plate while the visitors failed to do anything of importance. Courtney was the first man up and after he hit to Loneragan he was out at first. Carney struck out and Matthews hit to Boultes and died at first.

Clemens singled over third base and then Miller made an inept hit. De Groff singled to right and Clemens and Miller scored. De Groff went to second on a bad throw. McGinnis went out on a fly to White, the latter making a beautiful running catch. Magese hit to Cross and was out at first but De Groff scored on the put out. Boultes drew a free pass but was thrown out while trying to go to second.

Score—Lowell 3, Worcester 0.

Second Inning

There was nothing doing in the second inning. Young singled to left field and it looked as though he was going to do something in the way of scoring but Cross hit to Owens and the latter threw to Loneragan, who got Young and then sent the ball to first for a double play. Campbell struck out.

Third Inning

In the third inning Owens struck out White and Pratt and Barry hit to Miller and failed to reach first.

The home team slammed the life out of Barry in this inning. Miller was the first man up and he hit to Barry, who threw wild to first, and Miller rounded the bases. De Groff doubled to right field and then McGinnis sent a fly to center field, but Matthews dropped it and he went to second while De Groff went to third. Magese singled over second and De Groff and McGinnis scored. Boultes followed with a single to center field. Loneragan drew a free pass and the bases were filled. Lavigne bled to Loneragan in trying to make second but Loneragan flied to Matthews but the latter fumbled and Boultes scored but Loneragan in trying to make second was thrown out. Lavigne hit to Kane who fumbled and he was safe. Bernier hit to Young and was retired at first. Lavigne scored. Clemens hit to Young who fumbled, but Miller closed the inning by flying to Carney.

Score: Lowell 11, Haverhill 0.

Sixth Inning

In the sixth inning Bernier, the new man, went in to pitch for Lowell. He gave the first man up, Pratt, a base on balls, but he then calmed down and struck out Welch. Courtney hit to Loneragan who threw to Miller getting Pratt and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

Lowell scored two more runs in the latter half of the inning. Reynolds was sent to left field to take the place of Courtney, who was benched. Boultes opened with a three bagger to right field. Loneragan flied to Matthews but the latter fumbled and Boultes scored but Loneragan in trying to make second was thrown out. Lavigne hit to Kane who fumbled and he was safe. Bernier hit to Young and was retired at first. Lavigne scored. Clemens hit to Young who fumbled, but Miller closed the inning by flying to Carney.

Score: Lowell 13, Haverhill 0.

Fourth Inning

Courtney made an inept hit and arrived at first and then Carney singled to center field. Matthews flied to Clemens and was the first out. Young hit to Loneragan who tagged second getting Carney and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

three order in this inning. Cross flied to Clemens. Campbell hit to Loneragan and was out at first and White went out on a fly to Loneragan.

Three more for Lowell in this inning. Lavigne hit to Young and died at first. Owens singled to left and when Clemens hit to Kane, the latter taking Cross' place at third, Kane fumbled and the runners were safe. Miller sent the ball to left field for a two-bagger and Owens scored. De Groff flied to White and Clemens scored on the put out. McGinnis got an infield hit and Miller scored. Magese hit to Kane and died at first.

Score—Lowell 11, Haverhill 0.

Seventh Inning

Haverhill broke the ice in the seventh and scored two runs. Carney walked and Matthews hit to Loneragan forcing him at second. Young drew a free pass and then Kane, the youngster, hammered the sphere into left field for a two-bagger and Matthews and Young scored. Campbell singled to center field and Kane went to third. White went out on strikes and Pratt flied to Boultes.

De Groff struck out and McGinnis went to first on a base on balls. Magese hit to Campbell and died at first. Boultes singled to left and McGinnis came home. Loneragan hit to Young, who threw Boultes out at second.

Score—Lowell 14, Haverhill 2.

Eighth Inning

Welch flied to Clemens. Reynolds flied to Young and was retired at second.

The visitors went out in one, two, got an infield hit and went to second on a passed ball. Carney flied to Miller. Matthews singled to center field. Young went out on a fly to Boultes. Lavigne hit to Young and died at first. Bernier went out. Campbell to first. Clemens made a single. Miller hit to Welch and died at first.

Score: Lowell 14, Haverhill 2.

Ninth Inning

Kane walked. Lavigne was struck on the ankle by a foul tip off Campbell's bat and the game was delayed for several minutes while the players worked on him. Mathman took his place. Campbell struck out. White singled over second base. Pratt made a two-bagger to left field and Kane scored and White went to third. Welch went out Miller to first and White scored. Reynolds out, Loneragan to first.

Score: Lowell 14, Haverhill 2.

Tenth Inning

THAN AIR FLYING MACHINE

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 27.—A cor- test for the $15,000 prize offered by Edwin Gould to the inventor of a heavier than air flying machine equipped with two complete power plants, separate motors and propellers will take place on July 4 at the Hempstead Plains aviation field. The object of a two power machine is to permit the aviator, should one motor become disabled, to start his second machine. Ten contestants have thus far entered.

FINGER CRUSHED

At 3:50 o'clock this afternoon, the ambulance was called to the Hamilton Mfg. Co., where a man named Henri Vallerand got the second finger of his right hand caught in a machine and badly crushed. The injured man, who lives at 22 Rock street, was removed to the Lowell hospital.

A BRISK FIRE

A brisk fire broke out on the roof of the wooden building in the rear of Scripps' laundry in Lawrence street, this forenoon, when a spark from a nearby chimney set the roof on fire. An alarm from box 15 at 8:52 o'clock summoned a portion of the fire department on the scene and they quickly got the blaze under control. The damage was slight.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Observed Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Parker last night observed the fifth anniversary of their wedding with a supper and a reception to their friends at their beautiful home, 211 Methuen street. There was a large attendance present and the happy couple were showered with congratulations and costly gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker received in the parlor which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with streamers of white crepe paper, with a touch of daisies and roses here and there, the ensemble presenting a very neat appearance. The dining room was also richly decorated as well as the music room.

A very enjoyable entertainment program was rendered, those taking part being as follows: Miss Helen Wilson, piano; Master Edwin McClure, violin; Master Peter Cannon of the Merrimack Square theatre, vocal selections; and Mrs. Parker, vocal selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker, the latter formerly Miss Louise Van Nostrand of Manchester, N. H., were married five years ago yesterday at Manchester, N. H., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Bailey. They immediately removed to this city, where they lived ever since, Mr. Parker being the popular chef at Blood's restaurant in Prescott street. A charming daughter, Muriel, was born to the happy couple two years ago.

Mrs. Parker last evening wore her wedding gown and she was assisted in receiving by the Misses Ivy Thoms and Anna Morey. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hart of Manchester, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Gilm.

Two Typical Costumes Shown for the Bride's Trousseau

Designed by May Manton

INDOOR AND STREET COSTUMES.

In the illustration are shown two typical costumes, one for the street and one for indoor wear, that are admirably well adapted to the bride's trousseau and also to general use.

The gown on the left is made from one of the new foulards that show tiny dots arranged in a way to give almost a checked effect. It is combined with a blouse of lace and it is trimmed with little satin buttons. Many of the smartest features of the season are included. The deep trimming portion or girdle on the blouse that matches the skirt is an important one. The same model could be used for a variety of materials. It would be very charming, made from tulle with coat to match, making a three piece suit, or from lightweight serge or any seasonable suiting material, and for the upper portion of the blouse may be used chiffon, lace, net, crepe de chine or any pretty material contrasting with the lower portion. The blouse can be made with or without a lining, and the lining can be used with or without undersleeves, and the neck also can be made high. The skirt is made in two pieces, and the trimming portion arranged over it. The finish can be made at either the high or natural waist line.

The street costume shows one of the very new coats that are semi-fitted, yet give exceedingly straight lines, and a skirt that gives quite the effect of a complete overskirt and foundation, yet which in reality consists of upper and lower portions that are stitched together at the line of the facing. Such a model is adapted to every seasonable suiting. Serge is a favorite for the early season, tulle is a pronounced feature, satin is to be used, heavy ribbed silks are exceedingly smart, wool poplins and ratine are much in vogue, and for simpler use there is the long list of cheviot, homespun and the like, while broadcloth is one of the standbys for handsome suits. Ratine, satin, silk and contrasting wool materials are used as trimming. In the illustration tulle is combined with satin, and the collar and cuffs are made of ratine. The coat can be trimmed to give the empire effect or made with a plain back, as liked, and the skirt can be finished at either the high or natural waist line.

SENATOR CRANE

TO REMAIN ON THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

BOSTON, June 27.—Senator W. Murray Crane will undoubtedly be re-elected as the Massachusetts member of the republican national committee. The Massachusetts delegation to the Chicago convention having failed to choose a committeeman, the election falls to the republican state committee. The committee is a decidedly Crane body.

The junior senator is expected to take an active part in the forthcoming national campaign, notwithstanding his previously expressed determination to retire from the committee. Massachusetts men returned from Chicago with stories that he was the backbone of the Taft management. The president has relied upon him to a great extent and it is expected that he will seek his counsel in the months of fighting ahead.

RUSSELL LORING KEW

Keith's theatre was the scene last night of the graduation exercises of the Lowell High school and the picture presented was both beautiful and inspiring. The largest class in the history of the school was graduated and rarely, if ever, has so large an audience witnessed similar exercises in this city. Every seat in the house was taken and those who feared that the theatre would be uncomfortably hot were pleasantly surprised to find that it was cooler than their own homes, a fact due to the up-to-date method employed by the management, a combination of fans above and air below.

It was good to note the deep interest that was being taken in every feature of the program and well might the parents and friends, and the city, too, feel proud of the graduating class of 1912 of the Lowell High School.

The exercises last night were all very graceful and pretty and the accommodations all that could be desired. The address to the graduates by Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college, was an inspiring one. He told the young men and the young women that activity is absolutely necessary to success, and that only in action do the flowers of glory grow and become vigorous. He told them that if they would practice the virtues of the founders of this grand republic their lives would be crowned with glory. "As long as America is true to its founders," he said, "justice will triumph and right will have its victory." He asked them to remember that justice is not the legislation of America, and that a true citizen is a man of law and order. "The true American citizen," he said, "is a man of absolute integrity and honor."

An Excellent Program

It would be hard indeed to improve upon the musical program and the way in which it was carried out reflected much credit upon the director, Mr. Frederick O. Blunt.

The salutatorian of the class, Miss Teresa Garland Lew, delivered a beautiful essay on "An Ideal Woman." Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, valedictorian, had for her theme, "The Greater Service the Greater Man." It was an excellent speech and was well rendered. Mr. Noonan is a graduate of the immaculate Conception school and a member of the O. M. I. Cadets.

Carney Medal Scholars

The six members of the class of 1912 who received the Carney medals, are as follows: Teresa Garland Lew, Ada Louise Sherburne, Warren Noonan, Percival James Quill, Maxwell Gardner Sherburne.

The medals were presented by Superintendent A. K. Whitcomb who also called the names of those who, just missing the Carney medal, have attained high rank in scholarship. Elizabeth Gertrude Ellen Bush, Dorothy Estes, Harold French Dodge, Henry Sokolsky, Kenneth Alexander Gardner, Alice Naomi Taber, Margaret Adeline Thompson, Charles Everett Jones.

The name of Miss Marion Martin of the class of 1911 was also mentioned as entitled to a place upon the honor roll, her name having been accidentally omitted in the list of last year's graduates.

Perfect Attendance

In addition to the following were named as entitled to honorable mention for perfect attendance during their high school course:

Florence Gulline, Teresa Garland Lew, Veronica Mary Patricia Noonan, Vita Althea Palmer, Irene Walsh.

The Prizes

The first prize, of ten dollars in gold, awarded by the Lowell Historical society for the best essay on "Lowell in the Civil War," was won by Miss Gladys Stern; and the second prize, of five dollars in gold, was won by Mr. Stanley. They were presented by Dr. Moses Greeley Parker.

Dr. James B. O'Connor

Dr. James B. O'Connor, chairman of the committee on high school, introduced the speaker of the evening, the Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston college. Dr. O'Connor said in part:

It is a pleasant privilege for me to present here this evening to congratulate you on the successful completion of your studies and to assist in the presentation to you of diplomas, which testify to your excellence in conduct and proficiency in studies. You are taking leave of a school, which is admittedly one of the best of its grade in the country. For many years the Lowell high school has been widely recognized as an institution of a high order and well merited fame; and now yours is the honor to be numbered among a graduate body of men and women, many of whom have attained to pre-eminence and power in the various walks of life. In these halls you have built the foundation—the task is yours of building thereon a moral and intellectual structure, which will serve you well in the field you choose to enter. The excellent training received by you in the classrooms of this school, has given you a distinct advantage in the struggle of life; but you must remember that whatever the influence of school or teacher, whatever the power of precept or example, the measure of your success will be determined by your individual character, by your own personal work and worth. The future is yours to make or unmake and at this moment so full of hope and promise, I tender you all the best wishes of those committed to whom is entrusted the grave care of the educational system of the city of Lowell, confident that you will make the most of your opportunities and bring even greater repute to this institution in which you have spent such a pleasant and profitable period of your young lives.

In pursuance of an admirable custom whereby the graduating class receives an appropriate address I have the pleasure and honor of presenting to you a gentleman who is a noted authority on everything pertaining to education. He is a distinguished member of a society which for centuries has included amongst its subjects the brightest of the world's minds and which through its various educational agencies has ever been the cultivator of sound and solid learning. Among the present day leaders of educational endeavor in our country there is perhaps none so variously distinguished as an educator, a moralist and an orator as the gentleman who has consented to speak to you this evening—the president of Boston college—the Very Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, of the Society of Jesus.

Father Gasson's Address

Rev. Fr. Gasson was given a rousing reception and his address was both eloquent and eloquent. He spoke in part as follows:

It is a great happiness and a rare privilege to come to a city that has the finest water supply in the commonwealth, the most peaceful industrial conditions in the commonwealth, and the most progressive school committee in the commonwealth.

"Members of the graduating class: This vast concourse of men and women are all gathered tonight because it is your graduation. Other classes will come and go, but you will never graduate again. I would like to impress upon your minds tonight the thoughts of gratitude to this city of Lowell, which furnishes you with the opportunities for this splendid education; gratitude to these instructors who have given up their lives to make you splendid men and women; gratitude to your parents, who have made it possible for you to take advantage of these opportunities. You have closed one book of your life; and as you go out into larger life, looking forward to the future, remember that you are to become citizens of this great republic of America."

"Ladies and gentlemen, we all know that in ancient history there was a cry went out, 'I am a Roman citizen.' That cry, to this day, rings down through the ages. That man has become immortal because of his proud boast of citizenship. But if ever there was a nation, if ever there was a body of men and women, who ought to glory in their citizenship, it is those who can say, 'I am an American citizen.' When I speak of American citizenship I am speaking of a citizenship that is the highest and the grandest and the most sublime of any citizenship of which this world holds record. The Roman citizen was more or less a dependent upon the state. The American citizen is a monarch. Every American citizen knows that he has within his power, through his vote, to send men to the halls of legislature, and in this manner to frame the laws and to frame the execution of those laws within the country."

"My young friends, that will be your power. When your fathers are passing away, you will be the future citizens. You must take their places. The country looks to you. If you become men and women of broad ideas, and lofty ideals and strong character, and if you are great triumphal march forward on its great triumphal march of progress and prosperity; but if you fall, then the country must fall because the country rests upon its citizens. If there is one thought that I would like to burn into your hearts tonight, it is the thought of the sublimity of that citizenship; of those rights and those privileges which belong to us as Americans.

"Ladies and gentlemen, when we go to our ordinary duties of life, do we always bear in mind what a glorious possession we hold—what a glorious country shelters us—what a grand thought it is to feel that each one of us has this blessing, to be sheltered under the nurturing influence of this great, this grand government? Under this citizenship, every man is a monarch. When we come into life the republic does not stand by the cradle and ask for our credentials of birth. It does not ask for a long pedigree. It does not ask to us and beg to be shown a check book or a list of stocks. It does not ask to test our blood in a chemical laboratory; because to the view of our American government, the blood of every honest man, royal and the heart of every honest citizen is the heart that loves the American constitution and the brand of every honest man is the head that the American constitution crowns with the crown of citizenship."

"Other nations now are beginning to copy us, because of the blessings that we enjoy here. But remember always that it was America that laid the foundations of democratic government; that it was America that raised the dignity of man up to the lofty plane of true citizenship. And we should ever cherish that country, with a love and a fervor that cannot be fully expressed in words."

"American citizenship is not only a sublime citizenship, but it is a citizenship of virtue. The founders of this republic had in their minds, when they raised the fabric of government, not a nation of criminals, but a nation of upright men. There is no man or woman, who would be frank and who has read the writings of the founders of this republic, who will not acknowledge that throughout the pages of their writings, they lay down those standards of moral conduct which, if followed, must build up the highest form of manly and womanly integrity. 'From Washington, the father of the republic, who so clearly in his last will and testament beseeches all his followers and all the future citizens to bear in mind that no nation can advance in the ways of prosperity without a supreme being, and that the nation that banishes God from its senate chamber or from the executive chamber is signing its own death warrant and digging its own grave.' 'Best in mind, too, that our citizenship is a man of absolute integrity and honor.'"

"My dear young friends, our forefathers chose those colors, the red, white and blue. The white means absolute integrity of life; the red, absolute fearlessness in the performance of duty; and the blue, loftiness of ideals. If every man would read that flag in the street you would ask yourself, is my life a life of absolute integrity—of fearlessness in the performance of duty—are my ideals the ideals of the true American citizen?—then, indeed, we might measure up to the standard of citizenship as laid down by the forefathers of this republic. 'Best in mind, too, that our citizenship is a citizenship of law and order. If there are difficulties to dispose of,

"One more lesson: The American citizenship was built upon this great theory, that the individual, as such, must be allowed full scope. Where will you find as many opportunities as in this land of promise? I am not denying that there is need of certain changes; I am not saying that we have established a paradise upon earth. But it is not true that in no country in the world are there such splendid opportunities for the growing boy and girl as here. If that boy and girl will only practice the virtues inculcated in the training, the virtues of the founders of this republic. And bear this in mind: that the true citizen is the man of 'all, that the individual effort. It is not the idle who is the ideal American, but the man who is found in all the hustle and bustle of life, with all his energies working at the highest pressure. The prizes of life are ever before you; but you will never take them unless you are among the toilers of the world."

Fr. Gasson repeated the words of the king to his son who was leaving him, the king saying: 'My boy, you will not be with me, but always remember you are a prince and a son of a king.' Then, turning to the graduates, Fr. Gasson said: 'Remember you are American citizens and graduates of the Lowell high school.'

The Class Gift

Chairman Farrington's Acceptance

In accepting the gift, Chairman John C. Farrington of the school board said: 'The members of the school board and those zealous and loving friends who have so carefully directed your studies for the past four years, the teachers of the Lowell High School, unite with me in tendering you sincere thanks for your beautiful and appropriate gift. A work of art is always acceptable, and in making your selection you have displayed excellent judgment for history in whatever form presented is a source of pleasure, while pictured history is most appropriate to adorn the walls of an institution of this kind. But aside from their material worth, these pictures will have a value beyond price for the associations that will ever cluster about them. There is no man who has not some interesting associations with particular scenes, books or pictures, and who does not feel their beauty or sublimity enhanced by such connections? How we delight to build our recollections upon some basis of reality such as this. In the days to come, should you ever retrace your steps to the hallowed precincts of your alma mater, these pictures will immediately attract your eye and bring back to you the bright dreams of the past, while, as the scent of the roses hangs round the ruined vase, their presence will keep the class of 1912 pleasantly remembered by those from whom you are about to depart when school days have become a memory. May happiness and success attend you all in your journey through life!

Presentation of Diplomas

Principal Cyrus W. Irish introduced Mayor James E. O'Donnell, and announced the graduating class as the largest in the history of the school, numbering 22 graduates, to whom the mayor then presented the diplomas.

Mayor O'Donnell's Address

The mayor, addressing the graduates, said:

On such an occasion as this the city official to whom is entrusted the expenditure of the public money resigns all visions of high tax rates and the accompanying criticisms, to contemplate with honest pride and deep satisfaction the grand result of the municipality's greatest and best source of expense, its public school system; to offer hearty congratulations to those who have passed successfully the requirements of that system and to anticipate fondly the inestimable benefits that are to accrue to the city when the graduate of today shall have become the citizen of tomorrow. The importance of education was recognized and generally appreciated long years before the magnificent systems which we enjoy today were even dreamed of and I recall a quotation from that venerable book, the 'Tale of Two Cities' which was written by the breath of the school children. 'Education has been called the apprenticeship of life and it has been improved and developed steadily through the ever-increasing circle of years until in this commonwealth, and city a system of education as complete as mind and money can make it is offered without expense to the son and daughter of the humblest citizen, and to the child of the poor alien who may come within our gates. The commonwealth of Massachusetts is looked up to in the family of nations for the excellence of its schools and of its general educational facilities, and the city of Lowell, I am proud to state, stands second to none in the commonwealth in this respect. 'Education is the chief defense of nations,' says Burke, and such being the fact this greatest of all nations of which we are part has an imperative defense. The city of Lowell gives lavishly in support of its schools, asking no return except that the recipients of its bounty realize the fact that they are all possessed of one heritage, and are all growing up to be citizens, developers and defenders of our common country, with one government and one destiny.

The order of learning is wisely taken up with, first, that which is necessary and, second, that which is useful, while a part of that which is necessary is made mandatory, thereby precluding the possibility of that great blight of mankind, illiteracy. Education means more than mere book knowledge, for by it the child is inspired with worthy motives, pure morality is inculcated and discipline is instilled. In a word as has been truly said: Education leads the human soul to what is best. Is it any wonder then a municipality in the exercise of jealous care over its future citizenship knows no limit in its expenditures in behalf of education? Is it any wonder that its heart wells up with honest pride when upon an occasion of this kind the successful results of its guardianship bud forth in fragrant beauty before an enraptured public?

To the class of 1912, one of the largest in history I am informed, as mayor I tender the congratulations and best wishes of all Lowell. The surest forerunner of your future success in the great battle of life is the fact that you have adopted as your vade mecum the class motto, 'Perseverando.' 'By Perseverance.' There are two ways of attaining an important end, by force and by perseverance. The power of force is given only to a privileged few but perseverance can be practised by the humblest and steadfastly practised its power becomes irresistible. It is not given to all to be successful at once but he who has failed but has never the less gone on will do better in the end than many who have succeeded at the start. 'Perseverance,' says the philosopher, 'gives power to weakness and opens the way to the world's wealth.' There are few things impossible to diligence and skill and failure is generally the result of want of application rather than of means. With your class motto before you, seek high ideals and in your endeavor to attain them, be of strong heart and persevere; be mindful that 'The conquest of conquest are always easy. We have but to toil awhile, endure awhile, believe always, and never turn back.' A bright and prosperous future await you all.

Salutatory Address

The salutatory, 'An Ideal Woman,' delivered by Miss Teresa Garland Lew, was as follows:

'Strength and honor are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. Give her of the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her within the gates.'

These words from the description of the ideal woman in the last chapter of the book of Proverbs may well be said of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, whose long life of ninety-one years ended less than two years ago.

As a child, Julia Ward was fond of study and this fondness continued to the end of her life. When very young she was familiar with French, Italian and Latin; the latter studied German and when six years of age, began to read Greek, the reading of which language was afterwards the source of her greatest pleasure. On parting with a young friend the summer she was ninety years old, Mrs. Howe said, 'Study Greek, my dear, it's better than a diamond necklace.' Her daughter, Mrs. Howe, who was given over to study, which her children were never allowed to interrupt. But afterwards and evenings, she would sing and play for the children, for she had a beautiful voice, and would often teach them songs. She sometimes wrote plays and acted in them to further her children's pleasure. Her own daughters in their books praise and honor her for her strength and beauty of character, and love to dwell upon the hours, which in her busiest days, she always devoted to them. Truly, 'her children (will) arise up and call her blessed, her husband also and he praiseth her.' About religious matters Mrs. Howe rarely talked with her children. But that side of her nature is gleaned from her poems and other writings. Her daughter said, 'her first waking act was prayer, aspiration; her last, thanksgiving and praise. She lived in daily communion with divine life, and a deep spiritual joy seemed to envelop her. In the first part of her 70th year she, for a short time, was depressed with the thought of her 'three score years and ten' but when she found as the days went by, that she was as strong and energetic that year as she had been in her 60th, all her joyous activity returned. She lived to help all, a life whose ideal aim was to teach, to serve, and to enjoy.' It was this spirit of joyful service which enabled her to continue her work until she passed away '21 years young.'

'Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain, but a woman that feareth the Lord she shall be praised.'

Friends of the Lowell High School, in behalf of the class of 1912, I thank you for the interest you have shown in us by your presence here and extend to you all the heartiest greetings.

afterwards became her husband. Throughout their married life he found that 'the heart of her husband doth safely trust in her so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good, and not evil all the days of her life.'

Mrs. Howe was deeply interested in all her husband's work. She assisted him in editing 'The Commonwealth,' a paper advocating the abolition of slavery. She also pleaded the causes of Greece and Armenia, two countries which her husband was struggling to assist. During the Civil war she was very deeply interested in the work for the Union soldiers and at this time she wrote her most famous poem. One day a friend asked her why she did not write a song for the soldiers. During that evening, Mrs. Howe had this in her mind, and the next morning she awoke and found that some verses had formed in her mind. Her poems often came to her in the early morning. At once she arose and wrote the words of a song that was to spread throughout the world and work its way into the heart of the nation.

'Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord. He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored. He hath loosed the fatal lightning of his terrible swift sword, His truth is marching on.'

Notwithstanding her zeal during the war, Mrs. Howe thought that war was a return to barbarism, so she instituted a peace crusade. She appealed to the mothers of the different nations to aid her in her task. In behalf of peace she visited England and spent some time there lecturing on peace. Although she did not accomplish all that she wished, she aroused public sentiment in favor of universal peace both in England and America. She also instituted a Mothers' day in which the women should teach their children to love peace. Another crusade in the last years of her life was to obtain purer milk. To aid the cause, she appeared before the Massachusetts legislature and argued in such a manner that even the milk dealers realized the truth of what she said. Truly may it be said of her, 'She stretcheth out her hands to the poor, yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy. She openeth her mouth with wisdom and her tongue is the law of kindness.'

Although Mrs. Howe did not 'lay her hand to the spindle,' or 'make fine linen,' as did Solomon's ideal woman, she accomplished much good in other ways. She took a prominent part in the Woman's Suffrage movement, although much ridiculed. For many years she was president of the N. E. Woman's club, and of the Association for the Advancement of Women. She was the founder of a club of young girls in Boston, which has served as a model for similar associations in other cities.

Truly may it be said of Mrs. Howe, 'she looketh well to the ways of her household, and catcheth not of the bread of idleness,' for she did not neglect her home life for her public work. Her mornings were given over to study, which her children were never allowed to interrupt. But afterwards and evenings, she would sing and play for the children, for she had a beautiful voice, and would often teach them songs. She sometimes wrote plays and acted in them to further her children's pleasure. Her own daughters in their books praise and honor her for her strength and beauty of character, and love to dwell upon the hours, which in her busiest days, she always devoted to them. Truly, 'her children (will) arise up and call her blessed, her husband also and he praiseth her.'

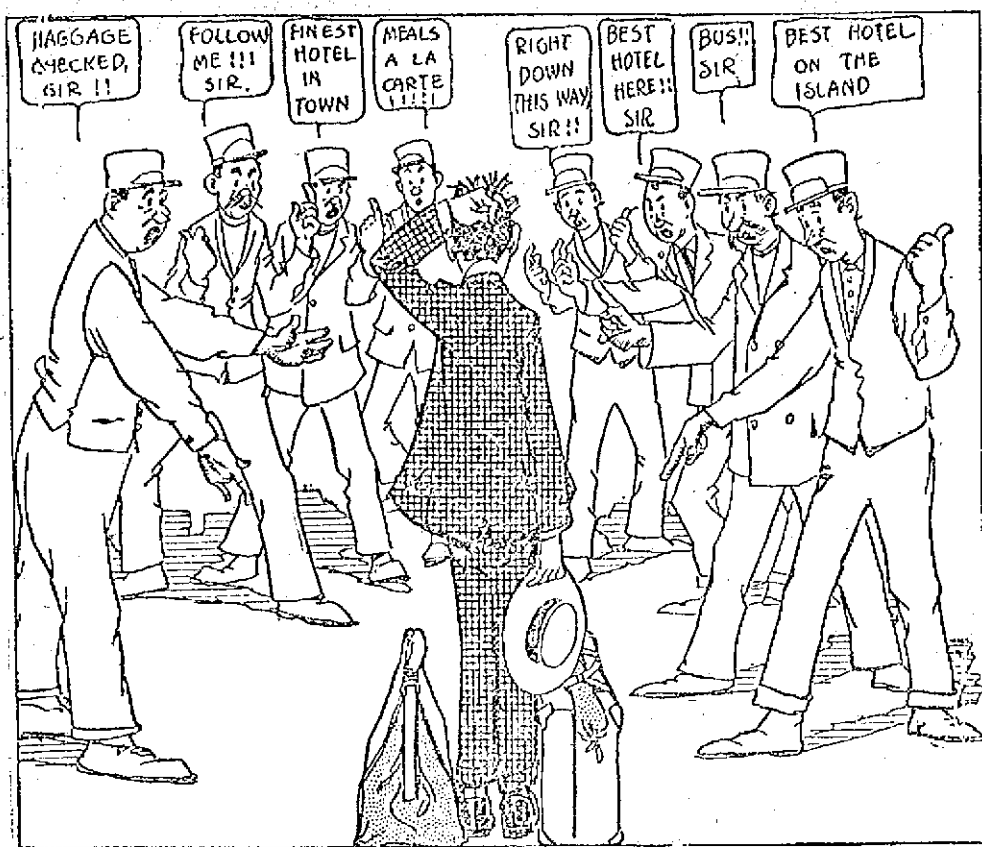

About religious matters Mrs. Howe rarely talked with her children. But that side of her nature is gleaned from her poems and other writings. Her daughter said, 'her first waking act was prayer, aspiration; her last, thanksgiving and praise. She lived in daily communion with divine life, and a deep spiritual joy seemed to envelop her. ## ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY

The commissioner of streets and highways says he has not gone along far enough to ascertain whether or not the city can make its own concrete and do its own repairing on streets and sidewalks at less cost than to have the work done by contract. The city's concrete plant is a portable affair and was doing business in Central street today. In the vicinity of the New American house. A small portion of the granite sidewalk near the Merrimack street entrance to the city hall is being forced up by the roots of trees, and

Commissioner Brown says he will have it attended to in a few days.

For July Fourth

Mayor O'Donnell is making arrangements for band concerts and entertainments for the children on July Fourth. There will be five band concerts, one in the afternoon and four in the evening. The mayor is also considering the advisability of a parade, and has directed that the city hall be decorated with flags and bunting. The city hall is being forced up by the roots of trees, and mayor feels that it would be appreciated.

Made Permanent Janitor

Commissioner Cummings has notified the civil service commission that he has appointed Michael P. O'Brien a permanent janitor at city hall. Mr. O'Brien has a high rating on the civil service list and has been temporarily employed as janitor at the hall for several months.

Signs on Buildings

If you want to erect a sign on top of a building it's up to you to see the inspector of buildings before you proceed to do business, otherwise you may have to pull down what you build up. Inspector Connor has stopped quite a number of sign men within the last few days and speaking of the matter today. Alderman Cummings, who has charge of that department, said that in order to avoid arguments all persons desirous of erecting signs on tops of buildings will be referred to the city beautiful committee of the board of trade.

WILSON MEN WIN POINT BY DEFEATING UNIT RULE

Humphrey O'Sullivan Wants a Federal Department of Corporations Established

BALTIMORE, June 27.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey won a decisive victory in the democratic national convention here last night, when a vote of 565½ to 495½ (not voting or absent, 33) his minority report to abrogate the unit rule was accepted over the majority report.

The vote followed a debate that was called for 33 minutes by a demonstration for Wilson.

As the big clocks at either end of the hall began to point toward 11, the delegates grew restless and cries of "Vote, vote," came from all parts of the floor.

The debate continued until 10:55 p. m., when the roll was ordered called.

The whole debate had turned upon the situation in Ohio, where nine congressional districts instructed their 18 delegates for Wilson, and where the democratic state convention, controlled by the Harmon forces, adopted a resolution binding the state delegation to vote as a unit according to the dictates of the majority of the delegates. This majority was for Harmon.

The majority report from the committee on rules proposed to recognize the right of state conventions so to apply the unit rule. The minority report, urged by the Wilson people, proposed to abrogate the rule.

The vote was on the substitution of the minority or pro-Wilson report for the majority report.

The adherents of Woodrow Wilson claimed last night that their candidate had made distinct gains during the day. They asserted, without giving details, that some of the Clark sentiment was turning toward the New Jersey governor, and Wilson men were in a more hopeful mood than at any time during the convention period.

"Dark horses" were being discussed everywhere by the leaders and delegates last night, but there appeared to be some difficulty in crystallizing sentiment as to which horse is darkest.

Senator John W. Kern of Indiana, Mr. Bryan's choice for temporary chairman of the convention and chairman of the committee drawing up the party platform, still appeared to hold the lead among the "dark horses." The coalition of the Bryan and Wilson forces in the first fight of the convention, however, led to talk of the strength ultimately going to Wilson.

Prophecy Difficult.

The one outstanding fact in the situation seemed to be the absolute impossibility of any candidate having a sufficient number of votes on the first ballot to nominate. The unit rule prevailing in democratic conventions always makes predictions difficult.

After the first ballot is taken it remains to be seen how well the Clark managers can hold their votes together. Some of the delegates predict that the voting would run through a large number of ballots, while others predicted with equal confidence that the "break" would come quickly and nomination made on the second or third call of the roll.

boon him as a presidential candidate yesterday, though they were silent to take advantage of any psychological moments that might happen along. It was reported that many Bryan buttons and banners had arrived in town, but they were not distributed yesterday.

Mr. Bryan's followers warmly defended the course he has pursued in the convention, and declare he still is in a position to dictate the nominee. Mr. Bryan yesterday declined to accept the chairmanship of the platform committee, but his close friend, Senator Kern, was chosen in his place. Last night Mr. Bryan reported the platform as "coming along nicely."

It was said the platform would be ready for the convention by the time the nomination for president had been made. At Mr. Bryan's suggestion, it was determined not to present a platform until after the candidate had been named.

Parker Fight a Test

In Mr. Bryan's behalf it was said last night that his fight on Judge Parker for the temporary chairmanship was influenced largely by a desire to get a line on the different delegations. The Nebraska had not had an opportunity to make a poll, and it was said the chairmanship fight was his only means of learning at the outset just what was to be met and dealt with.

It was generally reported about the convention hall last night that a member of the western Clark delegations that cast their votes for Judge Parker for temporary chairman were beginning to "hear from home" on account of alleged dissension of the progressive cause. It also was common gossip that there was a good deal of feeling between the Bryan and Clark forces.

In the committee on credentials yesterday the Clark forces clearly controlled. The sitting delegates from South Dakota pledged to Wilson were announced in favor of the Clark contestants, while six uninstructed delegates from the District of Columbia were unsated in favor of six instructed for Clark.

While yesterday's meeting of the Massachusetts delegation was in progress, the Massachusetts delegates unanimously adopted resolutions introduced by Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell, calling upon the convention committee on resolutions to provide in the platform a plank favoring the establishment of a federal department of corporations.

The resolution reads:

"Whereas, it appears that the political parties in these United States admit that a new source of danger threatens the fundamental principles of democratic government through the vast accumulation of wealth by the organization of corporations known as trusts; and whereas,

"The political power of these corporations seems to be increasing to the extent of overshadowing the government itself, to the detriment of the rights of the people and the frequent perversion of the public will and public good; and, whereas,

"It appears to all thinking democrats that the salvation of the democratic principles of government can only be maintained through a proper, just and sane, legal and fair control of corporations; and, whereas,

"It also appears that no department of government now exists charged with the important duty of investigation, knowledge, supervision and administration of this vast economic problem of government; now, therefore, be it resolved,

"That this, the Massachusetts delegation to the national democratic party present to the national convention of delegates a resolution that there be incorporated in the national democratic platform a plank or section committing to establish a new department of our national government, charged with the duties of investigation, knowledge, supervision and control of corporations or trusts; and that said department shall be known as the department of corporations.

"That said secretary should be a member of and have a seat and voice in the cabinet of the president of these United States;

"That said department shall be charged with all the powers pertinent to a proper administration of and execution of all laws enacted by the congress effecting corporations of whatever kind and shall work with an eye single to the progress, peace and well-being of the whole people, and for the upbuilding and conservation of the fundamental principles of democratic government as laid down by the fathers of this great republic."

The proposed plank is:

THE LATEST MODEL OF 1912.

This wonderful cooker is the greatest invention in the culinary line of 1912. It is not necessary to heat the food, as in all other cookers, but you put the food to be cooked in raw, and it is utterly impossible for the contents to scorch or burn. It holds six dishes at once and is the only cooker that bakes perfectly light bread, rolls, cakes, pies, cookies and puddings. It roasts beef, veal, mutton, pork, chicken and cooks all kinds of vegetables, whether boiled, baked, roasted, fried, steamed or steamed. Best of all, there is absolutely no evaporation or odor. The lining as well as the cooking vessels is of pure aluminum, which insures the cooker against rust.

AN AFRICAN JUMPER

Would be a Rival of
George Horine

If a Watussi should come to this country there would be much sorrow for George L. Horine, world's champion high jumper.

What's a Watussi? Among other things, he is a negro of German East Africa whose athletic achievements outline anything yet done by Horine and other champions of the civilized world.

In the National Geographic magazine is an article by Adolphus Frederick, duke of Mecklenburg, entitled "A Land of Giants and Pygmies," in which some interesting facts concerning the prowess of the Watussi, inhabiting German East Africa, are given.

The world's record for a running high jump was 6 feet 5½ inches until Horine recently set a new mark at 6 feet 7 inches. But a Watussi athlete would clear this height without the least difficulty. According to the Duke of Mecklenburg he would not consider himself in a real contest until the rod were placed nearly two feet higher.

In reference to the athletes of the Watussi the Duke of Mecklenburg writes as follows of his experience while visiting this tall and well made people of almost ideal physique, who range in height from 5 feet 11½ inches to 7 feet 2½ inches.

"The following days were devoted to sports and athletic exercises, of which the high jumping of the young Watussi was a most remarkable feature."

"A line which could be raised or lowered at will was stretched between two slender trees standing on an incline. The athletes had to run up to this and jump from a small terraced heap a foot in height. Despite these unfavorable conditions, exhibitions were given which would place all European efforts in the shade. The 1st jumper—slender, but splendid figure—attained the incredible height of 250 meters (8 feet 5 inches), and young boys made the relatively no less wonderful performance of 150 to 160 meters (5 feet)."

The terraced heap from which the Watussi jump is a sponge and mound and is but a handspan to the jumping, given by the German explorer indicates that the Watussi have not only a shade on Horine in color, but several shades in jumping.

APPLEGATE PITCHED FOR LOWELL

tage, Though Haver-
hill Won, 3 to 0

HAVERHILL, June 27.—The Lowell champs came to town yesterday and were defeated by the locals by the score of 3 to 0 in one of the best games seen here this season. Both teams presented new men on the mound. Lowell sending in Applegate who pitched his first game of the season in a Lowell uniform, and he did good work. Haverhill's new one answers to the name of Johnson, and while the champs got eight hits from his delivery he kept them well scattered.

For three innings it was a great pitchers' battle, neither side scoring, but in the fourth Haverhill broke the string of ciphers and sent two men over the pan. Young flied out. Cross went out on a grounder, Roultes to McGraw. Campbell singled to right, Campbell worked the delay steal successfully and White walked. Pratt got a two-bagger to right and two runs came home. The last hit should have been flied by De Groot, but he again demonstrated his weakness on ground balls with the result that the hit which ought to have been a single went for an extra base hit. Johnson fanned.

In the seventh Haverhill got another. Pratt flied out to Magee, who made a brilliant catch. Johnson died to De Groot. Courtney doubled to left. Carney was hit by a pitched ball. Mathews walked, and there were three on. Young hit a slow one to Lancaster and Courtney scored, the play to first being impossible. Cross flied to Clemens.

The score:

DIAMOND NOTES

Lowell will play a double-header with Lynn at Spalding park tomorrow, first game at two o'clock.

Herbert White, of the city of Lowell, who played with the local New England team at the opening of the season, played with Haverhill yesterday and put up a good game.

Keating of Lawrence won another game yesterday.

Tyler was his game for Boston Nationals yesterday.

Joe Wood got the better of Walter Johnson in a pitchers' duel yesterday. The game was a heart and only seven hits were made by both teams. Boston getting four and Washington the rest.

The Red Sox look good on the top of the American league ladder.

AMATEUR BASEBALL
The Independents of North Billerica would like to hear from some strong team for a game Saturday, June 29th, to be played at North Billerica. Address communications to Manager, Box 250, North Billerica.

The Giant and Two Midget Members of the American Olympic Team

One of the most amusing spectacles were taken ill, but still they stuck to aboard the Finland, which left New York June 14 with the American Olympic team bound for Sweden, was the constant companionship of the giant Ralph Rose of California and the two midgets Strobino of New Jersey and Tewanima, the Indian. When the ship land, Rose, who weighs over 300 was two days out these three athletes: pounds, towers head and shoulders

THE HANDS ARE THE GREATEST NECESSITY IN THE
BOXING GAME AT PRESENT

After all, the hands are the thing. Without them the ideal fighting face or the perfect fighting build is as naught. And with them the head, the power and all the other requisites of the successful ring artist can have but secondary consideration.

Battling Nelson, who has stopped more battery charges than any fighter of a decade, had to go into temporary retirement not very long ago because his maulers gave out. He banged Sammy Trott so often on the head at Springfield, O., recently that the bones of his crippled punishers could not stand the strain after ten rounds, and he had to stall out the rest of the fight. Just imagine the Dane having to quit on account of his hands! Talk about the irony of fate! Most of us pictured the battler sprawled out over five feet and a half of canvas, knocked "dead" by a punch. That seemed the plausible exit of Nelson from the game. We figured he couldn't stand the wallpings forever, even though he "ain't hardly lamma."

Hugo Kelly, the Italian middleweight of Chicago, fought Eddie McGoorty at South Bend, Ind., recently and took a beating. The battle was the first for Hugo in months. He had been nursing a pair of bad hands. Those same hands possibly kept Kelly from a title. He gave Papko more trouble than any fighter outside of Ketchel. The Italian was a clever fellow, with a cutting left hand, who administered more punishment than he received. But he had to take periodical layoffs on account of tender hands, which were always getting hurt.

Until he injured his hitters Frank Erne was champion of them all in the lightweight division. He was the possessor of a terrific punch, and many of the bones in both hands were splintered at one time or another, causing him much agony. While he was generally willing to put all his steam into a blow, despite the pain he knew it would bring, in his later career he didn't take as many chances. Consequently a great deal of his effectiveness was lost.

Another fighter whose period of money making within the ropes was lessened by his hands failing him was Bob Fitzsimmons. Bob, of course, was old enough to quit when knocked out by Bill Lang three years ago, but he could have parlayed with the gloves for at least a year longer but for his fighting apparatus. It is remarkable, however, that Fitz's hands lasted as long as they did, for he was a terrific hitter.

If Bob Moha fails to cop the middleweight belt he may attribute his failure in large measure to weak hands. For the build of him and the strength, Bob has unusually frail hands.

SOME OF THE "DON'TS" THAT MAY GUIDE PROSPECTIVE
BASEBALL PLAYERS

Don't try to pitch without first getting control.
Don't irritate—he natural.
Don't try to beat the batters.
Don't lose your nerve.
Don't forget that there are eight others in the game.
Don't think because you are young the other players are pulling against you.
Don't fail to cover first base.
Don't blame individual players if they lose a game.
Don't try to strike out all the batters.

Rube Marquard, Giants' Star Twirler,
Sensation of Pitching World

Besides being the sensation of the pitching world this season, Rube Marquard, the Giants' star twirler, is also doing some great work with the willow and is one of the leading boxmen in the batting line.

PRIZEFIGHTERS OF THE FUTURE TO DO THEIR TRAINING
IN AEROPLANES

"Prizefighters of the future will do most of their training in aeroplanes."

This remarkable and revolutionary statement was made recently by Kid McCoy, the pugilist, who formerly held the middleweight and welterweight championships.

"Indulgence in aviation is a splendid way of training," announced McCoy after he had navigated a five mile course through the air in a borrowed aeroplane.

"It quickens every sense. The flier must be on the alert all the time. He must be strong too. Every one can see the immense possibilities of getting pure, fresh air when one is about a mile up in the sky. No germs, no dust, no vitiated atmosphere, no nothing."

"Some fighters may never get any nearer heaven than the 10,000 foot altitude mark, but even that has its compensations. They would probably be lonesome anyhow."

McCoy has written to Champion Jack Johnson explaining the usefulness of the aeroplane, but the Ethiopian bruiser has not yet got beyond the automobile stage.

THE GREEN PRIZEFIGHTER

How the Manager Settled With Him

They call Leach Cross, the New York lightweight, the champion of the cloakmakers, because that industrious class turn out en masse to see Cross fight. They usually see a good fight, too. Cross may take a sharp advantage when he gets the chance—he declares that he will pull any trick he can, whether it is considered unorthodox or not, if the referee will let him get away with it—but he is game, and he carries a punch in each hand. If he lands it right, pretty nearly any lightweight will wobble awhile. "They say I'm too good a business man to be a fighter," said Cross recently. "Well, I learned to be a good business man from men who were better business men than I'll ever be."

And he told the story. When he was a kid he wanted to fight before an athletic club named after a certain prominent member of the Order of the Tightly Cling Fingers. He called on the manager of the club. "I'll give yuh a chanst, kid," said the individual, "but I gotta be yuhr manager." Of course he assented, and when he went on to fight a preliminary battle a few nights afterward he was knocked out in one round and lost a tooth. After the fight he went into the manager's office to get his money.

"Yuh got $5 comin' to yuh for fightin' a prelm," said the manager. "Well, that was all right. That's all they ever pay a green kid for a preliminary fight. The manager counted it out in silver.

"Now," said he, "Tm your manager, and so my bit is two dollars 'n' a half." He put that sum in his trousers pockets. "An' you brought in a pair of kids for seconds. Yuh didn't have no right to do that, but I'll only charge you 75 cents apiece. That's a dollar 'n' a half. An' bein' this is yuhr first fight I'll only charge yuh half a buck for the use of the towels and water bottles. So here's your cents."

"Oh, yoi," said Cross in consternation. "I got knocked out in the first round and lost a tooth and all for only 50 cents!"

Look at the nice fight you had," said the manager cheerfully.

FOUND GUILTY OF LARCENY MAN WAS SENT TO JAIL

Sentence in an Assault Case Suspended—Other Cases in Police Court Today

Frank Mundry was arraigned before Judge John J. Pickman in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with two counts of larceny. In the first count he was charged with the larceny of $2 from Herbert A. Simmons of the J. B. Currier Co., under-takers in Prescott street, and in the second count with the larceny of $3 from Michael McMullen, a clerk in a saloon in Gorham street. The man admitted his guilt and with tears in his eyes begged for mercy and said that it had not been for drink he would never have done what he did. His plea for clemency was a good one and the court suspended sentence but after Probation Officer Slattery had telephoned to Lawrence and learned that the man had been convicted several times in that city for larceny, Mundry was sentenced to three months in jail. Mundry belongs in Lawrence and has a wife and two children there. He came to this city several days ago and worked his way to the J. B. Currier Co.'s establishment in Prescott street and told Mr. Simmons that there was going to be a christening at his home and he wanted several hacks. He said he had a check which he was going to cash but wanted $2 in order to do some shopping before the check started on the trail and about 2:30 o'clock located Mundry in the saloon in Gorham street and placed him under arrest. Mundry admitted that he received the money from Messrs. Simmons and McMullen and also that he had received a dollar from Mr. McDoughough but returned it afterwards. He said that he came from Lawrence and had been drinking and would not have committed the act if he had been sober. The court was inclined to be lenient with the defendant and suspended sentence in order to learn something of the man's record.

Probation Officer Slattery telephoned to Lawrence and learned that the defendant had been arrested in that city five times for larceny and convicted, and was at one time found guilty of being drunk.

Mundry put up a pitiful plea and, taking his coat off, showed his sun-burned and blistered arms in order to demonstrate that he had been working on a farm of late and had been very industrious since he was released from jail. He was sentenced to three months in jail.

Assault and Battery

Thomas Pepin was charged with assault and battery on Wilfred Aubrey and admitted that he was guilty but after the court had considered the case sentence was suspended for three weeks.

Stole a Pint of Milk

John P. Whitaker was charged with the larceny of a pint of milk valued at four cents and a bottle valued at five cents, the property of Charles D. Appleton, who conducts a store in Appleton street. According to the testimony the defendant was passing through Appleton street about six o'clock this morning and pilfered a bottle of milk. Primo Turcotte, who resides in a tenement over the store, saw the man take the bottle and followed him and subsequently "Whittaker" was placed under arrest. He was sentenced to one month in jail.

Offended an Officer

Last night when Wagon Officer Patrick Frawley was sitting on the veranda of his house, Andrew Spellacy came along and used very abusive language and intimated that inasmuch as Officer Frawley did not have his uniform on he would not make an arrest. Mr. Frawley arose from his chair and going into the street grabbed Spellacy and took him to the nearest patrol box and had him locked for drunkenness. The defendant will spend the next four months in the bastille in Thorndike street.

Drunken Offenders

Joseph Taylor, charged with being drunk, was sentenced to ten days in jail. There was one first offender who was fined $2 and five simple drunks were released.

DEPOT NEWS

VACATION TRAVEL NOW ON IN FULL SWING

The vacation season is now on in full swing and every day during the last week there has been a large exodus of Lowell people leaving for other parts. The greater portion of those leaving Lowell at the present time are going east. Old Orchard beach, Maine, being the destination of the great majority.

The departure of so many at the same time has kept the employees of the local depot on the jump and this morning the baggage room was packed with trunks and suit cases and the majority were tagged for different parts of Maine. Owing to the increased business at the station during the summer months, the men are obliged to work through the season.

Thirty immigrants arrived at the local depot this morning, at 9:45 o'clock, the train being 55 minutes late. All left for other places, many going to Lawrence.

Upon inquiry at the station it was learned that the new time schedule is working finely and that it seems to be giving general satisfaction.

Last night at the depot, there was one of the largest crowds that ever assembled in that vicinity in the evening. One man was heard to remark: "Well has daddy visited his again?" We were told that the cause of the big attendance was due to the fact that many couples were to start on their wedding trips on the 9:15 train.

Owing to the law governing vehicles, a sign is to be placed on the Thorndike street side of the main driveway at the Middlesex street station, notifying all drivers that taxis must enter from the other side.

The Saturday after the Fourth is "Dividend Quarter Day" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

GOVERNOR HADLEY REFUSED NOMINATION

When Taft Men Made the Proposition

CEGAR RAPIDS, Ia., June 27.—Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri today confirmed the statements of Col. Roosevelt and Comptroller Prendergast of New York that Taft leaders had offered at Chicago to seat the Roosevelt delegates from Washington and Texas if Roosevelt would consent to the nomination of Gov. Hadley or some other third man. Gov. Hadley passed through here today on his way to fill a Chautauqua engagement.

"This proposition was made to me and I understood that it also was made to Col. Roosevelt," said Gov. Hadley. "I refused to consider it unless it first had the approval of Mr. Roosevelt, as I was for him for the nomination and no one else. I was told afterward that Col. Roosevelt had refused his consent."

HENRY FERNALD HAD A NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY

Electrician Henry C. Fernald, of the fire department, had a narrow escape from being badly hurt, while responding to an alarm from box 15 shortly before one o'clock this morning, but fortunately he and the horse which he was driving escaped injury.

When the automobile patrol went out of commission Mr. Fernald has been carrying 15 blankets of the protective company for use in case of emergency and his wagon was heavily laden.

In passing along Central street in the vicinity of Union street the truck was ahead of him and he turned to the left and his horse struck a barrel which was placed at the end of an excavation for a sewer pipe leading to one of the houses in the vicinity.

When the horse struck the barrel it went down on its knees. Following Electrician Fernald's carriage was a vehicle driven by Paul Keyes and when Mr. Fernald's horse dropped the horse driven by Mr. Keyes got one of its feet over the rear axle of the electrician's wagon.

Mr. Fernald jumped from his wagon and assisted his horse to its feet and later helped extricate Mr. Keyes' horse. The alarm from box 15 was sent in at 1:53 o'clock and was for a fire in a mattress in a house at 50 Chapel street. The fire was extinguished before any material damage was done.

LOCAL POLICE ARE LOOKING FOR AN ALLEGED FAKE MUSIC DEALER

It is reported that a fake music dealer is operating in this city and has already swindled several dollars from people who subscribe for music sheets. The party it is said charges $1.50 for a subscription for popular music, promising his customers they will get the music six months before it is cut on the market. The subscription stands for one year and the subscriber, according to the agent, will receive about $10 worth of sheet music. The Nashua police are on the lookout for a party who a few months ago successfully worked the same game in the New Hampshire city. Several local people gave their $1.50 a couple of months ago and are still waiting for their music.

ADVERTISING AGENCIES MEET
PITTSBURGH, June 27.—A committee appointed at Dallas, Texas, by the Associated Advertising Clubs of America met here yesterday and organized the National Association of Advertising Agencies of America. An executive committee was elected and a membership committee of nine appointed to elect members throughout the country to attend the first annual meeting, which will be held in this city September 10.

MARTIN H. MAGUIRE AND MISS McNULTY

Were Married Last Night
—Many Weddings

Mr. Martin H. Maguire, the well known tenor soloist, who formerly resided in this city, but who is at present engaged in the jewelry business in North Attleboro, and Miss Alice McNulty, a popular young lady of the Sacred Heart parish, were united in marriage at the parochial residence of the Sacred Heart church yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O. M. I., who is a close friend of the groom, both having attended the parish school in boyhood days. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mollie McNulty as bridesmaid and the best man was Mr. Frank Maguire.

The bride was charmingly attired in a white wedding suit and she wore a large white picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli. The bridesmaid looked beautiful in a pale blue silk gown and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mathias McNulty, West London street, where a reception was held and a sumptuous wedding supper served.

A pleasing feature of the affair was the return home of Edward McNulty, brother of the bride, who for the past several months has been located at Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He arrived in Lowell Tuesday and plans to stay here for the summer. His return completed the Glendale quartet of which Mr. Maguire and Mr. McNulty are members, and they rendered several selections. Others to contribute to the musical program were Mrs. Maguire, mother of the groom, Mr. Thomas Hanly, John Devlin, Frank Maguire, Martin Maguire, Frank McArthur, John Ryan, Fred Flaherty and Walter Flaherty, and Little Cyril Tuohy. The latter gave several selections that were greatly enjoyed.

Rev. George Flannigan, of St. Mary's church, North Attleboro, at which Mr. Maguire is leading soloist, was present and Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., pastor and Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O. M. I., assistant pastor of the Sacred Heart parish, called during the evening and after extending their congratulations, Fr. Smith, in recognition of the many favors of the groom in taking part in church affairs in the past, presented him and his bride with beautiful gold medals of the Sacred Heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Maguire were the recipients of many beautiful presents. They left the home of the bride for the depot about 9 o'clock in a large touring car, and were accompanied by the guests of the evening, who rode in hacks. Upon arrival at the depot, despite the fact that many other couples were there to take the train, the bride and groom were the first to be seen off.

Mr. Maguire was one that will be long remembered by all present. The other three members of the Glendale quartet dined around Mr. and Mrs. Maguire, and sang a series of selections. The excellent singing attracted a large crowd and one of the features of the informal depot program was the beautiful lullaby, "Sleep, Baby Sleep," in which Mr. Maguire, did the yodelling in the chorus.

The happy couple were showered with confetti. They will visit New York, Philadelphia and Washington and upon their return will reside at 23 Fisher street, North Attleboro.

QUEENAN-NICHOLS

The wedding of Mr. William J. Queenan, manager of the John Vialos Wholesale Fruit Co., and Miss Louise Nichols was solemnized yesterday at St. Patrick's rectory, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan. The happy couple were attended by Mr. Joseph G. Queenan, brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Elizabeth Dolan. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white tulle and wore a picture hat to match. While the bridesmaid wore a gown of white voile and carried a bouquet of white roses. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John Queenan, 313 Worthen street, which was attended by the immediate friends and relatives, some being present from Lawrence and Manchester, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Queenan left in the early evening on an extended wedding tour, including a visit to the bride's former home in New Brunswick. On their return they will live at 83 Varney street, and will be at home to friends after August 1. The gift to the bridesmaid was a beautiful pendant, and to the best man a stickpin.

WARING-LAWRENCE

Mr. David Waring and Miss Lillian Maud Lawrence, both formerly of this city and now of Suncook, N. H., were united in the bonds of matrimony at the latter place Wednesday morning, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. C. Everingham. The witnesses were Ernest Waring and Miss Theresa Gagnon.

The bride wore a very becoming gown of white and a picture hat. She also carried a beautiful bouquet of roses. A reception followed the ceremony, at which were gathered many friends of the young people, who wished them every success for the future.

A wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Waring left shortly after on a wedding tour to Niagara Falls and Toronto, where they will visit friends. They will be at home to friends after August 1st in Suncook, where they will reside.

O'LOUGHLIN-CAMPBELL

At the parochial residence of St. Peter's church at five o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. John B. O'Loughlin and Miss Anna V. Campbell were married by Rev. W. George Mullin. The bride wore white satin with pearl trimmings and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Anna O'Loughlin, a sister of the bridegroom, wore white tulle and carried pink roses. The best man was Mr. Edward J. Campbell, a brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception to friends was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Campbell, 53 Keene street. After August 1st Mr. and Mrs. O'Loughlin will be at home to friends at 175 Chapel street.

BRUNET-WALLACE

Mr. Frank Brunet and Miss Margaret Wallace were married yesterday afternoon at St. Patrick's rectory, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Timothy P. Callahan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Catherine Wallace, and Mr. Arthur Brunet was best man. A reception followed the ceremony, at which a large number of the friends and relatives attended. Mr. and Mrs. Brunet received numerous gifts.

DEVLIN-MCGANN

Mr. John J. Devlin, very well known as a member of the Bachelor club, and Miss Margaret McGann were united in marriage last evening at the parochial residence of St. Peter's church. Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan performed the ceremony at 5:15 o'clock. The bride was handsomely dressed in a gown of white marquisette over white silk, and carried white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Catherine Duggan, wore pink marquisette over pink silk and carried pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, 505 Gorham street, Mr. and Mrs. Devlin left for their honeymoon during the evening. After Aug. 1st they will be at home at 11 Hale street.

QUIGLEY-BOSCA

Mr. John H. Quigley and Miss Sadie A. Bosca were married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the parochial residence of St. Patrick's church by Rev. Timothy P. Callahan. Miss Julia Bosca, a sister, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Charles Quigley was best man.

ROBERTS-O'HARA

Rev. Timothy P. Callahan united in marriage at the parochial residence of St. Patrick's church yesterday afternoon, Mr. Daniel F. Roberts and Miss Elizabeth O'Hara, both well known young people of the city. Miss Catherine Connors was bridesmaid and Mr. William Rowe best man.

KITCHEN-FISHER

Rev. Caleb E. Fisher last evening united in marriage Mr. Arthur B. Kitchen and Miss Ella Brown Fisher. The ceremony being performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. McNamara, 229 Harrison street. The couple were unattended. A reception was held from 7 to 9 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen will be at home to their friends at 133 Stackpole street after Aug. 1.

MORRISON-GROVER

SAN FRANCISCO WOMEN DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Are Playing Prominent Part in Politics

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Some striking sentiments as to the part played by women in the national life have been expressed by state presidents before the General Federation of Women's clubs in session here.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, of New York, speaking of the club women of New York, said:

"In the Empire state women are becoming more alive to their responsibilities day by day. They not only are cleaning up the alleys and backyards but the municipal government and the laws of the state."

"They are interested in all things that affect women and children," she said.

As representative of West Virginia, Mrs. John F. Ruhl of Charleston said: "Dr. W. W. Wallace, who has been a member of our organization in executing the pure food laws then this federation has improved the national digestion and the national morals."

"Our men could not have climbed so high on the ladder of fame unless our women had steadied the ladder," said Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith of Richmond, Ky., in a tribute to the women of that state.

CERTIFIED "AD"

IS BOUND TO COME ACCORDING TO ALFRED MCCANN

SAGAMORE BEACH, June 27.—"We have certified mail and certified checks. The day of the certified 'ad' is at hand," said Alfred McCann in discussing publicity and public welfare, the principal topic for consideration at today's session of the Sagamore sociological conference. Mr. McCann scored dishonest advertisements and said:

"Advertising to attain its noblest possibilities must begin with a conscience. Happily, advertising men are beginning to realize the abuses to which their profession has been subjected and are beginning to reform from the inside but the reform will be successful only to the extent which the manufacturer lends his co-operation."

Other speakers were George French of Boston, Live Richard of Boston and William Freeman of New York.

A discussion of matters growing out of the Lawrence textile strike was scheduled for this afternoon.

MRS. WM. H. TAFT

WITH FRIEND TO ATTEND THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Mrs. William H. Taft went to Baltimore today, expecting to see the democratic convention choose the man who is to oppose her husband for the presidency of the United States. Mrs. Taft had as a guest Mrs. Hugh Wallace, wife of a delegate. Seats had been reserved for them.

NO CLEW YET

TO IDENTITY OF WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

WOONSOCKET, June 27.—Still without any tangible clew to work upon, the police today continued their efforts to uncover the mystery surrounding the death of the woman whose headless body was found floating in the river here a few days ago.

The police hoped to secure some connection between the headless body and a complete set of woman's clothing found several weeks ago about a mile from where the body was discovered. An effort to locate the missing head is also being made.

TAXES ABATED

FOR THE ESSEX COMPANY OF LAWRENCE

BOSTON, June 27.—The Essex company of Lawrence has been awarded an abatement of $11,321.46 with interest from Sept. 30, 1909, from the city of Lawrence for taxes levied for 1909.

The case was heard by James C. Jackson, commissioner who filed his finding yesterday in the office of the clerk of the superior court at Salem. He finds that the company was assessed $590,233 more than the market value of its property on May 1, 1909.

DOCTOR'S BOYISH FACE

REVEALS SKIN RENEWER

I heard the other day the story of the physician who had an admirable skin that all his women patients asked the secret. He told one, who generously told others, that, knowing the remarkable absorbent property of a good mercurized wax, he concluded this substance would make an excellent complexion renewer and preserver. Knowing the wax could not harm the skin, he began using it after shaving. He soon observed that the old, wrinkled, colorless cuticle was being gradually replaced by a new, healthy, glowing skin. This was the simple secret of the silver-haired doctor with the boyish face.

The secret became public property. Now women everywhere use mercurized wax, applying it nights like cold cream, washing it off mornings—continuing until the complexion is entirely renovated. An ounce of this wax, procured at any drugist's, will banish the worst complexion.

Another valuable rejuvenator used by this doctor was a wrinkle-remover and preventive in the form of a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of exfolite in a half-pint witch hazel. This also has become famous.—Aurilia in Fashion Review.

again today the coat, as a garment was thoroughly discredited. Half an hour before the three set for the convening hour the aisles were crowded and the leaders were still conferring on the platform.

Galleries and floor both stood as the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The opening had already been delayed 40 minutes and the leaders were still talking together on the stage. Rep. Henry of Texas had joined the group, the crowd had steadily grown and every aisle in the galleries was filled. Order the galleries stood solid banks of spectators. Many climbed into the lower galleries of the steel framework supporting the galleries.

The police, worried by the size of the crowd, lightened up their lines.

Situation Dangerous

Long before the presiding officer made any effort to call the convention to order R. S. Crain, chairman of the Baltimore convention committee, reported at the platform that doors were being rushed, ushers and doorkeepers were helpless by reason of lack of organization and that the situation was dangerous. The police were unable to cope with the situation because the convention authorities would not consent to the closing of any entrances.

Mr. Crain estimated that thousands crowded into the hall who were not entitled to admission. Ticket holders who had not arrived at the hall early found their seats occupied. Local authorities urged that the whole situation be taken away from political appointees who were the badges of assistant sergeants-at-arms but the plea was unheeded.

There appeared little hope that the session could be conducted with any semblance of decorum from the moment demonstrations were started. A Missouri delegate with a bundle of Champ Clark lithographs made a round of the floor, tacking the picture to state standards. He placarded California, Colorado, Wyoming, Arkansas. When he reached the latter point a shout of "Tear it down, take it away" broke from rows of delegates and in a flash the pictures had been stripped from the Wyoming and Arkansas standards.

The anti-Clark forces raised a yell of triumph.

Called to Order

Temporary Chairman Parker began pounding for order at 12:45 p. m. Five minutes later the delegates were listening attentively to the opening prayer of Rabbi A. Guggenheim.

The prayer ended, the convention plunged into the South Dakota contest. C. S. Morris of Pennsylvania submitted the minority report favoring the Wilson delegates. Mr. Morris said he was sure the committee on credentials had misapprehended the facts and that the committee should take the vote of the entirely different sets of so-called Clark delegates, add them together and thus claim a majority of Clark delegates over the Wilson delegates. The national committee, he said, had thrown out the Clark claims with scant consideration and he hoped the convention would do likewise.

A nervous man, who went through the crowded aisles as an audacious photographer set off a flashlight directly under the gallery where Mrs. Taft was seated. The wife of the president seemed very much annoyed.

These in charge of the convention were fearful of anything that might start a panic and orders against flashlights were given. The wife of the president seemed very much annoyed.

When the third ticket, the second Clark set of delegates, was placed in the field Mr. McKelvie said the Clark people endeavored to have it withdrawn and the vote concentrated on the second ticket. The secretary of state of South Dakota, he said, refused to allow the ticket to be withdrawn, saying that both the second and third tickets were publicly known as favoring Clark and that therefore the vote of both should be accredited to Clark.

While Mr. McKelvie was in the midst of his argument Senator Lee interrupted him with questions. The floor was thrown into disorder in which the galleries joined. A harsh fish horn made a din among the Missouri delegates. The aisles in the delegates' section were crowded with members of the various delegations who gave up their seats to friends and depended upon their badges to keep their places in the aisles.

Mr. McKelvie concluded with a vigorous defense of the Clark action in South Dakota and Senator Lee voted to report. As the debate on the South Dakota cases continued it was seen that the line between the Clark forces on the one side and the Bryan-Wilson forces on the other would be sharply drawn.

The vote was impatiently awaited and after the first two speeches of "Vote," "Vote," began to rise from the floor.

Henry For Vice President

A vice presidential boom for Rep. Henry of Texas appeared on the floor today. Henry has been a vigorous Wilson-Bryan supporter and he was mentioned by these forces as a possible running mate for the New Jersey governor. Ex-Gov. Blanchard of Louisiana followed Crane. He spoke for the Wilson forces.

While Blanchard talked the huge form of Senator-elect Ollie James appeared at the main entrance. The accepted candidate for permanent chairman received a scattered round of applause. But few people saw him, however.

STEAMER STRUCK A DREDGE

AND ENGINEER WAS KILLED

600 Passengers Transferred in Small Boats to Another Steamer

CALAIS, Me., June 27.—Low tide

adverted a serious accident today when the steamer Grand Manan, carrying 600 excursionists, struck a dredge in the St. Croix river and was damaged.

The second engineer of the dredge, James Carey of East Boston, Mass., who was asleep in the captain's room, was crushed to death. No one else on either the dredge or the steamer was injured.

After running against and sinking the dredge the Grand Manan began leaking and the passengers were transferred to another steamer in small boats. There was little danger of sinking, however, as the river was at low tide.

A misunderstanding of signals is believed to have been responsible for the accident. The Grand Manan was running to St. Stephens with a party of members of the Thistle Athletic association and their friends, after a moonlight sail when the dredge was struck and sunk.

Several months ago Mrs. Seaman was fined $650 for contempt.

Mrs. Seaman was found guilty of contempt of court in connection with a creditors' inquiry begun after a federal judge in Brooklyn declared the company bankrupt. Attorneys for creditors sought to bring out that the American Steel Barrel company, another concern operated by Mrs. Seaman and said to be valued at $2,000,000, was a subsidiary of the bankrupt.

Several months ago Mrs. Seaman was fined $650 for contempt.

NEW YORK, June

The Electrical Fourth!

The latest thing in Fourth! Not size, boom, ah! of the rocket, but press the button, flash and illumination of the incandescent light.

That's the program as arranged by the progressives. Little Willie and Mary will leave the scene of celebration with eyes filled with the beauties of light instead of with gunpowder. Papa and mamma will take little Willie and Mary home in an unscathed condition. The ground will be strewn with papers and peanut shells, perhaps, but not with eyes and limbs. Which will be well.

The electrical Fourth of July as planned by the authorities of New York and other cities will be a thing of beauty as well as of safety. Varicolored lights, arranged in artistic designs, will flash out to Young America their messages of patriotism and devotion to one's country. Houses, arches, bridges and other edifices, as well as trees, will be outlined in red, white and blue, affording topics for comment to crowds of admiring spectators.

New York, with its "Great White Way" that is the amazement and delight of out-of-town visitors, knows well how to arrange incandescent lights in lines and masses that appeal to the senses of form and color. With the current's "winking" motion is well simulated, and what can be prettier, for example, than a huge American flag made of part-colored lights, with the stripes waving and the stars blinking in an effect utterly gorgeous?

Electrical Fireworks

Then there are, of course, the fireworks effects. It is not beyond the ingenuity of electrical engineers and the sign designers to imitate the flight of the skyrocket, the revolving of the pinwheel, the eruption of the flowerpot, the shooting of balls by the Roman candle.

Nothing will be wanting but the noises of the explosions and the cries and groans of those injured by their own or others' carelessness or recklessness. For the innocent noise the music of hands, the words of patriotic oratory, the cheers of spectators, may be substituted to good effect. For the hideous noise that have made too many Fourth's the occasions of nightmares instead of happy enjoyment no substitute is offered and none is wanted. Better on the 5th a whole boy or girl satisfied with innocent amusement than one dead or wounded and threatened with deadly lockjaw.

Not long ago prominent New Yorkers got together and rested the coming electrical Fourth. They chose Riverside drive between West One Hundred and Sixteenth and West One Hundred and Twentieth streets for their test. They festooned 5,000 electrical lights from tree to tree and turned on the current. Many of the lights were inclosed in varicolored Japanese lanterns and the effect was truly gorgeous. Standing at the lower end of the vista of lights and looking north, it appeared to an observer as though he were standing in a long lane of gigantic Christmas trees. "Isn't it beautiful?" exclaimed one man as he stood under the illuminated branches. "With a band to play here and perhaps a platform upon which the people could dance, this would be far better than the old and dangerous displays of fireworks."

For Private Illuminations

To show what could be done in the matter of private illumination if the owner of a house decided to give expression to his patriotic feelings the committee in charge of the display selected a house on Riverside drive and strung half a dozen chains of lights

from roof to ground. The effect was very beautiful, although no attempt was made to outline the windows, doors, etc. There is room, of course, for the exercise of an unlimited quantity of taste and ingenuity.

The cost? Not greater than that of a medium sized fireworks display. In the case mentioned, when a half dozen strings of bulbs dropped from roof to ground, it was estimated that it took $10 for lanterns, lights and wiring and about 50 cents for current. In the New York demonstration the company supplying the lights and the current

said that it could illuminate a city block on the night of the Fourth for about $75. The company offered to the city free current for the electrical celebration. The committee in charge of the city's Independence Day jubilee expects to have $100,000 to spend on a "safe and sane Fourth," and the electrical company estimated that all the parks and public buildings in the city could be illuminated at a cost of $75,000. This, it was said, is not higher than the expense attending a good fireworks display.

Movement is New National

"The movement toward a national celebration of Independence Day has become national," said Herman Ridder, chairman of the committee in charge of New York's observance recently. "The example set by New York has spread throughout the country."

"In 1903 there were only twenty cities in the United States that undertook the supervision of the Fourth of July celebrations with a view of reducing the number of accidents that in the past have resulted from the observance of that day. The following year there were ninety-one, and last year there were 161. And in comparison with this increase the accidents of the day decreased from 5,307 in 1903 to 1,603 in 1911."

"If the committee can have the support of the people of this city the celebration last year, which was declared by everyone to be the finest New York has ever witnessed, will be surpassed. The 'safe and sane Fourth' is an excellent opportunity for the people of New

Even the folks who "believe in a real, old fashioned Fourth," with guns and fireworks and bonfires, must find food for reflection in the warnings issued annually by the physicians and surgeons and heads of fire departments. Until the idea of observing the day without making our children "pass through the fire"—the practice condemned so severely in the Old Testament in connection with heathen rites—gained general acceptance Independence Day was something of a horror to the firemen and the police.

Hearken now to the tale of decreased property loss. As a result of the adoption of the "safe Fourth" in New York two years ago the day's loss by fire has decreased more than 80 per cent, and the accidents which formerly marred the day's fun have been almost completely eliminated. Sacrifices in Mother Columbia's worship have become rational with the passing of the years.

Time to Say "Stop!"

Certainly it was time to call a halt. Reliable statistics inform us that in 1903 there were 456 dead and 3,953 wounded, a total of 4,409 left lying on the battlefield of Independence Day. In 1905 the total had risen to 5,176, although the fatalities had dropped to 182. In 1906 the fatalities were the same in number, but the injured were sufficient to bring the grand total to 5,466.

In 1906 the high water mark of injury and death was recorded. The total was 5,223, of whom 163 persons, mostly children, were killed. In 1909 the total was only a little lower, being 5,307, but there are 52 more graves to the discredit of that year's "old fashioned Fourth." That year the figures attracted widespread attention, and the crusade for a safer Independence Day, already having many followers, received a great stimulus. Next year the melancholy roll call of dead and wounded was only half as long. Last year saw a further decrease, the number of dead being only 57, the lowest number of which there is authentic record, and the injured were only 1,546, a total of 1,603.

It is that "only" that the "safe and sane" people are after. They argue that there is no need for the sacrifice of even a single life or eye or limb in the sacred name of patriotism, apart, of course, from the battlefield thereon one fights for his country.

Put the Blame on John Adams

The blame for putting America on the wrong track in the matter of Independence Day celebrations is laid by these investigators at the door of old John Adams, second president of the United States, signer of the Declaration of Independence and a good, all-around patriot. He told his wife in a "round letter" that has been widely quoted that July 4 "will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other." To all of which the present day reformers breathe a hearty and earnest "Amen!" save to the words distinguished by capital letters. Guns and bonfires have been tried as means of celebration and have been found guilty. And if the reformers have their way, as seems likely, there will be no recall of this decision.

These intelligent bushy-bodies, who save undertakers' fees and doctors' bills for parents, tell us that one need not live in a large city to have a "safe and sane" Fourth. They even go so far as to put the seal of approval on fireworks if the displays are safeguarded properly. There is no need of foregoing entirely the delights of gunpowder if care be taken to see that they are properly confined. But these things are patriotic music, always effective in stirring up love for the fatherland, speeches, games, parades, drills, tableaux, concerts, athletic contests and pageantry.

VALUE OF FOOTWORK

As Demonstrated by the Leading Boxers

Of what value is footwork in boxing? This question is continually cropping up and provides an interesting topic. In these days of rough fighting and cyclonic slugging, which a large percentage of professional boxers employ, swiftness of foot in both attack and defense is lost sight of, yet it is one of the biggest factors in making ring champions. A boxer who is so light on his feet that he can be constantly on the move is not easy to hit. Daring in with dazzling speed, it is possible to land clean cut blows with such unexpected skill that an opponent has no time to block or counter as his assailant after landing slips away. The employment of these tactics means the scoring of points upon which a referee's decision must be based unless there's a knockout.

Of the present day boxers two expert footworkers stand out in bold relief. They are Mackie McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, and Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welterweight. Both men are phantoms when they begin fighting, for they can fade away from a rival's wallop so quickly that boxing fans are amazed. Yet when McFarland and Gibbons decide to land punches they shoot to the mark with lightning-like rapidity. Their foot-work is not cultivated, they say, but it is a gift. They are so agile and quick that they cannot help moving about the padded floor like dancing masters at the head of a ballet corps. As a result McFarland and Gibbons are believed to be the cleverest boxers in the world.

Fast Men Hard to Hit
"If you keep your feet moving all the time," said McFarland recently, "it stands to reason that the other fellow will find it hard to reach you with a solid blow. Some fighters cannot hit with effect unless they get themselves firmly on both feet and then swing either hand from the hip. Many of these fellows do a lot of harm if they land, but when they do it is wholly because their opponents do not know how to offset the punches."

"I have learned from experience that by making a man miss I can accomplish much. As soon as a fighter learns that he cannot land his best blows he naturally becomes discouraged. Then you've got the battle half won, and you can clinch the victory by landing quickly delivered blows yourself. But you cannot make a man miss or land rapid jabs for points unless you know how to use your feet. Because of this gift I can say that I've never lost a tooth, had my nose broken or been cut about the ears. In fact, I'm not a bit disfigured."

Sluggers Disfigured

"The fellows you see with flat noses, cauliflower ears and scars on their faces in a case out of 10 know nothing of footwork. They are just plain sluggers, who stand up and take all comes their way for the chance of landing a knockout wallop. In their cases physical strength is of more value than skill, but they cannot be termed clever. Of course I don't overlook other things that make a successful boxer. One must know how to hit, when to hit and just how far to let the blow travel. A good judge of distance generally wins more bouts than he loses. Then, again, it's necessary to know how to block with the hands and forearms if you are driven to a corner on the defensive. In addition to that, a good boxer must keep his wits about him always, so that he will know just when to take advantage of openings. But footwork is the real big factor."

While McFarland uses his feet and knows how to feint, he is not a slugger. He can hit with keen, cutting results, but he seldom scores a knockout. Gibbons, on the other hand, combines skill with remarkable hitting power. He is a natural fighter. It's easy for him to feint a man into knots, while he can make a rival miss in ludicrous fashion, but when he darts in to land a smash he puts beef behind it and generally produces pain. In fact, for his weight and inches Gibbons is a wonderful puncher. When he beat Willie Lewis, a pretty fair boxer, the latter was thunderstruck.

"Why, this chap is a wizard!" said Lewis after the bout. "Time and again I thought I had him cornered, but when I let fly he vanished in thin air, only to come back suddenly with punches that I could not evade. His footwork was simply marvelous. I used to think I knew something about footwork myself, but Gibbons is in a class by himself."

Young Griffith, Corbett, McCoy, Palmer, Dixon and McCarthy were great footworkers. Jack Johnson is another,

WHAT A WOMAN OBSERVED

Have you ever noticed that a man who talks about his love affairs only remembers his conquests?

Have you ever noticed that the man who grumbles at the food at home is the man who cannot tell mutton from lamb when he is out?

Have you ever noticed that, though the quickest way to a man's heart is by feeding him, the quickest way to his checkbook is by flattering him?

Have you ever noticed that a hen-pecked husband never crows about it? Have you ever noticed what a lot of women worry themselves gray over their endeavors to look young?

Have you ever noticed however miserably a woman is married she can always pity a spinster who is happy?

Have you ever noticed that the man who complains of his wife's dress bills always tells her that she doesn't dress as well as her neighbor?

Have you ever noticed how loudly you have to shout to make people notice a sermon and how low you have to whisper to prevent them hearing a scandal?

ENGLAND'S GREAT HOPE

Is McMillan the Crack Sprinter

CRAWFORD'S 14TH YEAR

This is Sam Crawford's 14th year in major league baseball. The Tigers' right fielder is as active as a cat and says he is good for several campaigns yet. If he could run as fast as Cobb, Crawford, no doubt, would lead all batters in the averages. Cobb receives credit for many infield hits because of his great sprinting, while Crawford's batting is clean and hard. He never batted so heavily when he played with Cincinnati, but as soon as Hugh Jennings got hold of him there was a vast improvement. Jennings convinced Crawford that he was the hardest hitter in the business, and Sam lost no time in proving it.

Money deposited today at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begins to draw interest July 8th.

PROF. BIGELOW

RECEIVES THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS

BOSTON, June 27.—The degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Prof. Melville M. Bigelow of the Boston university law school by the university of Michigan today. Dr. Bigelow is the representative of Harvard university at the diamond jubilee of the Ann Arbor institution.

Dr. Bigelow is an author of legal textbooks and numerous other publications. He was born in Michigan. For many years he was dean of the Boston university law school. Last fall he resigned the office of dean of the Boston university school and is now professor of law of the institution.

CRISIS IN MEXICAN TROUBLE IS REPORTED AT HAND TODAY

5000 Rebels Well Entrenched
Expected to Attack the
Federal Forces

CHIHUAHUA, June 27.—The crisis in the Mexican revolution is at hand today. Five thousand rebels well entrenched and fortified at Bachimba, 46 miles south of here, were expected to equal strength commanded by General Huerta. At stake is the city of Chihuahua, for months under rebel control and a vital point in northern Mexico. There is tremendous tension here among foreigners, many of whom have raised their nation's flag over residences and business houses. It is generally realized that a rebel defeat or retreat would mean a disorganized, uncontrolled flight to the city of Chihuahua, with looting and rioting as a climax.

GEN. HUERTA PREPARED
AT FEDERAL ARMY HEADQUARTERS, ORTIZ, Mexico, June 27.—General Huerta expects to have his artillery in position just ahead of Consuelo, seven miles south of Bachimba by noon today, when he plans to open the attack on the rebel stronghold.

General Huerta expects to be in the city of Chihuahua in five days, as it is anticipated the rebels will blow up all bridges if their retreat from Bachimba.

BAY STATE DELEGATES BUSY AT BALTIMORE

Great Display of Badges and Banners—Foss Boom Re- ported Gaining Strength

(Special news letter to The Sun)
BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—The emancipation convention is in full blast after several days and nights before, but outlived for show, excitement and general hilarity any "night before fourth" in history.

The city of Baltimore, try as it will,
is unable to cope with the unprecedented army of jolly visitors within its streets and hence, "everything goes," in the order with everybody happy. With rates of $20 and $15 per day every hotel is crowded, all lodging-houses are playing capacity, while private houses have been thrown open to the visitors and many have been obliged to seek refuge in the house-boats that line the river banks. The street railroad lines are numerous but confusing while there is no direct line of communication between the principal hotels which are located far apart. But all are good-natured and are accepting the inconveniences with a joke or a mile.

As the press associations represented by an army of correspondents and photographers are furnishing detailed reports of all happenings of importance within and without the convention hall, this correspondence is confined to sidelights of the convention and the affairs of the Massachusetts delegation of 36 regular delegates and 100 or more alternates and spectators, all of whom are designated by a line and color badge. Badges of an infinite variety of colors and designs, buttons, emblems, pennants, hat bands, neckties and 1000 and varieties of souvenirs are to be noted everywhere and the city itself is enveloped in bunting and it might be said with special electrical displays. Baltimore, it may be said, has an impressive great white way and its principal business streets are well lighted, but the side streets are nearly all as dark as the myriads of men and women of the colored personage who fairly swarm among them.

Difference in Delegations

There's a noticeable difference in the delegations representing the different states. Until Humphrey O'Sullivan got busy one would hardly know that the old Bay State had an official representation on the scene. Mr. O'Sullivan and his personal party of six came in ahead and established themselves at Christ's church rectory, in St.
Paul street, a fashionable residential street. Before Sunday evening they had become known at all the hotels by uncovering the original Clark mascot, a real Ozark hound pup that they picked up on the road while motoring in the country during the afternoon.
The pup ran out to meet the auto and upon the chauffeur driving the car he immediately went under it and refused all coaxing to emerge from his serpentine position. He was claimed by Judge Thomas P. Hillyer, Malden, the "chief" of the democracy of Masachusetts, by reason of his position as chairman of the democratic state committee, and the pup was immediately christened "Little Chief," and after keeping the rectory awake all night by his howling, was formally presented to the Clark headquarters as its mascot.

Mr. O'Sullivan intended to meet the Massachusetts delegation with a band upon its arrival in Baltimore Sunday night, but as the members came along in groups the reception was given up and in its place a parade and demonstration will be held by the Massachusetts delegation tomorrow night with Mr. O'Sullivan as marshal and a brass band to lead the way.

Mayor Fitz in Action

The Massachusetts delegates, minus a few who did not come down in Mayor Fitzgerald's Boston party, had just detrained at the depot Sunday evening when the busy mayor of the city of the trinity of the called the crowd to order as they were gathering their baggage together, and while one James Aylward of the Boston party was doing a mad Marathon through the crowd in search of a colored porter who had got his baggage and hiked away somewhere unknown to the owner, his honor said: "The Massachusetts delegation is to have a member on the committee on resolutions, and as that is a most important committee
I wish he elected without delay. All in favor of the suggestion say 'Aye,' contrary 'Nay.' It was a unanimous vote.

"Let's go to the hotel," cried several who were within hearing of the busy chief executive.
Meanwhile the Honorable David L.
Walsh was complimenting a couple of suit cases and a walking stick preparatory to boarding a taxi when a friend slapped him on the back, exclaiming: "Congratulations old man."
"What for, my safe arrival?" inquired
Dr. Walsh.

"You've been elected a member of the committee on resolutions by Mayor Fitz."

"That's very nice of him. When was the meeting?"

"Just now."

"I must have been looking out the window," responded Dr. Walsh.

The Massachusetts delegation had no regular headquarters.

Not so the California delegation.
They came across the continent in large numbers and with many ladies in the party, bringing with them "ash-ions" of California's great products, wines and fruit for the Californians combine business with politics, and they advertised the growing industries of their state in a manner most acceptable to their guests. They brought a band with them. The Iowa delegation came to town with a band of 50 boys clad in natty white uniforms and accompanied by a priest.

The banners read: "St. Mary's Industrial School." And perhaps these kids couldn't land out the harmony of the "chief" of the democracy of Masachusetts, by reason of his position as chairman of the democratic state committee, and the pup was immediately
christened "Little Chief," and after

HE KNOWS WHAT IS UNDER THAT SHELL NOW

and "Maryland," "Dixie" and "Everybody's Doing It" have been done to death by the bands. A new feature in the musical line appeared on the land last night in the shape of a quartet of good singers from Nebraska, all richly adorned with Bryan emblems, who harmonized in a song of catchy air and words, the title being: "Ed Like to Vote for Bryan," and concluding with the words most vociferously enunciated: "That's Just What I'll Do." The Massachusetts delegation has been somewhat lax in regard to concerted enthusiasm but intend to make up for it in their demonstration tomorrow night.

Among the recent arrivals from Lowell are Commissioner Andrew E.
Barrett, Anthony A. Conway, Hon.
Fisher H. Pearson and Adjutant General Gardner W. Pearson.

Up to yesterday little was heard of Gov. Foss' candidacy, but since then the hotels have been flooded with literature hailing him, a great dinner has been swung across the street in front of the Keenan hotel where the Massachusetts delegates are quartered.
The delegates are all wearing "Foss" hat bands and campaign outfits inscribed: "Foss For Us—A Match For All."

On to Washington

Monday afternoon the entire Massachusetts crowd chartered a special electric car and went to Washington armed with cow bells, rattles and other noise provoking instruments to root for the Red Sox. Each member carried an American flag which Julius Auerbach, the well known Boston lawyer, hopped a huge Irish flag. All had box seats behind the Red Sox bench and perhaps they didn't root!

They rattled two Washington pitchers and won the game, 3 to 1. A Washington police officer remarked: "I never heard so much noise from so small a crowd." After the game the Massachusetts crowd headed by the American and Irish flags escorted the Red Sox from the field. While waiting for the car the crowd entertained the natives with a program of songs including "Sweet Adeline."

Down to Business

The Massachusetts delegates held daily meetings in the lecture hall of the Baltimore dental college with Mayor Fitzgerald as chairman. On Tuesday just prior to the opening of the convention it was proposed to send a resolution to the New York delegation asking that that organization withdraw the name of Judge Alton B. Parker, as candidate for temporary chairman and to substitute therefor the name of Judge O'Gorman, or some other man acceptable to W. J. Bryan. Mr. O'Sullivan vigorously opposed the resolution but opposed it alone for the other 35 delegates voted for it. The resolution went but was never heard from again.

Mr. O'Sullivan then began a boom for Parker in the delegation with the result that when the ballot was taken in the convention Parker received 15 votes, Bryan 18, and O'Gorman 3.

The vote of the Massachusetts delegation for temporary chairman was as follows:

For Parker: Messrs. O'Sullivan, Sullivan, Hayes, Olney, Thatcher, O'Connor, Higgins, Desmond, Kennedy, Mc-Morrow, Clane, O'Brien, O'Shea, Daley, Dr. Sullivan 15.

For O'Gorman: Messrs. Mahoney,
Dr. Coughlin and O'Connell 3.

For Bryan: Messrs. Fitzgerald, Walsh, Strecher, Donahue, McFarland, Seagraves, Hanahan, Tirrell, Malley, Drappner, Martel, Moran, Mc-Sweeney, Thayer, Maynard, McNamara, Barry, Kelly, 18.

On Thursday evening Humphrey
O'Sullivan will be a guest at a dinner given by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Noyes to Judge Parker.

AND GASOLINE BELOW, BUT NOTHING DOING

At 2.45 o'clock this afternoon an alarm from box 35 summoned a portion of the fire department in Tremont street, where a lively blaze was in progress on the roof of the Tremont street garage.

When the firemen arrived on the scene the flames were piercing through the roof and inasmuch as there is gasoline stored on the premises, the job was a risky one for a few minutes.
However, the quick work of the members of the department stopped the blaze from spreading and the fire was soon under control. The damage, which is confined to the roof of the building, is slight.

MR. BRYAN'S DEFEAT

The opening chapter of the democratic convention at Baltimore offered another proof, if any were needed, that Mr. Bryan cannot play the political game. His first act was to oppose the selection of Judge Parker for temporary chairman and after making a bitter speech in opposition to Parker he presented the name of Senator Kern. After being eloquently nominated Mr. Kern got up and declined to stand for the place, stating that he was a warm friend of Judge Parker. He also returned Mr. Bryan's compliment and proposed that Mr. Bryan be a candidate for the position. Mr. Bryan thereupon intimated that he would stand as a candidate against Parker even though in so doing he should be humiliated by defeat. He felt that he should do this for the party for which he had labored for 16 years and which had honored him on several occasions.

There were strong speeches also in support of Judge Parker, and when the vote was taken it showed that Mr. Bryan was defeated by a margin of about 70 votes. That was a close vote to be sure, but the defeat was quite as severe to Mr. Bryan and the victory for Parker quite as decisive as if the majority had been three times what it was.

Mr. Bryan felt the blow very keenly, in fact while speaking against Parker he displayed considerable nervousness, something very unusual for him, but he felt no doubt that he had made a mistake and that he had to carry out his attack upon Parker as he had previously promised.

In this needless attack Mr. Bryan was supported by the Wilson men and thus not only Bryan himself but Wilson also incurred the enmity and opposition of the strongest elements in the convention and seriously handicapped whatever chances they might have of securing a nomination. Both leaders claim to be the most progressive in the party and they are prone to reflect upon some of the others as "reactionaries." Thus Mr. Bryan has assailed Harrison of Ohio for years and in the same way he has attacked Judge Parker and indirectly also Speaker Clark. There is a bitter feeling between Clark and Wilson, and this conflict at the opening of the convention served to unite the New York men and the friends of Mr. Underwood with the Clark forces. In this way something in the nature of a "deal" appeared to have taken place between the New York delegation, the Clark forces and the friends of Underwood from the south. All the various contests assumed a new aspect as a result. Mr. Bryan especially seemed to be the man to whom the steam roller had first been applied and not only he but his friends felt the experience very keenly.

What the convention will do remains to be seen; but judging from the keynote sounded by Judge Parker the platform will be one that should satisfy every wing of the democratic party. The judge dealt in scathing terms with the antics of Col. Roosevelt and advocated a plank in the democratic platform limiting the term of presidents so that in future no candidate could come out and seek a third term. On the tariff and other important questions Judge Parker was thoroughly progressive and not reactionary as Mr. Bryan had intimated before the convention.

While some confusion was caused by the opposition to Judge Parker and the defeat of Mr. Bryan, still there was nothing to indicate any lack of harmony that might jeopardize the proper work of the convention. There seemed to be a disposition on the part of the delegates to put up a strong ticket and to frame a platform that would be acceptable to every democrat in the land. That is what the people want and that alone will carry the party to victory at the polls.

JUDGE ENRIGHT

The appointment of Thomas J. Enright as judge of the municipal court to succeed Judge Hadley will give very general satisfaction throughout the city. Mr. Enright had very strong endorsement from the Lowell bar and from other prominent citizens in this and other cities. A member of the local bar since 1881, well trained under prominent lawyers and experienced as a legal practitioner, Mr. Enright will undoubtedly bring to the duties of his new office an equipment that will enable him to discharge its functions with satisfaction to the entire community. The position of judge of the local court is a very trying one, and anybody who has been familiar with the long and weary hours and days given to the office by Judge Hadley may realize what Mr. Enright will be called upon to do. The position is one that requires a great deal of patience and a great deal of sympathy. One would suppose that the judge of a police court would in time become so disgusted with the perversity of human nature that he would have no sympathy for any offender. This undoubtedly is the case with some judges, but it was not so with Judge Hadley who retained to the last his sympathy for the offenders who came before him and his desire to help in their reform. We presume Judge Enright will show the necessary patience and sympathy that is required on the bench of the municipal court. He has always been noted for his genial manner and his humane sympathy, and these qualities will greatly assist him in dealing with offenders of all classes, some of whom are beyond hope and so perverted that sympathy is wasted upon them.

We congratulate Judge Enright upon his appointment and wish him every success in the discharge of his duties.

ROOSEVELT'S PARTY OF DISSIDENTS

The defeat of Mr. Bryan at the democratic convention in his opposition to Judge Parker was seized by the Roosevelt men and magnified with the hope that Bryan would be induced to bolt and join forces with Col. Roosevelt. It is quite probable that Roosevelt will appeal to the defeated elements in the democratic convention, hoping to draw them into his new party of dissidents. He hopes that the democratic party will make a mess of things, but we do not believe it will satisfy Roosevelt's wishes in this respect. The democrats believe in a majority and they are opposed to bolting candidates and independent parties. For that reason they will not favor any of Roosevelt's schemes nor cravily his ambition by joining him in an effort to become a dictator throughout the land.

TAKE CARE OF THE HORSES

Now that the hot weather is with us, drivers will be expected to take the usual precautions to protect the animals from exposure to the hot sun, to supply them with drink at reasonable intervals and to avoid overdriving them, especially uphill and when drawing a heavy load. Some drivers have no consideration for the horses they handle and do not seem to understand that the horses suffer from abuse and from hot weather the same as human beings. We expect that Agent Richardson of the Humane society will see that the horses will be protected during the hot spell.

SEEN AND HEARD

Senator Bacon of Georgia piloted a constituent around the capitol for a while and then, having some work to do on the floor, conducted his visitor to the senate gallery. After an hour or so the visitor approached a gallery doorman and said:

"My name is Swate. I am a friend of Senator Bacon. He brought me here and I want to go out and look around a bit. I thought that I would tell you, so I can get back in."

"That's all right," said the doorman, "but I may not be here when you return. In order to prevent any mistake I will give you the password, so you can get your seat again."

"What's the word?" Mr. Swate asked.

"Idiosyncrasy."

"What?"

"Idiosyncrasy."

"I guess I'll stay in," said Swate.

JOHN LITTLEJOHN

John Littlejohn was stanch and strong, bright and downright, scoring wrong; he was good wicket, and paid his way; he thought for himself, and he said his say.

Whenever a rascal strove to pass, instead of silver, gold and brass, he took his hammer, and said, with a frown:

"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

John Littlejohn was firm and true, you could not cheat him in "two and two"; when foolish arguers, might and main, darkened and twisted the clear and plain,

He saw through the mazes of their speech, the simple truth beyond their reach; and crushing their logic, said, with a frown:

"Your coin is spurious, nail it down."

John Littlejohn maintained the right, through storm and shine, in the world's dispute; when fools or quacks desired his vote, doled him with arguments, learned by rote,

Or by coaxing, threats, or promise tried, to gain his support to the wrongful side, "Nay," said John, with an angry frown:

"Your coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told that kings had a right to rule, and that the people were herds of swine, that nobles alone were fit to rule, that the poor were unimproved by school,

That useless toil was the proper fate of all but the wealthy and the great, John shook his head, and said, with a frown:

"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

When told that events might justify a false and crooked policy, that a decent hope of future good might excuse a present evil routine, that a lie, if white, was a small offense,

To be forgiven by men of sense, "Nay," said John, with a sigh and frown:

"The coin is spurious, nail it down."

—Charles Mackay.

A minister was assigned to a small parish in England not long ago, and upon his arrival found his field of labor all that could be desired, with the exception of old Bill Johnson. Old Bill was a very much addicted to looting upon some when it was red, and the new minister at once announced his intention of bringing him to see the error of his ways.

"Well, of course, we know you mean right, parson," one of the elders said, slowly, stroking his white beard, "but it would be a mighty bad thing for the place if old Bill was to quit drinking."

"Well, what do you mean, brother?" the puzzled minister asked.

"Well, parson, it's like this," the elder explained. "There ain't no more convincing talker nowhere than old Bill. Every time he gets drunk and robers down he gets somebody to sign the pledge with him, and the other fellow pretty nearly always keeps it."

According to the statements of bankers and others there isn't much conscience money in circulation but it has been demonstrated to Mayor

The Comfort and Economy of Tourist Sleeping Cars in Traveling to the Pacific Coast

I would like to explain to you, just what a Tourist sleeping car is, what conveniences and comforts they have, and how you can save money by joining one of our through parties, which go to the coast every week in one of these cars, escorted by a special conductor employed by the "Burlington Route" to look after your comfort. For many years the Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursions to California have been widely known for the excellence of the service provided and the character of the employees in charge. The whole idea of these parties is to provide a way for people of moderate means, to make the California trip comfortably and in thoroughly good hands, and at the same time at expense that is not prohibitive. Please call on the office or write a postal will do. Alex. Stokes, New England Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R. 254 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

O'Donnell that there is still a little conscience money left. A man called at his office a few days ago and gave him a $10 bill, stating that he owed it to the city because of damage he had done city property. The mayor asked him to explain and he told what the damage was. He refused absolutely to take back the money and the strangeness of it all was that the mayor, investigating the man's story, found that no record of such destruction had been made although a slight deterioration in the condition of the property had been noticed. This had been repaid and nothing whatever thought about it. The man who paid the conscience money is not employed at city hall.

WHAT ZEB DID

I was feelin' kind o' happy till Zeb Spicer came along. A givin' his opinion out so eloquent and strong.

I sort o' liked to listen to the bird up in the tree.

And watch the flowers blossom in the sunshiny fair and free.

I liked to hitch the hook up, and go joggin' on my way.

My Sunday clothes seemed good enough for any holiday.

But Zeb he came along and showed that he was much distressed.

Because he couldn't see how I was downhearted and oppressed.

An' then I got to thinkin', with some help from Zeb, of course:

Why should I listen to the birds? The tunes from such a source

Don't cost a cent. Why shouldn't I go up and hear

Grand opera; no matter if the seats is rather dear?

I yearn for noth'n roses an' I want a motor car:

My Sunday clothes protect me; but they're out of style ten car:

I'm broodin' 'bout injustices; the world seems kind o' wrong—

An' yet I was right happy till Zeb Spicer came along.

TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped

By Common Sense

Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands.

Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

WILD WEST SHOW

HIGH SCHOOL HORSES ONE OF THE LEADING FEATURES

Ray Thompson's twenty high school horses are one of the leading features of the Young Buffalo Wild West and Col. Cummins' Far East which will exhibit in Lowell on Friday, June 28. These horses won international fame during their years as a feature attraction with Buffalo Bill, and are creating a veritable furor at every performance. "Joe Bailey," known as the "wonder horse," is unquestionably, the most skillfully trained equine in the world. "Prince," better known as "the reinsless wonder," performs many difficult and amazing feats, under the direction of Miss Thompson, without the aid of bridle or halter. One of the sensational feats performed by Miss Thompson with "Prince" is known as the "flirting with death act." Miss Thompson inclines flat upon the back of the reinsless horse, her feet caught in the stirrup. The horse then rears up and walks about the arena with the rider's head in a direct line with the ground. It is a thrilling act and is received by the awe-struck audience with great enthusiasm. "Prince" is so skillfully trained that the rider is absolutely sure of the animal. "King Edward" is another star performer in this celebrated troupe of horses. "King Edward" dances the grizzly bear and the turkey trot with all the grace and abandon of a stage beauty. Other horses in this troupe hold world records for high jumping and other out of the ordinary performances. It is the highest skilled animal act in the world.

It may be interesting to many to learn that the most primitive people in the world dwell in the interior of Australia, and that few white men have penetrated its wilds. The first of these aborigines ever seen in America are with the Young Buffalo Wild West and Col. Cummins' Far East.

The wild Australians are expert spear and boomerang throwers, buck-jumpers and bull-whip manipulators. Marion and Billy Waite are the stars of the tribe. The Waite brothers are measuring five feet in length, at a target 200 feet distant, striking the bullseye with the accuracy of a skilled marksman shooting a rifle. The boomerang in the hands of the Waite is a wonderful and terrible weapon. It is similar to a triangle in shape. One of their most interesting experiments with this weapon is the breaking of clay-pigeons thrown from a trap. The boomerangs leave the hands of the Waite with terrific force, break the clay pigeons and after completing a perfect circle 300 feet in circumference, return to the performers. Their feats with bull-whips are equally astonishing. With whips weighing 37 pounds, the lashes of which measure 35 feet in length, they break glass balls thrown high in the air and flick the ash from a cigarette held between the tips of an assistant at a distance of 25 yards.

GENERAL READE

ENTERTAINED MEMBERS OF "SOCIETY OF PATRIAS"

An extremely interesting party dined with Gen. Philip Reade, U. S. A. (retired), at his home, 871 Lakeview avenue, where the presiding hostess was Gen. Reade's mother, Mrs. Rowena Hildreth Reade, who was born on the 21st of September, 1814, and who is consequently in her 95th year. To her were presented the following named gentlemen, the guests of the occasion:

Judge Edward Clarence Dattis of Salem, ex-president of the Massachusetts Society Sons of the Revolution; Luther Atwood of Lynn, vice-president Massachusetts Society, S. A. R.; Capt. Joshua Atwood, color-guard Massachusetts Society, S. A. R. 1st Corps Cadets, Boston; Rev. Henry Betinger, of Virginia, chaplain of the Salem chapter, Mass. Society, S. A. R.; Mr. Chas. Norcross Bred of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars, Lynn; Major Lawrence Waters Jenkins, Second Corps of Cadets, M. V. M., one of the honored managers, Massachusetts Society, S. A. R., of Salem; Mr. John Robinson of Salem, curator East India Marine museum, Peabody Institute, Salem; Judge David Pingree, of Salem; Mr. Tilton, of Salem; Lieut.-Col. John P. Reynolds, Post 113, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Massachusetts; Lieut. Col. Charles F. Ropes, commander Second Corps of Cadets, M. V. M.; Col. Percy Parker of Lowell, formerly Lieut. 8th Regt. Inf., U. S. A.; Trooper "Joe" Smith, formerly 5th U. S. A. Regt. of Cavalry, who served under Brig. Philip Reade, U. S. A., when the latter was second lieutenant in the territory of New Mexico, 1867-1874.

The foregoing constitute a part of the "Society of the Patrias" and the gathering at Gen. Reade's home was one of the society's infrequent but most enjoyable meetings.

GREAT INTEREST

IN THE CONVENTION OF VERMONT REPUBLICANS

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 27.—Vermont republicans, through their delegates, assembled in state convention today to nominate the party candidates for governor, lieutenant, senator, attorney general and other state officers. The men named by today's convention will be voted upon in the first state election to be held in the United States this coming fall. The convention this year was swayed with unusual interest for it is many years since so many candidates were striving for the various places on the ticket.

For the gubernatorial nomination Joseph A. Debever of Montpelier and A. M. Fletcher of Cavendish were the opposing candidates. Three aspirants were in the field for the nomination for lieutenant governor. They were State Senator Max L. Powell of Burlington, M. S. Barnes of Chimney Point and Frank E. Howe of Bennington. Two candidates were in the field for the nomination for attorney general. All of the candidates had a considerable following and there was great uncertainty regarding the probable choice of the convention for the various nominations.

Real Estate Auction Sale

Saturday, June 29, 1912, at 3 P. M.

AT 185 CHARLES STREET, LOWELL, MASS.

I WILL SELL WITHOUT LIMIT AT PUBLIC AUCTION A CENTRALLY LOCATED PIECE OF REAL ESTATE CONSISTING OF TWO COTTAGE HOUSES OF 7 ROOMS AND A BACK WASH ROOM EACH AND 3000 SQUARE FEET OF LAND.

This piece of real estate has paid me good per cent. on what I paid for it since 1906 and will continue to pay the purchaser, as it always rented well and is never idle. I have just repaired, painted and overhauled the plumbing, and while one house is now vacant, I made up my mind to move to California, so thought I would not rent the property, as the purchaser could occupy one and let the other. The property brings in $24 per month, $288 per year. Charles street is smooth paved, which makes it desirable to live on, no noise from teams, near schools, right in the center of the city where tenements always rent well.

TERMS OF SALE: $200 in cash must be paid to the auctioneer as a deposit as soon as the property is sold. Other terms at sale.
